POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

There is sometimes trouble in bringing on the old hens to lay during winter, and one has to use common-sense as to what treatment is necessary, as what suits some hens will not always succeed. The usual method of feeding soft cooked food in the morning may have to be changed. Keep the roosting house closed till they seem inclined to leave the perches. Scatter some mixed grain, such as small wheat and crushed corn, in the scratching shed, and rake it well into the litter. Then let them out to scratch in this, and keep them closed in the shed for a few hours. If the day is fine they may afterwards have their liberty. Give them green food at mid-day and a little more grain in the shed. Towards evening they may have the soft mash, with a little meat, and just before roosting a feed of oats. Some alteration like this may have the desired effect, but they must be kept exercising and not have too much food.

HYACINTHS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

The best for window-box growing, and which with ordinary care, which includes sustained moisture, we have never known to disappoint the growers, are the King of the Blues, Gertrude, or La Victoire for red, and the wonderfully free L'Innocence as a pure white. The latter, indeed, is remarkable for its recuperative powers when planted out, yielding lovely spikes in profusion, if not quite so fine as the first season, year after year. In one instance only have we seen the beautiful single-flowered yellow Hyacinths in a window-box, but the effect was such as we should like to see repeated.

BLACKMAIL CHARGE.

JURY DISAGREE IN CASE OF MISS X.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

The trial was resumed of Patrick Walsh, who pleaded "not guilty" to having, on July 12 last, demanded money by menaces or by force from Miss X., and to having, four days later, uttered a letter demanding money by similar means.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted.

Mr. John Maguire (instructed by Messrs. McHenry and Maguire) defended.

Evidence had concluded the previous evening, the defence being an alibi.

Judge Davitt, in the course of his summing up, said that these two offences were of a most serious and grave nature. They amounted to what, in ordinary lay terminology, was known as blackmail. With the exception of one or two other offences, these were the lowest and most contemptible offences in the legal calendar. It was absolutely immaterial in a case of this kind whether the accusation threatened to be brought against a victim was true or not. It had not been suggested in this case by anybody that what was threatened against Miss X. by this individual, whoever he was, was true.

The Judge then reviewed the evidence in detail.

The jury, after an absence of two hours, failed to agree to a verdict. They were discharged, and the accused man was put back.

ALLEGED THEFT OF MOTOR CAR.

ACCUSED MAN ACQUITTED.

Douglas Gowan (clerk) pleaded "not guilty" to having, on April 14 last, stolen a Morris Cowley motor car, the property of Stewart Smyth. He also was charged with damaging the car to the extent of £44 8s. 6d., and there was a further charge of damaging a motor car, the property of Patrick Commins, to the extent of £40.

Mr. Felix S. Sherry (instructed by Mr. T. A. Ireland) defended.

Mary Margaret Little, a young woman, brought up from the cells in charge of a wardress, was examined by Mr. Carrigan, and stated that on Friday night, April 13 last, she was in Dawson street and met the prisoner. He hired a taxi, and she drove with him to a garage in the Donnybrook district. Gowan took a two-seater car out of the garage, and they drove back to the city, coming down Harcourt street, where the accused man switched off the lights. The time was about 1 a.m., and they were travelling at a fast speed. Suddenly the car bashed into a motor taxi which was standing on the street, and, following the crash, witness was injured by broken glass and was taken to hospital. Following the accident, Gowan ran away.

The accused man, examined by Mr. Sherry, stated that he drove to a garage at Orwell road—the owner of which he knew—in a taxi on the occasion in question, accompanied by the young woman. He took a car from the garage to bring her home, intending to return it later. He did not remember dimming the lights of the car, which, he believed, skidded.

The jury found the prisoner "not guilty," and he was discharged.

CHARGE AGAINST BOY.

A boy, Laurence O'Toole, pleaded not guilty to stealing £5, the property of Marion Daly, on January 11, 1927.

Mrs. Daly gave evidence that the boy came into her shop at 9 Westland row and asked for some broken cakes. She said that she had none. He then sat on the counter near the till and took £5 out of it.

A brother of the last witness said that the boy took the money before asking for the cakes.

Mr. Carrigan said that he would not go further with the case.

'BUS DRIVER CHARGED.

(BEFORE MR. KENNY.)

Michael Salmon, Wellington quay, driver of a Dublin United Tramway Company's 'bus, was charged by Inspector McGloin with the manslaughter of Finbar Walsh (9), 12 Beaumont road, Drumcondra.

Peter Field, of Berkeley street, who was conductor of the 'bus, stated that when approaching the entrance to Deverell place the children were just leaving Marlborough street schools, and the 'bus was moving at the rate of two miles an hour. About twelve children were in the middle of the road and made a rush to board the 'bus before it stopped. During the scramble he heard a scream, and when he got out he saw a child lying at the left back wheel, which was resting upon the boy's head. Two men lifted the boy, who was taken to the Children's Hospital, Temple street. The wheel, he said, might have passed over the child and gone back again.

In reply to Mr. E. H. Burne, who appeared for the driver and the Dublin United Tramways Company, witness said that the front portion of the 'bus did not strike the boy, who, with the other children, was scrambling to get on the vehicle to go to their homes. The door of the 'bus was jammed by those trying to get on. He thought that the boy must have got shoved under the 'bus. The boy had a satchel of books under his arm, but witness could not decipher the name on it, as it was in Irish.

The accused man was remanded on his own bail until Tuesday.

MISSING LETTERS.

BOY REMANDED ON FATHER'S BAIL.

(BEFORE MR. CUSSEN.)

Detective Sergeant John Lynch and Detective Officer Fennell charged Leo Carroll (14½), of Michael's terrace, Dollymount, with having on last Thursday morning stolen seventeen letters from the letter box of the Irish Life and General Insurance Company, Dawson street, where he was employed as a messenger, and during the week three blank cheques from the company's cheque book.

Sergeant Lynch stated that at first the boy denied the charges, but later admitted his guilt and produced seventeen unopened letters which he had concealed in the cellar or basement of the premises.

Mr. G. L. Dexter, the manager of the company, stated that Carroll was employed as a messenger boy since July at 10s. a week. During the week he had seen the boy with the cheque book in his hand in the front office, where he had no right to be. On Thursday morning when witness entered the office the boy was on the steps, and when he opened the box he found that the letter box had been tampered with, and there was only one letter in it, when, as usual, there should be a larger number containing cheques. The boy denied that he had anything to do with it.

Questioned by the Justice, the boy admitted that he had taken the cheques out of the book and had stolen the letters, thinking that they would contain money orders or cash with which he could buy a bicycle.

The accused boy was remanded for a week on his father's bail.

MOTOR CAR TAKEN FROM GARAGE.

DAMAGES FOR REPAIRS.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

The case of Patrick J. Murphy, 15 Windsor road, Rathmines, taxi proprietor, v. Thomas Fenelon, senior, 34 Cabra road, Dublin, was heard. The plaintiff claimed £16 19s. 3d., of which £13 9s. 3d. was for damages for cost of repairs to a motor car his property, and £3 10s. for the loss of the use of the car, caused by the defendant's breach of duty in not taking proper care of the car. It appeared that the plaintiff placed the car in the defendant's garage for safe keeping at a charge of 5s. a week; that the defendant's son, without the plaintiff's knowledge or consent, took out the car, and that it met with an accident necessitating repairs.

The defendant's case was that there was a notice in the garage stating that all cars were garaged at the owners' risk.

The Judge held that it had not been proved that the garage notice had been brought to the attention of the plaintiff. He held the defendant liable and gave a decree for £16 10s. and costs.

Mr. T. D. McLoughlin, solicitor (of Messrs. J. H. McLoughlin and Son), was for the plaintiff, and Mr. Casey (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Sons) for the defendant.

A LIFE INSURANCE POLICY.

SOCIETY DECREED.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Mrs. Christina Maher, of 60 Chancery street, Dublin, as administrator of Christopher Murray, deceased, and as guardian of the next-of-kin of the deceased, sued the Irish People's Insurance Collecting Society, of 51 Upper Sackville street, Dublin, to recover £31 15s., amount of a policy of assurance made by the defendants on the life of Christopher Murray.

It was stated that the deceased man left a widow and three children; that his widow was an inmate of Grangegorman Mental Hospital; that after his death his sister, Mrs. Mary Anne O'Brien, and her son went to the house where he died and took his clothes, in which was the policy; that Mrs. O'Brien called at the office of the defendants, and on the representations she made was paid the amount of the policy.

Judge Shannon held that, though the representative of the defendants acted, no doubt, perfectly bona fide, he was not entitled to the protection of the section on which he relied, and accordingly he gave a decree for the amount claimed, with costs.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan (instructed by Mr. Albert Woodcock) was for the plaintiff, and Mr. Fintan Lalor, solicitor, for the defendants.

CHRISTMAS MORNING COLLISION.

TAXI-CAR PROPRIETOR WINS ACTION.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

A claim was made by Francis J. Kenny, taxi-car proprietor, rear of 20 Merrion square, against Joseph McGuinne, also a taxi-car proprietor, of Hollybank garage, Drumcondra, for damages for injury to a taxi-car alleged to have been caused by defendant's driver while in charge of another taxi.

It appeared that on last Christmas morning the plaintiff was driving four persons from Mountjoy square to Kingsbridge Station. It was about seven o'clock and very dark. At Marlborough street defendant's car was stated to have come round the corner on its wrong side and crashed into plaintiff's car, which had to make a sharp swerve in trying to avoid the collision. The right-hand side of the car was badly damaged. On behalf of the defendant it was stated by the driver of his car that he was on his own side, and had to accelerate to try to avoid being hit by the plaintiff's car.

Judge Shannon gave a decree for £25.

Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. Gerald Byrne) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Black (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) for defendant.

TAXING OF COSTS.

THE MASTER'S RULE.

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

On the hearing of an application for judgment for the sum of £152 8s. 6d. in an action for goods sold and delivered, and in which the defendant had entered an appearance, the solicitor for the applicant asked to have the costs taxed.

The Master, in reply, said—My rule on these applications, under £300, is to allow as costs the sum of two guineas in cases within Circuit Court jurisdiction. I do not know on what legal basis County Registrars allow the High Court scale of costs 1905. Perhaps, it is mere generosity.

TUBERCULOSIS SCHEME FOR LIMERICK.

DOCTOR AND NURSES TO BE APPOINTED.

The Free State Local Government Department has sanctioned the tuberculosis scheme and the school meals scheme, adopted by the Limerick Borough Council. The medical officer is to be paid £600 a year, and must have the diploma of D.P.H.

The nurses are to be paid £150 a year, rising by £5 to £200, and must combine the functions of tuberculosis and school children's nurse, but are not to have any secretarial duties.

On the motion of Alderman Dr. Fogarty, seconded by Alderman Reedy, it was decided to ask the Local Appointments Board to issue advertisements for a medical practitioner for the post, and to defer the appointment of nurses until his appointment.

UNSTAMPED INSURANCE CARDS.

At Rathfarnham District Court yesterday the Free State Ministry of Industry and Commerce summoned James Mulvin for failing to stamp the insurance cards of two of his employés.

There was a further summons to recover £6 16s. 2d. arrears in respect of the two employés.

A fine of 20s. was imposed, and an order to pay £6 16s. 2d. made.

On another summons by the National Health Insurance Commissioners defendant was fined 20s. and 21s. costs, and ordered to pay the arrears.

BROADCASTING PROGRAMMES.

Dublin Station's programme for to-night reads well, with a popular concert of good, but light, music by orchestra and soloists at 8 o'clock and a revue at 9.30.

Belfast to-day is broadcasting an afternoon concert from the Studio, relaying London from 6 to 7.45 and from 9 to midnight, and at 7.45 broadcasting an entertainment arranged by local medical men. The later London relay includes a vaudeville programme, with Wilkie Bard and Mabel Constanduros among the artists, and dance music from the Savoy Hotel.

The 5XX programme from London includes from 7.45 to 9 a programme of music that was favoured by the older generation, such as the "Zampa" Overture and the "Blue Danube" waltz. The later items are mentioned above under Belfast.

The same vaudeville programme as 5XX is broadcasting at 9.35 will be sent out by 5GB at 8 o'clock. From 9 to 11.15 there will be a symphony concert, including the César Franck Symphonic Variations and Symphony.

Marcel Dupré, the celebrated French organist, is giving a recital at Wallasey at 8.30 to-night, which Liverpool and Manchester Stations will broadcast.

To-morrow Dublin and Cork will broadcast a concert from the Cork Studio. In Belfast's night programme there is one item of special musical interest—Vaughan Williams's "Sea Symphony." The English stations follow the usual plan of religious Services and musical programmes. The Bach Cantata series will be continued on 5XX at 5.45. The best music is that promised by 5GB at 3.30 (the Æolian Players and Mark Raphael, baritone, in chamber music) and by Manchester from 9.5 p.m. (orchestral music and songs, including numbers from "The Mastersingers" and "The Marriage of Figaro," with orchestral accompaniment, by Lee Thistlethwaite).

CHURCH OF IRELAND AND THE WORLD CALL.

THE MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The Bishop of Ossory (the Right Rev. Dr. Day) presided at the annual meeting and gift day of the Committee of Women's Work, in connection with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, held in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin.

The Rev. H. K. Woodward said that, in answer to the world call for missionary work, there were 257 offers from clergy during the past two and a half years: the number of lay workers who offered was 243; while the number of women candidates who offered was 338 during the same period. This brought the grand total of those who offered to 838. For two and a half years the number of students in training who offered was 201, and the number of women candidates 201. They had vacancies for nurses in their training colleges. They had now, he announced, started a new chapter in the missionary history of the Church of Ireland by the establishment of the Missionary Council.

The Chairman said that the establishment of the Missionary Council meant that the Church was putting missionary work in the forefront. Now the Church of Ireland was about to proclaim the work for which it existed—the spreading of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. This would give a great impetus to missionary work.

Gifts were taken up by Mrs. Day.

Mr. J. Y. Ormsby delivered an address on "The Work of the Church in Canada."

THE 'BUS "WAR" IN DERRY.

NEW SERVICE AT REDUCED FARES.

The first shot in the 'bus "war" in Derry was fired yesterday. It is a challenge to a monopoly which the Corporation has held for over eight years. Mr. H. M. S. Catherwood has put on the streets a fleet of 'buses which, in addition to catering for the route at present covered by the Corporation service, are covering parts of the city hitherto neglected by the municipal 'buses. The fares everywhere are 50 per cent. less than the municipal 'bus fares. These fares the Corporation, by a majority of 15 votes to 11, last Tuesday decided not to reduce. It was then announced that a rival service was to be started at once, but the statement was not taken seriously.

Most of the Labour members of the Corporation voted against the reduction of fares, while at the same time they welcomed the rival service.

It is understood that the Corporation will at once contest the right of Mr. Catherwood to run a service in the city, and his action in precipitating competition with the municipal service creates an awkward situation in regard to the conference which it was decided to hold with the object of accommodating conflicting interests affected by the proposed new by-laws dealing with outside 'buses entering the city.

The new Catherwood service is welcomed in Derry.

ELECTRICITY BOARD'S NEW CUSTOMER.

CURRENT FOR WATERFORD NEXT MONTH.

Waterford Corporation at a special meeting formally handed over the local public electric supply scheme to the Electricity Supply Board on Thursday. The decision followed the attendance of a Corporation deputation on the Electricity Board in Dublin on Friday last.

In the report submitted by the Mayor (Councillor Edward Walsh) the following reasons for the Council's action were advanced by the Board in Dublin:—

(1) They were definitely of opinion that it would be to the advantage of the Corporation financially and otherwise;

(2) They gave a definite assurance that they could supply current cheaper. The Corporation scheme provided for a charge of 9d. per unit for the first year, but the Dublin Board expected to supply it at a cost equivalent to 6d. per unit—the actual figure cannot be decided until they see what adjustment can be made in Waterford's case, having regard to its peculiar position under the recent general revaluation.

(3) They were positive that under the Corporation's control the scheme could not be run for the first few years without financial loss. Dr. McLaughlin, of the Board, said that this was invariably the experience of pubilc bodies that initiated electric lighting schemes The Board had informed the deputation that every public body controlling its own scheme had applied to the Electricity Board to take it over and run it, which in their opinion was ample evidence of the wisdom of the course they now suggested. They contended that the scheme controlled by the Board, having its own experts to advise them, would be run more efficiently than by the local body.

The Mayor's report concluded:—The deputation were unanimously of opinion, after hearing these arguments, that the scheme should be handed over. The action of the Dublin Board will mean taking over all the capital and liabilities of the local scheme, which amount to about £30,000. An assurance was given that current for lighting would be available in Waterford about November 15th.

SLIGO WAR MEMORIAL.

SITE DIFFICULTY SOLVED.

When the foundation for the memorial to the men from Sligo town and county who fell in the Great War was being laid this week, it was found that the site was directly over a water main, and, therefore, unsuitable.

All arrangements had been made for the unveiling ceremony on Sunday next, and this last-minute discovery caused considerable anxiety. The breach was filled, however, by Mr. A. Gorman, the President of the local branch of the British Legion, who offered a site on his land at Edenhill, which adjoins the main road on the outskirts of the town. This offer was gladly accepted.

At a special meeting of the Corporation on Thursday it was made clear that the Corporation was quite willing to grant an alternative site just beside that originally granted; but the Legion Committee decided that Mr. Gorman's plot is more suitable, and the memorial is being erected there.

The unveiling ceremony next Sunday will be performed at 3 p.m. by General Sir William Hickie, K.C.B., and the British Legion headquarter's band will attend.

COUNTY LOUTH LICENCE ABOLISHED.

TWELVE PUBLIC-HOUSES FOR POPULATION OF 550.

The village of Carlingford, in County Louth, which has a population of 550 people, has twelve public-houses. One of these was abolished at Dundalk Circuit Court when the State applied for the abolition of the licence formerly held by Mrs. Mary McGreehan.

Sergeant Roche said that there were eleven other public-houses in Carlingford, and this one would not be missed.

Judge Devitt—And there is only one reference order?

Mr. Teevan, solicitor, who appeared for the authorities, said that this was because of the view of District Justice Goff that he could only grant one reference order in each licensing area.

The Judge — The view of my colleague, Judge Wakely, is that one public-house is sufficient for 800 people. If that view was held generally there would be plenty of reference orders.

"BACK TO PORRIDGE."

The "Back to Porridge" campaign, initiated two years ago by Messrs. White, Tomkins and Courage, Ltd., of Clarendon Mills, Belfast, has had excellent results in the firm's business. These results can be measured: what cannot be calculated so easily is the effect of the campaign in promoting health and physical efficiency among thousands of people who were reminded of the splendid food value of a palatable porridge such as can be cooked easily and speedily in any household where White's Wafer Oats are used.

This year's harvest has been bountiful, and already more than a thousand tons of new season's oats have passed through the firm's mills at Tandragee and Belfast. Orders for large supplies have been received from all parts of Great Britain and the Irish Free State; and although the mills are running night and day the firm is hard pressed to keep even with the demand.

In support of the campaign in favour of porridge-eating, Messrs. White, Tomkins and Courage have made use of some ingenious ways of advertising and encouraging the use of their products. The latest, incidentally, will give some help to another Irish industry, for it consists in the distribution of some 20,000 boxes of linen handkerchiefs made in Ireland. Representatives of the firm are calling on householders in certain districts; and where a packet of Wafer Oats can be produced to a representative, a box of handkerchiefs is presented.

BARLEY GROWERS' DIFFICULTY.

Farmers in Thomastown and South Kilkenny districts are experiencing much difficulty in disposing of their barley. In Graiguenamanagh, which is the principal barley-buying centre for this district, the market has not yet opened. The price for best malting barley is not expected to exceed 16s. per barrel.

NORTHERN PARLIAMENT.

RENT RESTRICTION.

PERIOD OF CONTROL TO BE EXTENDED.

THE MARKETING OF POTATOES.

In the Parliament of Northern Ireland on Thursday, the Minister of Home Affairs (Sir Dawson Bates) moved the second reading of the Rent Restriction Bill, the object of which is to extend the control of dwelling-houses of £26 valuation and under from 1st May, 1930, to 1st May, 1933.

The Government, he said, had given this matter very grave consideration. In April last he stated that the Government would be prepared to postpone decontrol of these houses unless they were fully satisfied that an ample number of small dwellings had been erected. He desired to emphasise that the system of control of rents could only be regarded as a temporary expedient. The only remedy for the present condition of affairs was obviously to provide a sufficient number of houses in order that the ordinary economic laws again could operate. There were in Belfast alone approximately 79,000 houses of £26 valuation and under, inhabited principally by the artisan and labouring classes.

The State subsidy scheme was working most satisfactorily, and 15,000 houses had been approved under it. The subsidy originally was given for houses with a minimum of 600 superficial feet and a maximum of 950 superficial feet; but the result of their experience was that builders concentrated more on the larger type of houses, which were beyond the means of the ordinary working man. Under their last Housing Act they limited the subsidy to houses between a minimum of 500 and a maximum of 650 superficial feet, and increased the subsidy by £20 to a sum of £100. The policy of the Government had been fully justified, and they were approving of plans for houses of the type he had mentioned at the rate of 400 to 500 a month, as against 300 to 400 for the year 1927, and 100 to 150 for 1926 Even if the present satisfactory progress were continued, there would still be in May, 1930, an insufficiency of the type of house which he mentioned, and, therefore, the Government was satisfied that control should not be taken off until, at least, May, 1933.

Mr. J. Beattie (Labour) said that he did not believe in the sincerity of the Government in its efforts to protect the working-class houses. He suggested that houses of £8 valuation and upwards (which were now decontrolled) when they became vacant should be continued under control. Kitchen houses in East Belfast were being let at 12s. per week, and 12s. out of a wage of 37s. was too high a proportion to go in rent. Tenants of business premises were being evicted in East Belfast, and nothing was being done to help these tenants, all of whom were supporters of the Government. Some of these shops now displayed placards in their windows with the words, "Evicted through the action of the Northern Government." He suggested that an amendment should be introduced to protect these shops of £26 valuation and under.

The Speaker ruled that such an amendment could not be introduced into this bill, which was merely to amend a clause of a former Act in relation to dwellinghouses.

Sir Dawson Bates explained that business premises were protected where they were also used as dwellinghouses.

BUSINESS PREMISES.

Mr. Grant (Unionist) welcomed the bill, but thought that there should be protection for owners of business premises from unscrupulous landlords.

Mr. Collins (Nationalist) said that when houses of £8 to £26 valuation became vacant the new tenants were at the mercy of the landlords

Mr. T. Henderson (Independent) contended that the subsidy should be given to houses of 750 superficial feet, instead of confining it to 650 superficial feet.

Mr. Kyle (Labour) approved of the bill, but regretted that it did not go far enough.

Mr. O'Neill (Nationalist) said that there was no excuse for charging extortionate rents for new houses on which subsidies had been given by the Government.

Mr. McMullan (Labour) was at a loss to understand why the Government gave the subsidy to houses of £8 to £26 valuation, and did not impose control on such houses. The bill did not give protection to such houses.

Mr. Black (Unionist) wanted to know why the valuation for decontrol had been fixed at £26. This valuation cut right across a particular class of citizen, and it was a great hardship on a tenant to find that, owing to the accident of a different period of valuation, he had to pay 140 per cent. increase in rent, while a neighbour in the same kind of house had only to pay 40 per cent. increase on pre-war rent. The line should be drawn at a different figure so that the two classes would be divided.

Mr. George B. Hanna, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs, said that he was sure that there would be unanimity that the fullest protection should be given to tenants in houses of £26 valuation and others. The susbidy houses of 650 superficial feet contained one living room, three bedrooms, scullery, and bathroom, and were as large as could be built under present conditions. They were let at 8s. 7d. per week, and this sum, if paid for 25 years, made the occupying tenant owner of the house. If a larger house were built it could not be available on these terms, and consequently the class of tenant whom they wished to benefit could not afford the houses. They wished to protect their great working-class population from any further increase of rent until 1933, and if at that time there was no great improvement in the supply of houses he suggested that control should be further extended.

The second reading was passed.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

Mr. S. Kyle (Labour) asked the Minister of Labour whether he had seen the report of a question asked in the Dail with reference to a reciprocal arrangement with Northern Ireland on Unemployment Insurance; whether he refuses to grant relief to employers and employés in this connection; whether he is aware that residents in Northern Ireland are being denied unemployment insurance benefit by both his Ministry and the Ministry of Industry and Commerce of the Free State, and whether he can justify this severe hardship?

The Minister of Labour—I would refer the hon. member to a comprehensive statement I made on this subject on the 29th March, 1927. I feel that there is nothing I can usefully add to that statement.

MARKETING OF POTATOES.

The Committee stage of the Marketing of Potatoes Bill was then taken.

On Clause 2, which gives power to the Minister to revoke any licence granted to a potato exporter, Mr. O'Neill (Nationalist) contended that there should be some provision for an appeal against the revocation of a licence by the Minister.

Mr. M'Hugh (Nationalist) also pleaded for some means of appeal from the Minister's decision.

No Ministerial reply was given, and on a division the clause was carried by 23 votes to 7.

Mr. Crawford (Unionist) moved amendments to Clause 3, providing that the potatoes for export should be examined at the premises of the consignor, or at such place as would be convenient to him.

Sir E. Archdale, Minister for Agriculture, agreed to include an amendment providing that the examination should take place at such convenient place and convenient time as the Ministry might decide

The bill passed through Committee, and the House adjourned until Tuesday next.

SLEEPING IN COURTHOUSE.

That a number of tenants were sleeping in the Courthouse in Boyle without permission was the statement made by Mr. S. Stack, Free State Local Government Inspector, at the meeting of the Roscommon County Council, Mr. M. Brennan, T.D., Chairman, presiding.

Mr. J. Drury said that the people who occupied the Courthouse were honest, and had carried out repairs to the building.

The caretaker, P. Nash, said that he had acted on the instructions of Mr. Drury, and this statement was accepted.

Pork is in Season.

"My dear, I couldn't dream of eating that," was a remark overheard the other day, when an appetising pork dish appeared: "I love it, of course, but it doesn't agree with me." Not an out-of-the-way remark by any means, in fact one that is too commonly used. If you are in the habit of turning down good food of which you are fond because it upsets your digestion, causes flatulence or any stomach pains, you need ANTIGESTA, the rapid and certain cure for all stomach ailments. Miss Armstrong, of Co. Tyrone, writes: "Antigesta has cured the pain I had in my stomach after eating, and has also relieved my brother of heartburn." Mr. George, of Belfast, writes: "I have found Antigesta to be of great benefit when suffering from Indigestion." If you are feeling generally depressed, secretly believing that nothing will ever cure your Indigestion or other stomach trouble, get some Antigesta to-day. Its powers will surprise you. Of all chemists, 1/3, 2/3, 3/6, and 6/6, in tablet or powder form, or direct from Kuros Manufacturing Co., Ballymena.

INCOME TAX AND SUPER-TAX.

APPEAL ON BEHALF OF THE ESTATE OF THE LATE LORD IVEAGH.

BIG SUMS INVOLVED IN CLAIM BY FREE STATE.

An important case came before Mr. Justice Sullivan, Mr. Justice Hanna, and Mr. Justice Byrne in the High Courts, Dublin Castle, yesterday, when the representatives of the late Earl of Iveagh appealed against assessments of income tax and super-tax in certain years.

There were two branches in the case, in one of which the Right Hon. Edward Cecil Earl of Iveagh was appellant and the Revenue Commissioners respondents, and in the other the Revenue Commissioners were appellants and the Earl of Iveagh respondent. They came before the Court on a special case stated on the Revenue side for their opinion whether the late Earl of Iveagh was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann in certain years in respect of which he had been assessed for income tax and super-tax.

THE ASSESSMENTS.

It appeared that at meetings of the Commissioners for the Special Purposes of the Income Tax Acts held on the 17th and 18th August, 1927, at Dublin, the late Earl of Iveagh appealed against the following assessments to income tax under Cases 4 and 5 of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918, in respect of foreign securities and foreign possessions:—1923-24, £278,414; 1924-25, £700,000; 1925-26, £700,000; 1926-27, £700,000; and against the following assessments to super-tax:—1923-24, £648,842; 1924-25, £700,000; 1925-26, £700,000, on the ground that he was not a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in any of the years of assessment from 1923-24 to 1926-27; and, as regards the assessment to super-tax for the year 1923-24, that he was not a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the year 1922-23. The amount of the super-tax for the year 1923-24 was adjusted in accordance with the provisions of Section 2 of the Finance Act, 1923 (No. 21 of 1923). The appellant also claimed that he was not domiciled, and that he was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in any of the years of assessment, and that, therefore, if he was liable to income tax under the assessments mentioned, the bases of computation should be in accordance with Rule 2 of Case 4 and Rule 2 of Case 5 of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918, and not in accordance with Rule 1 of the respective cases.

The decision of the Revenue Commissioners was that the Earl of Iveagh had not satisfied them that he was not domiciled in Saorstat Eireann for the years ended 5th April, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927; and had not satisfied them that he was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann for those periods.

From this decision the Earl of Iveagh appealed to the Special Commissioners, who, in their case stated, went very fully into the evidence given by the late Earl and his private secretary, who were the only witnesses examined at the hearing of the appeal.

THE CASE STATED.

The case stated outlined the history of the late Lord Iveagh, who was born at St. Anne's, Clontarf, County Dublin, in 1847, and spent his youth at his father's residences at St. Anne's, and at St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. The case stated also referred to the late Earl's various properties, both in England and in Ireland, and stated that it was admitted that Lord Iveagh's domicile of origin was Irish, and that he retained such domicile until 1890. At the date of the hearing of the appeal the total estimated value of his English landed property was about £1,250,000, and of his Irish landed property about £106,000. He was a member of ten clubs in Saorstat Eireann, and when in Ireland he sometimes visited the Kildare Street Club, of which he was an ordinary member, and not a foreign member. He had two banking accounts in Saorstat Eireann for the purpose of dealing with financial matters concerning his Irish property. For legal documents and for business or important purposes he almost invariably gave his address as 5 Grosvenor place, London. This address was the address registered in respect of his holding of Irish Free State National Loan. He had never exercised the franchise in Saorstat Eireann.

On the 25th March, 1920, of his own accord, and in consequence of what he regarded as the uncertain political situation in Ireland, he executed a deed poll, in which he certified and declared "that I have for many years past wholly abandoned and relinquished my domicile of origin in Ireland, and that I have adopted, and intend to continue until my death, England as my only place of domicile." The deed poll contained a statement that he kept up the residences at St. Stephen's Green and at Farmleigh, but only used them occasionally from time to time when in Ireland for purposes connected with the brewery business, and for the performance of the several duties which he considered his position imposed on him. He did not regard them or use them as places of permanent residence.

ENGLAND THE FAMILY HOME.

At the hearing of the appeal, the case stated continued, the late Earl of Iveagh gave evidence in general descriptive terms as regards his state of mind in 1890 and since then, upon the question of the place where he wished to live and to make his home—that, in 1890, he came to the determination to live in England and to make England his home and that of his family for all time, as distinct from a temporary residence; that he had no intention since then of ultimately returning to Ireland as a permanent home; that he liked to go there and to his residence at St. Stephen's Green from time to time; that he did not intend to cut himself off from using Farmleigh as a residence or from going for any indefinite period; that he never had any idea in his mind of making it his permanent home or of establishing his permanent home in Ireland; that he liked to come back to Ireland, but never intended establishing a home there; that when he took the extended lease of Grosvenor place, London, he intended to have an English country home; that the London residence was a step on the road to the establishment of himself and his family permanently in England.

During the year 1922-23 and the years of assessment the late Lord Iveagh had five residences in England and three in Saorstat Eireann. In the year 1924-25 he occupied his residence at St. Stephen's Green during twenty-nine days and his residence at Farmleigh during thirteen days. In 1925-26 he occupied his residence at Farmleigh during nineteen days. In 1926-27 he occupied his residence at Farmleigh during thirty-seven days and his residence at Ashford during six days. Owing to illness he was unable to visit Ireland in either of the years 1922-23 or 1923-24. The upkeep and maintenance of his residences in Saorstat Eireann entailed an annual expenditude in respect of rates, rents, wages, etc., of over £13,000 per annum.

APPELLANT'S CONTENTIONS.

The case stated indicated that counsel contended on behalf of the appellant that he acquired a domicile of choice in England about the year 1890, and that he had since retained such domicile; that he was not domiciled in assessment; that he was not a citizen of Saorstat Eireann, and that he was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in any of the years of assessment, and that he was not a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in any of the years of assessment or in the year of assessment 1922-1923, preceding the year of assessment 1923-1924. The representative of the Revenue Commissioners resisted each of these contentions, and claimed that the appellant was a person residing, was ordinarily resident and was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann during the years of assessment; and was also a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the year 1922-1923.

The special Commissioners determined that the appellant was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann in each of the years of assessment, from 1923-1924 to 1926-1927 inclusive, within the meaning of Rule 2 (a) of Case 4 and Rule 3 (a) of Case 5 of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918; that he was a citizen of Saorstat Eireann; that he was ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment 1924-1925, 1925-1926 and 1926-1927, and that he was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in the year of assessment 1923-1924, within the meaning of the Rules mentioned; and that he was a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment 1924-1925, 1925-1926 and 1926-1927, and was not a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment 1922-1923 and 1923-1924, within the meaning of Rule 1 (a) of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918.

QUESTIONS FOR THE COURTS.

The questions of law for the purpose of the High Court were, whether the appellant was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment; whether, in so far as the question was one of fact there was any evidence before the Special Commissioners upon which they could find that the appellant was a citizen of Saorstat Eireann, and that he was ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in the years 1924-1925, 1925-1926 and 1926-1927, and that he was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in the year of assessment 1923-1924, within the meaning of Rule 2 (a) of Case 4 and Rule 3 (a) of Case 5 of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918, and whether, in so far as the question was one of law, they were right in so holding; and whether, in so far as the question was one of fact, there was any evidence upon which they could find that the appellant was a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment 1924-1925, 1925-1926 and 1926-1927, and was not a person residing in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment 1922-1923 and 1923-1924, within the meaning of Rule 1 (a) of Schedule D of the Income Tax Act, 1918; and whether, in so far as the question was one of law, they were right in so holding.

The appeal of the Revenue Commissioners was against those parts of the determination of the Special Commissioners where they held that Lord Iveagh was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment specified.

Mr. Jellett, K.C.; Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Fred Sutton and Co.), appeared for the executors of the late Earl of Iveagh; and Mr. Overend, K.C.; Mr. McCann, K.C., and Mr. E. J. Kelly (instructed by Mr. Collins, Revenue Solicitor) for the Revenue Commissioners.

COUNSEL'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Newett, opening the case for the representatives of the late Earl of Iveagh, said that no question of figures would arise in regard to the amount of the assessments. On the question of residence, he submitted that Lord Iveagh's case was distinguishable from other cases, which had been the subject of reported decisions and on the question of domicile the principles upon which it turned were amply stated in cases which he would cite to their lordships. He went on to quote a number of cases regarding change of domicile and intention to do so.

Mr. Justice Hanna—What is your proposition that you are quoting cases in support of?

Mr. Newett said that his proposition was that the only things necessary to effect a change of domicile are the intention to establish the sole or chief permanent home in another country, followed up by residence consistent with that intention.

Mr. Justice Sullivan—I think that principle will be accepted.

Mr. Newett said that he did not know whether it would be accepted as regards the sole or chief residence. The determination of the Commissioners would seem to be that you must qualify that by saying it must be the sole residence.

Mr. Justice Sullivan asked was it ever decided that if a man kept a residence in the country where he had a domicile, that that prevented him from acquiring another domicile.

Mr. Newett—No; but there are plenty of cases the other way. Counsel submitted that Lord Iveagh had fixed his principal residence in England, and there was no question but that he resided in the residence quite sufficiently to establish the fact. It would, be assumed, be contended on the other side that the mere fact of retention of residence in the domicile of origin prevented that fact coming into operation. It would, however, be found in the case that the comings of Lord Iveagh to Ireland were referred to by the Commissioners as visits. A man does not "visit" his own domicile.

Mr. Justice Hanna remarked that very few persons were in the position of Lord Iveagh, to have five residences in one country and three in another.

Mr. Newett said that it was suggested that there was a difficulty in shaking off a domicile. They said on the other side that as long as you retain a residence you cannot abandon a domicile. That was not the legal way to put it. Counsel relied on the whole course of conduct of Lord Iveagh from 1890, and long before that, which showed a gradually increasing settlement in England. In every kind of way he fixed himself into the soil of England. The family burial place was a very strong indication of a man's permanent residence—where he buries his wife and provides that he is to be buried. If it had not been for the continuance of residence in Ireland, not a word could be said on the other side.

COMMISSIONERS' CASE.

Mr. Kelly, on behalf of the Revenue Commissioners, said that the real question was not the re-trial of the question of residence or domicile. The real question was, not was Lord Iveagh resident in England, but was there any evidence on which the Commissioners could find that he was resident in the Irish Free State during the years in which they did so find him. They must concentrate, not his activities elsewhere, but whether his presence, property and possessions here and his connection with this country were sufficient to enable the Commissioners to say that he was resident, and, being originally domiciled here, never did effectually change that domicile.

Counsel had not concluded his arguments when the Court adjourned until next Monday morning.

GERMAN SHANNON WORKER'S FATAL INJURIES

VERDICT AT INQUEST.

That deceased man died from shock, following fracture of the skull, was the verdict returned at the inquest which was held in Barrington's Hospital, Limerick, by Dr. T. Foley, Deputy Coroner, on Joseph Hoiner, who died from injuries sustained on October 12 last in an explosion at the Shannon Power Works at Ardnacrusha. Deceased man, who was a German foreman, was in charge of blasting operations, and it was stated in evidence he had been engaged two years on this work, and had as an assistant Eugene MacSwiney, who was engaged there since last May.

Martin Mannion, a worker, said that on the occasion in question he did not hear a hooter sounded to give warning of an explosion, as was customary.

The jury returned a verdict as stated, and added that the explosion, in their opinion, was caused by negligence on the part of Eugene MacSwiney.

At Limerick District Court yesterday, MacSwiney was charged with causing the death of Hoiner.

After being arrested and cautioned by Superintendent Staunton, accused man made a statement to the effect that he was sorry that he did not tell the truth at first, adding that he had caused the death of Joseph Hoiner. He did not know what he was doing on the night of the explosion, and put in the plug accidentally.

On the application of Inspector Tierney accused man, who was represented by Mr. Niall Gaffney, solicitor, was remanded on bail for eight days.

AMALGAMATION OF HOSPITALS.

A WORD FOR SMALL INSTITUTIONS.

Addressing the students and nurses and friends of the Meath Hospital, Dublin, yesterday afternoon, at the opening of the clinical session,

Dr. William Boxwell spoke of hospital work in Dublin, outlined the history of the Meath Hospital since its foundation, its manner of teaching physicians and surgeons, and impressed upon the students the ideals which they should follow.

Referring to the suggested amalgamation of hospitals he said that they had all heard of the submerging of a number of the smaller hospitals in order to form one great hospital of 800 or 1,000 beds. There was a time when he was dazzled by such a project; but now, when he was older, he was not so sure about its wisdom. Quite apart from the sentimental reasons that bound them to that hospital, did not that little hospital serve a very useful purpose in the British Commonwealth of Nations as it now existed? The 120 beds occupied gave ample material for teaching the students of medicine and surgery. The ideal number of students was half-a-dozen, and it was impossible for one man to teach the elements of anything practical to a large class at one time. The smaller the class the better value the students got. In the small hospitals the student came into direct touch with disease and the general management of the sick from the moment that he set foot in the hospital. The patient in a small hospital which was well equipped had a large share of the doctor's individual attention, as well as that of the student. In a great hospital, instead of a class of 20 students, they would have a class of 100. In such a hospital there would be eight or ten qualified men, who would stand up between the student and the practice work that he is anxious and quite fit to do.

VALUE OF THE SMALL HOSPITAL.

Although the small hospitals went on from year to year, pulling the devil by the tail, hoping for bequests and help from bridge drives and dances, and, above all, from the tinfoil industry, he said thank God for the little hospitals, and for the type of man that they can turn out. He had no sympathy at all with the argument that by amalgamation of four hospitals they would save the salaries of four secretaries, four matrons, four housekeepers, etc. Those salaries would not pay for the super-secretary that would be required for a big hospital. The whole basis of the scheme was a hypothetical endowment of half a million. They would gain by such an amalgamation centralisation. There would be a greater opportunity and wider field for the men at the head of the profession, and accurate records would be kept. Research of a limited, but of a very useful, kind would become possible. The true research worker however, has to be born, and money did not mean successful research. He doubted if there were 100 men in all Ireland to-day capable of setting about investigating the cause of cancer in any useful way. A small beginning had already been made in this direction. The Government, with admirable foresight, had sent young doctors to America to learn something of their methods in bacteriology and public health, and more recently the Adrian Stokes Memorial Scholarship, to be held alternately by Trinity College and Guy's Hospital, had been founded to promote original work in bacteriology and pathology, in memory of the youngest—who knows but he might have been the greatest—of the Stokeses connected for generations with that hospital. The large hospital had an undoubted "pull" in the teaching of post-graduates.

Concluding, Dr. Boxwell said that so long as the face of secular education in this country continued to be scarred by political and religious strife, so long as they had ministers strangling the intellectual development of a whole people, they might look in vain to the Rockefeller and every other foundation for grants in aid of scientific progress.

WHERE AMALGAMATION WAS DESIRABLE.

Mr. W. S. Collis, Chairman of the Joint Committee, proposing a vote of thanks to Dr. Boxwell for his lecture, said that he differed from some of his remarks as to the amalgamation of hospitals, for there was a great deal to be said on both sides. He ventured to say that the amalgamation of some hospitals would be very desirable, provided that the money was forthcoming. It was an uneconomic situation to have hospitals overlapping in the same districts. Students in a hospital of 500 beds would have greater opportunities of learning than in hospitals of 100 beds.

Colonel Woods seconded, and Sir William Smyly, who presided, declared the motion passed. He presented the senior prize for medicine and surgery to Dr. M. J. Duff, and the junior to Mr. H. Leventhall.

POSITION OF WOMEN IN CHINA.

MISS PYE'S IMPRESSIONS.

Presiding at a meeting of the Irish Section of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, at Wynn's Hotel, Dublin, yesterday, Miss Louie Bennett mentioned that Miss Edith Pye, the speaker of the evening, had gone to China, as one of a deputation of the Women's International League, while the war was at its worst, in order to see how things stood, and how far they in the West were responsible for this position, and to set up a link of contact between women of the West and those of the East in their struggle for freedom and peace. She said that she was very much afraid that they in Ireland had not an international mind. They had a very parochial mind, and did not realise how far international forces reacted upon themselves, or how much more closely the nations of the world had been drawn together.

Miss Edith Pye said that theirs was the first deputation in the history of the world that had been sent by organised women in the West to their sisters in the East. During their visit they were brought more or less into contact with the educated section of the community. It was difficult to give a picture of China, because there were so many levels of civilisation. In some places the civilisation was at the stage occupied by this country 600 or 700 years ago. Industrially China was a hundred years behind the times. Without the schools which had been set up for women in China by the missionaries the education of the women would not be anything like what it is to-day.

In Canton there was a strong feminist movement; the women were very independent and a new era was opening for them. Under the present Government women were qualified to fill any position that could be filled by men. She had found women everywhere behind a united China, with a great longing for peace. Chinese women were very anxious to get into touch with Japanese women. What China wanted was a certain period of quiet to attend to her own affairs without interference from outside.

On the motion of Mrs. Connery, seconded by Miss S. C. Harrison, a vote of thanks was conveyed to the lecturer.

RATHDOWN UNION AND DUBLIN COMMISSIONERS.

At the meeting of the Rathdown Guardians, Mr. A. W. Cullen, Chairman, referring to the proposed agreement with the Dublin Union Commissioners for the taking over certain workhouse buildings as a sanatorium, said that the Committee of the Guardians had been informed at St. Michael's Hospital, Kingstown, that the hospital management would be prepared to accommodate 20 patients from the Rathdown area at a charge of 25s. per patient per week. The Sister in charge of Monkstown Hospital told them that they never refused to take a patient, no matter where he or she came from, whether rich or poor. The Committee had not yet got in touch with Dr. Wheeler. He said that the charge at Monkstown would be £1 1s. 0d. per week, with theatre fees extra.

Regarding the taking over of stock by the Dublin Commissioners, Mr. Delany moved that the conference report be adopted, and that the guardians accept the alternative offer of £300 for the stock.

Mr. Doyle moved that a Government stocktaker be asked to value the articles, on which the Board's stocktaker had placed a value of £1,038.

On a vote, Mr. Delany's motion was adopted by 9 votes to 2.

CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY.

PAPER ON THE PRESS.

THE DESTITUTE AND HELPLESS.

"A Catholic Nation and a Catholic Press" was the subject of a paper read yesterday by the Rev. J. Deery, M.A., at the afternoon session of the Catholic Truth Society Conference, held in the Round Room, Mansion House, Dublin, under the chairmanship of the Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin. There was a large attendance.

Father Deery said that a nation could hardly be said to deserve to be reckoned as genuinely a Catholic nation merely on the ground that a majority of its citizens profess the Catholic faith. To possess a right to the title, the professing majority should be a practising majority; practising Catholics should bulk largest in the nation's roll. For a full vindication of the right that majority should, furthermore, have sufficient influence on national thought to ensure that public opinion is predominantly Catholic—Catholic in tone and outlook. This implied that questions bearing on public morality would be viewed from the standpoint of the Catholic moral code. In some instances this would not present much difficulty, as Catholic opinion would already have been formed. But, then, new theories were constantly being canvassed.

In a Catholic nation these must be subjected to examination in the light of the Church's teaching, and leaders of Catholic thought in the countries would find themselves confronted with the continual task of forming and cultivating a body of truly Catholic opinion on all current topics which have a moral bearing. For the accomplishment of this task the best and most effective means at their disposal is the Catholic Press. It was not the only means: there were others which were effective, too; but the Press is of primary importance, and ranks first in effectiveness. In different periods of the Church's history different apostolates were necessary to counter the evils of the time. The apostolate of our age is the Catholic Press.

THE MODERN PRESS.

Having quoted declarations of Leo XIII. and Pius X., the lecturer said that their own bishops had long realised the importance of the Press. In 1915 they stated—"The unholy zeal of those who are trying to undermine faith and morality should be at once a warning and a stimulus to us to make the best use we can of the great power of the Catholic Press for the protection and improvement of our devoted people." To appreciate fully the reasons which inspired these declarations, said Father Deery, it was necessary to consider the nature of the modern Press. The Press was of modern growth, and it was significant that the Church realised the possibilities of the new field. The full potentialities of the new weapon for propaganda were not appreciated or employed until after the French Revolution. Then it was that non-Catholics—anti-Catholics—were the first in the field. Soon came a general freedom of the Press, a freedom which often degenerated into licence—when effective control, such as religion can impose, is lacking.

The development of the Press in our age had been astonishing. It had become the great power of the day—the most effective means of propaganda, the mainspring of every movement. Every tendency in a nation's life, be it intellectual or political, spiritual or material, tries to win the support of the masses through the Press; it seeks to make the Press its platform—seeks, in fact, to have a mouthpiece of its own among the Press. Its power has grown, and its influence for good or evil has increased.

A NON-CATHOLIC PRESS.

Mr. Blythe declared some time ago that he considered the constant reading of cross-Channel papers harmful to the national outlook of Irish people. He (Father Deery) did not think that these papers, at least in the editions for Irish consumption, indulged in anti-Irish propaganda. How much greater must be the danger to the spiritual outlook of a people from the reading of a non-Catholic Press? There might be no definite anti-Catholic bias showing, but neither was there anything of the universal life of the Church, of her various spheres of activity, of her struggles to realise justice and peace among all, of her constant glorious manifestations of faith, of her answers to her calumniators. The atmosphere was frankly materialistic—the mind of the reader was cut off from his fellow-believers throughout the world, he lost his insight into the glory, the holiness of the Church of Christ, and insensibly his reading blunted the catholicity of his mind, dulled the keenness of the spiritual outlook, and took the edge off that fineness of soul which he should regard as a precious heritage, because it sprung directly from the possession of the true faith.

Having referred to the effect of anti-Catholic propaganda in France, Father Deery went on to speak of the establishment of L'Universe and to its work under Louis Veuillot and Montalambert. There was, he said, a Catholic Press in France, but it was not united. The awakening, however, came, but not before many souls had been lost to the Church. The Catholic Press provided an antidote against bad reading, formed sound opinion, strengthened faith, and prevented the corrosion of materialism from destroying the soul. The Press was the enemy's weapon of offensive. It must be the Catholic's for defence and counter-attack.

IRISH NEWSPAPERS.

There was no doubt that Ireland is a Catholic nation, but, unfortunately, her position in the world of the Catholic Press is far below what it should be. Some Protestant bodies are constantly distributing literature in our midst; they are using the Press; the Christian Scientists have had a stall in the Ballsbridge Shows to disseminate their publications. But Catholics lagged behind. The lecturer went on to outline the position of the Catholic Press in some countries where Catholics formed a fair proportion of the population, taking France, Austria, Germany, Holland and Belgium as examples, and then turned to Ireland, explaining the history in brief of the various Catholic papers and periodicals. Our papers, he said, must rely, in the first place, for much of their news on non-Catholic agencies and correspondents. He instanced the way that Catholic news was furnished from these sources, and went on to state that some papers had departed from the traditional spirit of Irish journalism and attempted to pander to sensationalism—a murder is always "featured"; a breach of promise is good "copy"; letters on unsavoury topics are published. Much of the matter printed is frivolous at the best.

In this connection sport occupies too large a space; and too much of this frivolous reading enervates the moral sense, destroys the more serious qualities of mind. Undoubtedly a section of the public must share the blame; it had allowed its taste to become vitiated. And occasionally they meet such as this (from a weekly paper): "The tenement class married couple who boast of ten, twelve and fifteen children should be thoroughly ashamed of themselves for bringing so much misery into the world." This is a question that demanded the urgent attention of all social agencies in this country.

MORE PAPERS BEING READ.

Having made a strong appeal for the support of a Catholic Press, Father Deery concluded by saying that through it would be created such a strong body of Catholic opinion, exerting its influence and leavening the whole mass, that Ireland would be a Catholic nation in the fullest sense of the term.

More papers were being read in Ireland than ever before, but the bulk of the reading not only did not help the Catholic spirit, but served to make it atrophied. The remedy was the Catholic Press. He knew that the faith is still strong in the hearts of most Irish men and women, but it must be kept strong. The history of France should ever be a warning to them, to remind them that, if they neglected the Catholic Press, they neglected the simplest and most obvious means of keeping religion in a flourishing condition. Their support of the Catholic Press was lamentably weak; yet everything depended upon it.

THE VOTE OF THANKS.

The Rev. G. J. Prendergast, C.C., Castlebar, who had been Chaplain to the Forces in Palestine during the Great War, proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer on his paper, which, he said, set one furiously to think. But there was more to be done than was suggested in it as to what should be done in Ireland to make it really Catholic. What did they think of the Government that allows its legislative assemblies to open without Solemn Votive Mass, and offering it to God for guidance? What was to be thought of the Government that opened its sittings without prayer? It was hardly worthy the name Catholic, the speaker suggested, that this country should take examples from her enemies and use the same ways as they did to promote their cause. Ireland was mentally enslaved, as far as their religion was concerned. They were still suffering from the "inferiority complex" in religious matters and public affairs. That should be eradicated, and the proper manly spirit should replace it and have pride in ourselves and our religion.

The Rev. T. Hurley, C.C., said that it ought to be the aim of every member of the Society to have a Catholic paper in every home. To do that they needed a strong organisation outside the walls of the Church.

THE CHAIRMAN.

The Chairman, in putting the vote of thanks, paid tribute to Father Deery, and said he had dealt with the theme in a complete manner. When he (the Chairman) heard of the paper the thought occurred to him—was it not self-evident that a Catholic nation should have a Catholic Press, and how could one have spoken on a matter that was self-evident? The obvious, however, was sometimes obscured in mental mists, but the lecturer had set himself the task of removing the mists from the minds of those who could not realise the self-evident truth, that a Catholic nation should have a Catholic Press, and he thought that no trace of such mental mists would be found in that audience. (Applause.)

Dealing with the influence of the Press, his lordship said that by young and old alike its pages were scanned and its doctrines almost indiscriminately imbibed—sometimes without considering the foundation on which that doctrine was based. The repetition of these theories left a deep impression on the mind. Hence the importance of having a Press that would give correct information on the subject that it discussed. And what an array of subjects is discussed in the Press of to-day. The whole range of human knowledge was called upon to furnish subjects for discussion in the Press, and it did not hesitate to say the last word on the most fundamental truths of religion. Its mission was the whole world, and its message covered the whole range of human knowledge. Was it not evident then that a Catholic nation should have a Catholic Press—a Press that would discuss subjects from a Catholic standpoint, and solve the problems of the day on Catholic principles? It was not necessary for the Catholic Press to be aggressive. It only required to spread the truth.

The vote of thanks was carried with acclamation.

THE POOR AND HELPLESS.

At the night meeting at the Mansion House, the Rev. J. O'Kelleher, S.T.D., read a paper on "A Catholic Nation: Its Destitute, Dependent, and Helpless Classes."

In his opening passages, Dr. O'Kelleher dwelt on the natural impulse produced by "the glaring contrast between excessive wealth and luxury on the one hand, and the extreme poverty and destitution on the other, which is to be found in every civilised country to-day." Serious and well-meaning persons are inclined to denounce the entire social system as un-Christian and inhuman, to dilate on the natural equality of men and their supernatural brotherhood in Christ. All this virtuous denunciation and eloquent appeal to high principles are not merely futile, but positively injurious. Instead of relieving the situation, they only intensify discontent and drive men's thoughts towards a transformation of the existing order, making them contemptuous of the only practical methods of relief that can be brought to bear. Fundamental principles are valuable as indicating the lines along which we should work to redress the evils, but not as affording any effectual solution.

To human nature, as it is constituted, two institutions are indispensable—social authority and private property. Had not man fallen, they would both have been unnecessary and unjustifiable. With our passions and vices we need authority in order to live in tolerable peace, and property in order to provide for ourselves and our dependents. But the perversity of men's nature has succeeded in corrupting the very institutions intended to check it, so that authority often becomes a weapon of tyranny and oppression, and private property an instrument of rapacity in the hands of the few which condemns the many to destitution. Impatient reformers would, therefore, abolish them altogether. Here, with her wisdom and experience, the Church comes to our aid, warning us that social authority and private property, however they may be perverted and abused by human passion, are our only alternative to anarchy and unrestrained rapacity. These abuses have been condemned by some of her greatest doctors and preachers, not infrequently in violent and unbalanced language.

AN OFFICIAL UTTERANCE.

Far different are her official utterances, such as that of the great Pope, Leo XIII. More than 37 years ago his famous Encyclical declared: "All agree, and there can be no question whatever, that some remedy must be found, and found quickly, for the misery and wretchedness pressing so heavily and unjustly at this moment on the vast majority of the working classes. . . . By degrees it has come to pass that working-men have been surrendered, all isolated and helpless, to the hard-heartedness of employers and the greed of unchecked competition . . . . so that a small number of very rich men have been able to lay upon the teeming masses of the labouring poor a yoke li[illegible] better than that of slavery itself."

It might seem reasonable to hold that the State is bound to make adequate provision for all these. But people are destitute, some because they achieve destitution, and others because they have destitution thrust upon them. The first of these classes is the great natural enemy of the second. Were it not for them the obligation of the community would be clear. In view of the present widespread tendency to idleness and extravagance, it would be a direct incentive to these vices to saddle the State with such an obligation. The members of the community might be expected at the most to make the best provision it can for the various classes of its dependents, and to take care that its bounty is not abused.

THE SICK AND INFIRM.

In the case of the sick and infirm, the same general principle holds good in theory: that individual citizens should be given the opportunity to provide for themselves and their dependents in time of sickness, although even in the more prosperous state many would be unable to make such personal provision. Fortunately, this matter always appeals strongly to individual generosity, and where its fruits fall short the State should come to the rescue. As to the provision and maintenance of hospitals, the wisest policy would appear to encourage private enterprise and benevolence. The deficit should be made good by the State, which would be well repaid by the improved health, happiness and efficiency of the community as a whole.

The case of the aged poor and the chronic infirm, who are not subjects for hospital treatment, is more difficult. To provide adequately for all of these at the public expense would require a State institution in every town and village in Ireland. The example of the "workhouse" is not encouraging. Furthermore, the principle of holding the State responsible for their maintenance would be inequitable, injurious to the interests of the community, and ultimately of the aged and infirm themselves. Here again it is only in the last resort that the State is bound to come to their relief. They have prior claims on their own relatives as well as on the Christian benevolence of their more fortunately placed neighbours. A wonderful amount is at present being done by relatives and friends, as well as by Christian associations and religious orders. The result of making the State directly responsible would be unfair to ordinary citizens, who find it hard enough to pay their way, and would also dry up the natural sources of filial and benevolent support.

A somewhat similar problem arises in connection with destitute children, and towards its solution similar principles should be applied. Charitable individuals and associations who are prepared to look to the welfare of neglected children should receive every encouragement, and, where necessary, financial assistance. Voluntary service and State aid are only supplementary to parental responsibility; their place is to help parents, not to supersede them, in the duty of rearing their children properly. Accordingly, family life should be interfered with as little as possible.

THE BIGGEST PROBLEMS.

The most important of the nation's problems, the lecturer urged, is that which arises from insufficient wages and unemployment. It is truly fundamental because the previous problems are mainly the outcome of poverty due to these two causes. Part of the trouble arises from laziness and thriftlessness; but if all destitution were of this kind the obligation on the community would not be so great or so perplexing. In this regard the primary duty of the community is to end the evil altogether; to provide employment, with sufficient remuneration, for all who have not sufficient private means to support them. This debt lies on the entire community, not on particular individuals or classes, and all are bound to help to redeem the debt. In this duty are involved the very unemployed themselves. They are bound to co-operate to the utmost of their ability in the effort to establish equitable conditions. If, as members of the community, they are entitled to certain consideration, as members of the community they must be prepared to share the common responsibilities.

The duties of the rulers of the State are different. Theirs is not the debt. They are liable only as trustees for the general body of citizens. Their liability can be in part discharged by measures such as have been already indicated, and also by measures for restraining social abuses which prey on the meagre resources of the poor. Not long ago intemperance was a prominent factor in creating destitution. That is now, happily, changed, but another very subtle and serious abuse has been getting established in the shape of betting, which is demoralising most classes, and is responsible for an appalling amount of destitution among the poor. No amount, however, of legislation would meet the immediate just claims of the unemployed. Normal wages are not large enough, and insurance facilities are not adequate to meet the necessities of these people. Everybody seems to be convinced that the dole is a most unsatisfactory form of relief. It is gravely criticised as pandering to laziness. There should be some means of counteracting this temptation. Some real work might be provided for those in receipt of the dole. More use might be made of the Labour Exchanges. Agriculture, the most important industry in the country, is languishing for want of labour.

After all these palliatives are employed, it still remains true that a practical solution can be reached only by mutual co-operation and good-will between the various individuals and classes which compose the community. The workers must not be induced to look on themselves as aliens in the State, a class apart, with interests distinct (and often antagonistic) from those of the body corporate proper.

VOTE OF THANKS.

In proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, the Rev. A. M. Crofts, O.P., said that, though the workers of Ireland were victims of modern industrialism, though many false prophets tried to pervert them, they had, by the grace of God, resisted the malicious influence of both one and the other. Modern States and governing powers, he said, took too much for granted. Most of them had inherited a system of social life which seemed in open opposition to the common good, and instead of providing sufficiency of life for all, caused what Father O'Kelleher had well called the appalling scandal of unemployment and that glaring contrast between excessive wealth and luxury, on the one hand, and extreme poverty and destitution on the other. It mattered not what may have given rise to these evils, a remedy must be found quickly. That was the first duty of a Catholic nation to secure that its citizens are not victims of an iniquitous system under the guise of a necessary social institution called private property.

Mr. Charles O'Connor, in seconding the vote, said that he held that the Saorstat was a Catholic nation. (Applause.) If the duties to the destitute and helpless poor could not be met by the charitable public, he said, unhesitatingly, that it was the business of the State to step in. The State had a duty to see that somebody looked after the poor, and provided for the poor. With all the changes that the State had made, the one factor remained standing—namely, that the public funds should be available for the relief of the destitute poor. There were two lines of thought current in the country as to how the destitute and poor should be provided for. One school held that the State should take over the entire responsibility, and the other that the provision should be made by local authorities under the supervision of the State. He would ask administrators to remember that in administering for the poor they were dealing with human souls and not with cattle or sheep. The State had to consider measures that would prevent destitution. The chief factors that went to create destitution were the loss of the bread-winner; unemployment and too little wages. He saw that Mr. Blythe stated that the granting of widows' and orphans' pensions would cost the State £750,000; but at present widows and orphans cost the community—the ratepayers—at least £150,000 a year. That still left £600,000 as the estimated cost of such pensions. It was a large sum, but he thought the Government ought not to be frightened by the size of the sum.

AN EVERYDAY PROBLEM.

The Bishop of Limerick, who presided, in putting the vote of thanks, which was carried, said that he would like to emphasise what Father O'Kelleher said, that, although the problem was a big one, it was not insoluble. The problem was of a kind that they were all up against every day, and was such as that they felt it was an obligation on them at least to assist in the solution of it. As a matter of fact, the State and various classes of individuals had been doing a great deal for the solution of the problem. Referring to the old workhouse system, he said that the inmates considered themselves under a sense of humiliation by the acceptance of State aid. The result was that only those went into the workhouses who saw no other prospect of remaining alive in the country. Now the State had another form of aid, entirely different, in the establishment of the old age pensions. He did not think that that form of relief was unpopular with the recipients. (Laughter.) In the old days old poor men shrank from the thought of the workhouse; but they had yet to see the man who shrank from the celebration of his 70th birthday, because he became eligible for the old age pension. Why was that? Because the man or woman who got the old age pension remained with the family. They had to wear no livery. They were free men and women, and had no brand or stigma put on them, and one would not know that they were old age pensioners by looking at them, unless their happy appearance suggested it.

One sentence of Fr. O'Kelleher's paper should be written in letters of gold—that the family life should be interfered with as little as possible—(applause)—for they knew themselves the bonds that bound the members of families together. That was one of the greatest things that they had in the country; it was the bond and fountain of Christian charity. They saw the exercise of this family bond in relation to unemployment. They knew that unemployment existed to far too great a degree; but they also knew that the members of a family shared what they possessed, and when some were employed the others were welcome to what was to be had. It would be a good thing that State aid should be given to the poor and destitute in their own homes. It was the duty of all of them to think out this problem, and not to go far afield, but examine it in their own neighbourhood and in their own streets, and see what the best remedy would be. (Applause.)

A SOLICITOR'S COSTS.

Judge Sheehy, at Monaghan Circuit Court, gave a decree for £68 19s. in favour of Mr. R. H. McCoy, solicitor, Clones, who sued his uncle, Mr. F. K. Bamford, for that amount for professional services rendered.

The defence was that the services were rendered by the plaintiff, not in his professional capacity, but as a near relative.

The judge said that he had nothing to do with the relationship existing between the parties. The claim was brought by the solicitor in his professional capacity, and he was just as much entitled to payment from a relative as from any other client.

TOURING WITH ADDINGTON.

OUR WALK INTO SPAIN.

ON BEING TOO IMPETUOUS.

(By BYRNE HACKETT.)

ADDINGTON and I agreed, before we left London, that we would have no fixed programme. We would wander where the fancy took us. That way of making a European tour has its advantages, but it has also its drawbacks. I realised that when we reached Cauterets.

I suggested Cauterets to Addington because I had read about it once in a short story. It was described as a jolly little place, with a casino and music and plenty of gaiety; but the time of our visit was ill-chosen. The season had not yet begun. We were just a week too soon. The casino and the band stand were getting their final daubs of paint. The vendors of jewellery and pretty costumes were unpacking their wares. The coloured gentlemen with their Persian carpets and picture postcards had not yet made their appearance.

"FED UP."

In our hotel all was bustle and confusion. The chambermaids, with dusters around their heads, were busy putting down carpets and putting up curtains. The waiters, in green baize aprons, were polishing up the silver and brass-ware and their knowledge of languages. Mine host was busy overhauling his cellar and counting his spoons. His fat wife was sorting out the bed linen and saying dreadful things about the moths. Yet they were all cheerful. Every room was booked. Next week they would be full. Everything pointed to a "record" season.

In less than twenty-four hours Addington was "fed up." He groused about the smell of rotten eggs. I pointed out that that came from the sulphur springs that Cauterets was famed for. This did not appease him.

"Fancy coming to a place like this right out of the season," he said. "The fact is, you Irishmen are too impetuous; you jump at things too hurriedly."

I agreed, and asked him where we should move to next. "I am going into the village to get some cigarettes," he said; "we shall talk it over when I come back."

When he returned he was quite excited. "What do you say to walking into Spain?" he asked me breathlessly.

THE COMING OF PIERRE.

Now, I hate walking at the best of times. Even when the ground is dead level I think it quite an over-rated amusement. How anyone could think, for a moment, of walking over a mountain ten or eleven thousand feet high when he could make the same journey in a perfectly good train was a mystery to me. Nevertheless, after the way I had messed up coming to Cauterets, I thought it better to keep my thoughts to myself.

"Who put that idea into your head?" I asked him.

"A guide I met in the village just now—a perfectly splendid fellow named Pierre. I shall call him in."

Pierre was a typical guide, broad-shouldered and thick-set. He was a Basque, and jolly as a sand boy. He was burned the colour of mahogany and looked as hard as nails. Much too hard, I thought, for two city-breds like Addington and myself. He outlined a trip—not too much climbing; seemed as easy as walking down Grafton street. He over-ruled all objections. There was not a moment to be lost; the snow was melting; we must start in the morning.

He took our boots to have nails put in them. "I will arrange everything," he said; "be ready at four in the morning."

He was better than his word. He arrived at half-past three. He brought knapsacks laden with food and boots laden with nails, alpenstocks and snow-glasses, and, I was glad to see, three skins of wine. He made us soap our stockings and oil our faces. He loosened a strap here and tightened another there. Then, when he had finally surveyed us, he gave the word to march, and we were off.

A SPRAY OF WINE.

Passing through the silent village, before dawn, our nails and steel-shod alpenstocks rang out with a metallic clang. Then we went through a pine forest, where the going was like a carpet. When we emerged the sun had risen. It was a wonderful sight. The snow-clad peaks stood out like silver spires. The shadows were a deep purple. How could people lie a-bed in the morning with such beauty to be seen? I made several good resolutions on the spot which I hope to carry out some day.

Right away Pierre gave us a thrill. "Our crossing to-day," he said, "will take us six hours to go up and ten minutes to come down."

Soon the little mountain path led us to a lake—a gloomy and forbidding place. Pierre brought us to a tomb-stone and silently pointed to it. It was to the memory of a young Englishman and his wife who, while on their honeymoon, had been drowned there. I have often thought since of that cruel-looking spot, the watery grave of those two young lovers.

The sun was well up now, and walking on the snow became very tiring. Also, I was hungry and thirsty. I scooped up a handful of snow and put it in my mouth. Pierre saw me and got very angry. That was one of the things mountain-climbers must not do. He took my skin of wine and squirted a thin spray on to the back of my palate. It relieved me at once.

EGGS AS APPETISERS.

"What about lunch?" I asked him. "When we get to the top," he replied.

That was no good to me. I began digging in my knapsack and found a hard-boiled egg. Indeed, in the next hour I had eaten six. The air must have been good. A month before they would have given me violent indigestion; now they only whetted my appetite.

On and on we went. After what seemed like an eternity, the other two stopped. They were standing facing one another with legs outstretched. They asked me to do likewise. "Now," said Pierre, "we have reached our highest point, and you have one leg in France and the other in Spain."

Pierre had arranged an excellent lunch, but he was annoyed with the landlord, who had forgotten to pack the hard-boiled eggs. I thought that a rest would be nice after lunch, but Pierre pointed to some clouds, and said that we must be off at once. Soon a grey vapourish mist enveloped us. We turned up our coat-collars and pulled our caps over our eyes. In a few moments it became quite cold, and we were saturated. Pierre yelled to us to keep close to him. His voice seemed to come from a great distance. When we were out in the sunshine again he smilingly said: "Nothing is more dangerous than to be caught in a mountain fog."

Then came the glorious slide down thousands of feet. It was the best thing of the day, and also it brought us so much nearer to our destination. As we approached a mountain stream we saw a man regarding us intently—a dark man with a brightly-coloured handkerchief knotted around his forehead. Pierre shouted to him, but he disappeared. "We are coming to a farm house now," said Pierre; "but we cannot stop there. It has an evil reputation. Our destination is ten kilometres farther on."

Addington had begun to limp. His face was drawn and haggard. I was dead beat. Pierre's cheerfulness had deserted him. He took Addington's knapsack and tried to encourage him. We flopped on a seat outside the door.

"Go in and make arrangements for the night," I said to Pierre. He returned to say that there was no room. "I'll make an effort," said Addington. "You'll do nothing of the kind," I said; "whatever they say, and whatever it costs, we stay here to-night."

Pierre arranged it finally. As we crossed the threshold Addington smiled wanly. "I'm sorry, old chap, for that remark I made about jumping at things. It seems that other people can be too impetuous as well as the Irish."

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Peter Pan as a Book : The Orionids : Umbrellas in Theatres : Old Dublin. Civic Guards in Rome : Peer Gynt in Dublin : John Burns. A Border Anomaly : "Friendlies."

Trafalgar Day.

Nelson's Column in London will be decorated to-morrow in honour of Trafalgar Day, but it is doubtful if the anniversary will be quite so prettily celebrated as it was by a little hen robin one hundred and ten years ago. Early in October 1818, a bird was constantly seen flitting about near the Trafalgar, a one hundred gun battleship then building at Chatham in commemoration of Nelson's crowning victory. At last her movements were closely watched, and she was found to have built a nest aboard the Trafalgar. To give completeness to the story, a first egg was found in the nest on October 21.

The Hawthorn Tree.

The "Branch of Hawthorn Tree" is the title of the beautiful volume of Mr. Monk Gibbon's poems just issued by the Gray Hound Press. The young poet who carried off the Tailteann award this year is particularly fortunate in his publisher. It has always seemed to me that a volume of verse, unlike fiction or any other literary work, should receive the same care in production that one gives to the framing of a picture. This has been done for the author. The decorator of the book, Picart le Doux, the French artist, is well known as the illustrator of Verlaine's poetry and other publications. Each poem in Mr. Gibbon's new volume has a title illustration, and the colouring has all been done by hand in Paris.

Pictures From The Mountain.

The production of "Peer Gynt" for the first time in Dublin by the Gate Theatre has brought much interesting discussion on this delightfully fantastic, and by far the happiest plays of the great Norwegian poet. Ibsen says that Peer Gynt was a real person who lived at Gudbransal at the close of the last century. His nomadic and wild existence is immortalised in the Norwegian fairy tales by Asbjorsens, in his tales called "Pictures from the Mountains." The play was written away in sunny Italy, after the Storthing, delighted by the success of Ibsen's "Brand," awarded the author a pension of £90 per annum, which "relieved him from anxiety," and permitted him to live modestly and comfortably in Sorrento. Here he wrote "Peer Gynt," putting much of himself into the character of Peer, who again pokes fun at the national characteristics and failings of the Norwegian people.

The Studio Atmosphere.

MR. H. EDWARDS.

The attempt being made to create the studio atmosphere in Dublin by the Gate Theatre has already been successful in other cities, where a kind of literary Forum has been established. The very fine production which Mr. Hilton Edwards is giving is a three months' experiment. The ambitious undertaking of such a play as "Peer Gynt" for an opening at the Peacock Theatre was rather daring, as it is acknowledged one of the most difficult of Ibsen's plays to produce. This is what probably tempted the producer, who has been ably assisted by a little band of enthusiasts who are certainly imbued with the studio spirit, and deserve the support which is growing around them.

When "Peer Gynt" was first given in Paris Mr. George Bernard Shaw said with some indignation: "Now the humiliation of the English stage is complete. Paris produces 'Peer Gynt' before London." As a matter of fact, the play was first produced in the English language in Chicago. This is Dublin's first chance of seeing "Peer Gynt." It will be continued at the Peacock Theatre for another week, when the "Hairy Ape," by Eugene O'Neill, will be played.

An Ancient Landmark.

Now that Jerpoint Abbey is being restored by the Board of Works, I should like to draw attention to the state of the ruins at Lamb Alley, Cornmarket. I understand these are the remains of an old prison which at one time formed part of the city wall, and some years ago were enclosed by a neat iron railing. It is greatly to be regretted that no inscription was placed there at the time to tell the interested or curious passer-by the story of this fragment of Dublin's past. The railings are now broken, the enclosure is a dumping ground for banana skins, orange peels, etc., but the crowning indignity is added by the bill-sticker who regularly pastes his poster on the most prominent part of the old wall. A recent bill had the impudence to display incongruously in large letters the word "Patriotism."

I suppose "what's everybody's business is nobody's business," but I think the powers that be should help to prevent the further contemptuous treatment of this "ancient landmark which our fathers have set."

Sir Frank Dicksee's Successor.

Had Sir Frank Dicksee lived until the 27th of November next, which would have been his seventy-fifth birthday, his resignation from the Presidency of the Royal Academy would have been automatic. Rumour has been busy for some time past with the names of several well-known artists as possible successors.

I now hear that Sir William Llewellyn, K.C.V.O., R.A., is to be the new P.R.A. While the late President was famous as a painter, who chose for his brush idyllic or symbolic subjects (of which "Paolo and Francesca" and "The Confession" were two of the best examples), his successor is noted mostly as a portrait painter. His portraits of Royalty and of well-known people have won him fame, and one of his best works is the State portrait of Her Majesty Queen Mary.

"Peter Pan" Becomes a Book.

SIR J. BARRIE.

At last "Peter Pan" is to be given to the world as a book. Thousands of readers have waited in expectancy, hoping every year that they might have the pleasure of reading a play that seems destined for immortality. Now at last the play is anonunced "for immediate publication." Several books have been published in which the play is used as the basis for a fairy tale, usually illustrated by prominent artists, but now the public is to have the authentic text of Sir James Barrie himself. So, in a sense, the elfin Peter may be said to be growing up.

Nearly twenty-four years have passed since "Peter Pan" was first staged at the Duke of York's Theatre in London, and since that time an almost continuous flow of books about "the boy who wouldn't grow up" have come from English publishing houses. So insistent has been the public demand and so keen the public interest that even "Peter Pan Painting Books," "Peter Pan Picture Books," and a "Peter Pan Alphabet," have found a ready sale. But none of these, and some of them have been exceedingly good, can be quite what Sir James Barrie himself intended. So thousands will rejoice that the author's own text will soon be available.

An interesting thing about "Peter Pan" for Irish readers, and one that serves as a useful remembrancer on occasions, is that Peter and the Abbey Theatre are virtually the same age. They both made their first appeal to the attention of the public within the Christmas week of 1904; and there are people who think that the theatre has an even closer connection with the immortal boy. But that, of course, is a matter of critical opinion in an extreme form, and whether it be shared or not will in no way lessen the interest with which the publication of the play may be anticipated.

Theatre Umbrella Service.

Generally when the lights are lowered and the screen appears during a matinée performance of a London theatre, it indicates the appearance of some particularly important item of news. The other day, nearing the end of the performance, at the London Coliseum, the following announcement was thrown on the screen:—

"It is a wet afternoon. Umbrellas may be obtained from the cloakroom attendants. Hire, 6d. Deposit, 4s. 6d.—5s."

Although we were disappointed in not getting our news item, this facility was greatly appreciated, and met with an immediate response.

"Friendlies."

The hockey and football season, in full swing once more, leads on to reflect on the curious practice of calling a match, other than a cup or league match, a "friendly." Does this imply that the other matches are "unfriendly?" If so, they would resemble the mediæval tournaments, which, although not supposed to be carried out in a hostile spirit, usually resulted in many killed and wounded, and, as we learn from stories like "Ivanhoe," were often the medium for private revenge. Fortunately, exercises are not taken so seriously nowadays. In any case, this criticism of the word "friendly" is a purely destructive one—the difficulty would be to find an alternative name.

Health and Cleanliness.

We are all familiar with the long, snake-like cars used for the cleansing of Dublin streets, but a friend of mine, who has been splashed with thick mud from head to toe by one of these Juggernauts, wishes to know if the individual citizen is expected to co-operate with the Commissioners by carrying off his quota of the city's filth in this way.

Personally I have often wondered why these cars are busiest during the hours devoted to Dublin's midday meal. Thousands of workers may be seen making wild rushes along narrow by-ways vainly endeavouring to avoid the fog of dust and the tangible barricade of smell issuing from these green-painted monsters.

Perhaps the Commissioners and the Minister for Health might talk the matter over at luncheon some day, and as an appetiser I would suggest a tour of inspection in streets where the dustbins are being emptied almost into the mouths of the passers-by.

The Biter Badly Bitten.

There is a rather good story going the rounds of the motoring community at present. A motorist whose car unfortunately suffers from that obnoxious complaint, a chronic leaky radiator, carries his spare tin full of water. Quite recently he took a party of friends for a picnic, and, having left the car by the roadside, they enjoyed their tea under the trees some distance away. At dusk they moved away and were settling down comfortably for the return journey when they espied another motorist apparently in distress. With true chivalry they pulled up and alighted with offers of help.

While one thing after another was being tested, plugs, mag. and carburettor, the stranded motorist amused himself by telling how he had cutely obtained a free fill of petrol from a spare tin on a car he had passed. As the picnic party had already discovered that their spare water supply had disappeared, need I add that the last the troubled motorist saw of them was the back number plate, as their cheery tail light disappeared in the distance, leaving him to chew the cud of his bitter reflections.

Another Border Absurdity.

A more real example of the difficulties and absurdities of the border—and incidentally a striking illustration of the "boomerang" effect of import tariffs—reached me last week from a firm of Free State 'bus owners who are on the point of opening up a new service between Northern Ireland and the Saorstát. Some of the 'bus bodies to be employed, it appears, were made in Dublin, and, therefore, behind the Free State tariff wall.

When these bodies reach the border their owners, it now appears, will have to hand over from £150 to £200 each to the Northern Ireland Customs officers. Other bodies, built in England, and on which Free State import tariffs have been paid, did not cost any more than the Irish-built specimens. But these British built bodies will be allowed into Northern Ireland free of duty. The whole thing sounds incredible, but it is true. Yet Free State builders of motor bodies are asking that the present import duty of about twenty per cent. should be more than doubled.

"Old Dublin."

Nowadays when one reads every day of new inventions to save labour by means of machinery, and particularly by the use of electricity, it is difficult to be astonished at each new product. Reading recently a pamphlet published some fifty years ago and entitled "Old Dublin," I found an interesting and amusing paragraph. The author was describing a visit to the locality of Mary's Abbey and finished up his day with an inspection of the flour mills of Messrs. Boland, concerning which he says:—

"The Messrs. Boland are in possession of a strange and, I believe, unique "Lift," by aid of which flour is conveyed from below to a store capable of holding a thousand tons, situate twenty-three feet above the ground. This consists of a couple of inclines, horses and drays. It is curious to observe elephantine horses yoked to waggons containing a ton and a quarter, literally walking up stairs! The larger incline is one hundred feet in length, with a rise of one in ten; the smaller is twenty-five feet, with a similar rise. The horses are prevented from slipping by sleeper-like blocks of timber, having the appearance of steps of stairs, which are placed parallel to each other along the track."

The author comments that "St. Mary's Abbey contains wonders of the present day as well as of the long past."

John Burns.

MR. JOHN BURNS.

To-day brings a 70th birthday to the Right Hon. John Burns, the first working-man to attain cabinet rank in the Mother of Parliaments.

Born in London, of Scottish parentage, he began life as an engineer, soon began to interest himself in politics, came to the front as a Labour leader in the Trafalgar square riots, when he was arrested, and entered Parliament for Battersea in 1892. He accepted office as President of the Local Government Board on the formation of Campbell-Bannerman's Government in 1905, and in 1914 transferred to the Board of Trade, but resigned, in company with Lord Morley, on the outbreak of the war.

Throughout life "Honest John" has enjoyed exceptionally good health, which he attributes largely to his former prowess as a cricketer. Nowadays he spends most of his time among his books, of which he has accumulated a wonderful collection in his modest home in his old constituency.

The Orionids.

This is the time of the year when the Orionids may be expected to make their appearance, these meteors being usually most numerous on the nights of October 20 and 21. Though moonlight will not interfere with the observation of the shower, it is unlikely that the display will attain to any considerable strength. The radiant, which is situated in the northern part of the constellation Orion, whence these shooting stars take their name, ought to furnish bright meteors on October 21 during the hours preceding midnight. There are some maxima also on the morning of October 23.

The most intense meteoric activity of the present month is not associated with the Orionid period, but occurs much later, the largest maximum becoming due about 5.30 o'clock on the morning of October 29. There is also great meteoric activity on the evening of October 30, with maxima in the early afternoon and during the hours immediately preceding and following midnight.

Host of the Civic Guards.

The Rev. John Hagan, D.D., the Rector of the Irish College at Rome, who received the party of the Irish Civic Guards who, under the leadership of General O'Duffy, are making a pilgrimage to Rome, received his early education at the Holy Cross College at Clonliffe before going to the Irish and Propaganda Colleges at Rome.

Becoming a priest in 1899, when 26 years of age, he served as curate in the Diocese of Dublin until his appointment as Vice-Rector of the Irish College at Rome in 1904. He proved very successful in that capacity, and in 1920 was appointed to his present position as Rector.

Father Hagan is a member of the Supreme Council of the Propaganda of the Faith, and is Postulator in the cause of the Irish martyrs. He has been a frequent contributor on Roman Catholic matters to various leading periodicals.

OBITUARY.

MR. PERCEVAL GAUSSEN, K.C.

We regret to announce that Mr. Perceval David Campbell Gaussen, K.C., died yesterday at his residence, Clifton, Monkstown, County Dublin, aged sixty-six years. Mr. Gaussen was one of the most popular members of the Irish Bar. He had a brilliant career at Dublin University, where he was Wray Prizeman in Logics and Ethics, and graduated with a Senior Moderatorship in Mental and Moral Philosophy in 1884. He was an ex-President of the University Philosophical Society. Called to the Bar in 1885, he took silk in 1909. Mr. Gaussen was Senior Crown Counsel for County Cavan, and was a Justice of the Peace for the Counties of Londonderry, Antrim and Tyrone. In 1908 he married Letitia Elizabeth, daughter of the Rev. J. Wilson, Rector of Tyholland, County Monaghan, by whom he had one daughter.

THE HUMANITY OF BELLS.

STRANGE WHIMS OF CHURCH MONSTERS.

ALWAYS GIVING TROUBLE.

(By ROGER CARNFORTH.)

FEW people imagine that there is either rhyme or reason in the convention which calls the liner a lady and always gives masculine names to bells. Yet it is not generally realised that bells are curiously human and almost feminine in their wilfulness. We might call a bell "Big Ben" or "Great Peter," but it would be far more appropriate to call it "Big Bessie" or "Wilful Winifred." Even the founders do not know how a bell will behave, or what it may do next.

For instance, "Great Peter" in York Minster is not proving to be the strong, silent male that the name implies, but a clatterbox. At one time it required as many as forty men to make this eleven-ton Bourdon bell start. Now it has been recast and rehung, and one man is sufficient; but, unfortunately, "Great Peter," being once started, does not know when to stop. He cannot strike the hour without running on for several minutes. It is quite impossible for the citizens of York to take their time from the stroke of the bell. He recently struck twelve, and then continued to strike one hundred and fifty!

The strange thing is that, even as a baby, "Great Peter" proved disappointing. The generous people of York subscribed two thousand pounds nearly eighty years ago, and at that time the bell was a marvel of industry. Seventeen tons of metal were melted for it, and were run into the mould in seven minutes and a half. It took fourteen days in cooling before the clay mould was removed from it, and then it was found that nothing but excessive man power would make "Great Peter" speak. Until a short while ago the bell had usually to be left silent, but now that Peter has been in the foundry beauty-parlour and has been rehung on ball bearings, the fault is that he talks too much.

CHANGE OF SEX.

One of the few bells to receive a feminine name was "Mary" of Oxford, and thereby hangs a tale which serves to illustrate what "strange critters" bells are. The name was a compliment to a queen, and at the time this famous seven-ton bell in the gate tower of Christchurch was so sweet that the Vice-Chancellor waxed lyrical in praise.

"Oh, delicate and sweet harmony!" he said after naming the bell. "Oh, beautiful Mary! How musically she sounds! How strangely she pleaseth the ear!" Later the bell was recast, and, presumably, had changed sex in the process. It became "Tom" of Oxford, and, lo, the voice was changed, too. It was unpleasantly hoarse and masculine.

"Big Ben" has always been a source of trouble. Coming from his northern foundry, he boomed just a few times over London, and then cracked. Thereupon he was brought down into Westminster Palace Yard for execution. An iron ball weighing twenty-four hundred weight was raised thirty feet in the air and then dropped on the bell. In this way "Big Ben" was broken into two great pieces, and taken back to a foundry to be recast; but even when he was restored to his place over Parliament he refused to give satisfaction, and has never done so.

BIGGEST ON EARTH.

In a few weeks' time the biggest bell on earth will be heard, and there is naturally a lot of speculation as to how it will behave. This is the Bourdon which is being hung in the Park evenue Baptist church in New York. It will probably be popularly called "Big John"; for it is one of the wonderful carillon to form the Rockefeller Memorial in the church of which Dr. Fosdick is pastor. It is a British bell, cast in a famous Croydon foundry, and has required 78,400 pounds of metal. Every detail in this carillon has been sent out from England, and British bell experts recently sailed to complete the task of placing the mammoth bell in position. It will be a dramatic moment when "Big John" is set going for the first time; for there has never yet been a great bell whose behaviour could be predicted with certainty.

There is one curious myth about bells which is always perpetuated by authors of sentimental ballads. They love to sing of "those silver bells," and, consequently, the public has fondly imagined that the presence of silver is largely responsible for the music. Experts know that, when it comes to making big bells, silver would be impossible. The great bell of Rouen Cathedral was always called the "Silver Bell," but, when it was broken up to make cannon for the French Revolution, not a trace of silver was found. Copper, brass, zinc, and iron form the usual component metals.

Some bells may be overworked, but Britain possesses the laziest one in the world. This is the famous great bell of St. Paul's Cathedral. It is rung only on the death of a member of the Royal Family, a Bishop of the Diocese, a Dean of the Cathedral, or a Lord Mayor of London. Yet even this bell has been found to have its faults; experts have declared that it has no distinct note.

SICKNESS BENEFITS.

MEDICAL CERTIFICATION IN THE FREE STATE.

The following statement was issued last night by Mr. T. Hennessy, F.,R.C.S.I., Irish Medical Secretary, British Medical Association:—

Medical practitioners, who are medical certifiers for sickness benefits under the National Health Insurance Acts, in the counties of Cavan, Cork, Kilkenny, Limerick, Tipperary (S.R.), Wexford and Wicklow, have declared against the decision of the National Health Commission to change the area of the pool for payment of certification from the dispensary district to the county. They have, however, expressed their readiness to adhere to the agreement that they entered into in 1915 with the National Health Commission, which provided the dispensary district as the area of the pool for rural districts and urban areas with a population of less than 10,000.

The main objection to the change of the pool area is that the big majority of the medical certifiers would have the capitation fee of insured persons for medical certification reduced from 2s. 8d. and 2s. 3d. to as low as 9d. This reduction would, however, mean a very substantial increase in the capitation fees of insured persons who are certified by those doctors whom the National Health Commission and the approved societies charge with issuing an abnormally high number of certificates.

In the latter circumstances the decision of the National Health Commission to change the area of the pool is inexplicable, particularly as it was always common ground between the National Health Commission and the Irish Medical Committee that a medical certifier should not be encouraged to issue certificates that would mean an increase in the agreed capitation fee attached to those insured persons whom he was treating, and for whom he was liable to issue medical certificates. So far, no county, with the exception of Clare, has signified its willingness to work the county pool, and it appears that Clare has done so in the absence of figures to show the undesirable effect of the change.

NAPOLEON IN HISTORY AND LEGEND.

SAD END OF THE FAIRY TALE.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Philip Guedalla concluded his series of Lady Ardilaun lectures on "Napoleon and His Legend," given in Alexandra College, Dublin. "The Second Empire: 1851-1870" was the title of the concluding lecture.

Mr. Guedalla said:—We have had, for the first part of our way, a very remarkable travelling companion, who took us along the road as far as the year 1821, when he died. We have now, in the last few years, had with us what is, in my judgment, a still more interesting travelling companion, the more interesting, perhaps, because his is a less familiar figure. To anyone of modern ideas he is a much more sympathetic figure—Louis Napoleon—more sympathetic, because I am sure any of us would find an hour in his company delightful, and I think that twenty seconds with Napoleon I. would be not only intolerable, but shattering in the extreme.

We have in Louis Napoleon a man much more of our own flesh and blood, more of our own size and weight, a man who does not assume that war is a good thing in itself; he takes more interest in the condition of his people otherwise than as mere food for the guns of his enemies. He has had a more intelligent training than that which falls to the lot of most established royalties; he really had an education, he really saw the world, met men and women as equals, and had had a life not without adventure. He was a man very much alone in the world, not very prepossessing in appearance, dull-eyed, and very silent. He had one unswerving faith—a belief in something he sometimes called his destiny and sometimes his star, a belief as unshakeable as that of some figure of the mediæval ages in his faith that he would become Emperor of the French.

'L'IDEE NAPOLEONNE."

The most important of his writings on the Napoleonic legend in its after political effects was written during his first residence in London—"L'Idée Napoleonne." In that you will find the doctrine of St. Helena set out in its fullest form—peace, democracy and nationalism for everybody; the exposition of the political creed of Bonapartism set out by the man who lived to carry it into effect. From it we learn how the European war was forced on the Emperor by an impetuous public opinion, and get some sort of sketch of his beneficence in France and outside France in his efforts for a united Italy, and bright prospects for Germany and Poland—a promise that behind the glory of his armies there would be a great and lasting glory for his people.

The Revolution of 1848 was probably the most interesting of European revolutions. It contained almost all the elements possible to a revolution—political, social and economic. It was a revolution of the middle classes and the lower classes. It broke out purely by chance. There was a certain amount of rioting going on about a political question in which people were not very much interested. A crowd went roaring down a street in Paris on their way to tell the Minister in the Foreign Office precisely what they thought of him. Infantry were guarding the Foreign Office under a bad-tempered Corsican sergeant—another of these bad-tempered Corsicans. The leader of the mob was shot by the sergeant, and the troops fired a volley into the crowd. That accident started the Revolution of 1848, ended the Orleanist monarchy, sent the last Bourbon King out of France, and started the rather precarious reign of the Second Republic. The news came to Louis Napoleon, and he left for Paris to see what could be got. The Government heard of his arrival, and asked him to go home. He went home, having made himself known as a decent, orderly man to the people of Paris. On his return he found London rather unsettled owing to an expected rising of the Chartists. He offered his services, and paraded a beat near Waterloo Bridge as a special constable, because, he said, order must be kept in revolutions.

A SURPRISING THING.

During the early weeks and months of 1848 Bonapartist propaganda was intensified in France. All Louis Napoleon's friends, old soldiers and heroes who remained from his descents on Boulogne and Strasburg, began to excite public opinion. Sitting at home in London he was beginning to become a name to two sets of people: the decent Paris tradesmen who objected to perpetual revolution saw in him a guarantee of firm government; the Paris workmen saw in him a hope for Socialism; he had written a pamphlet on the abolition of unemployment. That a prince and a pretender had heard there was a working class was a very surprising thing at that date.

He was elected one of the deputies for Paris, came over, and took his seat. Then he stood for the Presidency of the Republic, and he got in because the only other candidate who really counted, a very stiff military person, had made his name by his ruthless suppression of the revolution in June, 1848, and was remembered as a man who had won his greatest victory over Frenchmen, which rather diminished his chances.

From 1848 to 1850 Louis Napoleon went about, living a perfectly blameless life, a rather harmless figure, not a great dictator. But whilst going up and down the country opening railways—and that was the great year of railway building in France—he was taking steps, and his friends were taking still more effective steps, to cultivate the friendship of one body of men for whom he had a unique appeal—the French Army. It was not a very easy thing for a French soldier not to respond to the friendship of a man named Napoleon. There was beginning to be a sort of bond between Napoleon and the army.

CROWNING THE LEGEND.

Then the Parliament got itself into a struggle with its President. He had been elected President in 1848. As the law stood, he was bound to retire in 1852. As his name was Napoleon he did not want to retire. He proposed to remain President of the French Republic, if not something more. There was a vague feeling that something dreadful was going to happen in 1852; perhaps, a Socialist rising. They rather turned towards the idea of a strong President called Napoleon, with the Army by his side. For a short time Parliament and President manœuvred for position. It was never known which was going to arrest the other. There was some talk of sending Napoleon to Vincennes. Then the members of Parliament became extraordinarily frightened for fear the President would run them in.

The Army was on the President's side. The first step was to knock out Parliament. In the coup d'etat, the Opposition leaders were all arrested in bed, and that was the end of purely parliamentary government in France for some time. He then proceeded to shape the Republic into the first Napoleonic phase; he turned it into a Consulate. There was a new Constitution, making him President for ten years. During the year 1852 he became more and more the Emperor; he was prayed for in the churches, his name was on the coins. The portraits of Napoleon in the art galleries in Versailles began to be labelled Napoleon the First.

In due course the Senate asked him to overcome his natural prejudices against becoming the Emperor, and he became the Emperor. Seven millions of a total poll of eight millions in France voted for him, because, as Gil Blas said, "the peasant France wanted to crown his legend."

FROM THRONE TO EXILE.

The effect of all this on Louis Napoleon was very curious. From the moment he became Emperor he seemed to lose his direction. His one guiding star up to that moment had been his determination to become Emperor of France. In many situations during the next few years he did not seem to know what to do next. I suspect there is a key to that odd check. He believed he would become Emperor. He saw that apparently impossible thing happen. He saw France surge to the polls to bring him into power after the overthrow of a Monarchy and a Republic. He emerged from that amazing experience, thinking that all events are fated: that there is a destiny which no man can alter, which directs the course of events; that nothing could prevent his becoming Emperor of France. A very paralysing reflection: a man who believes events are fated will drift against the stream; he will not be very much given to making plans, or thrusting himself across the stream. Many of his speeches at that time show that that was very much his frame of mind.

He reigned for eighteen years, and in 1870 he was in exile again, and worse, a prisoner of war, and he died in exile. One wonders at the end of the story whether it was all a failure. The first eight years had been an age of brilliance; everything seemed to come right for the Emperor. Even the Crimean War suited the book of the new Empire; it enabled the new government, very much concerned to secure the favour of religious opinion in France, to take the attitude of going to war in defence of certain Roman Catholic rights against certain Greek rights.

THE GROWING SHADOW.

In 1853 he married Eugenie; a boy was born to them in 1856. Then his eyes turned in the direction of Italy. He was honest in his ideas about Italian nationalism; he had fought for it in 1831. In 1858 a band of brave, but misguided, Italians endeavoured to draw his attention to the wrongs of their country, as he was on his way to the opera, by throwing a bomb at him. It is very creditable to his Italian sympathies that they did not die from the shock. He did not do all the Italians hoped he would do, and they called him a traitor, but the foundations of modern Italy were well laid in 1859.

1860 to 1870 was an age of decline; the pace gradually seems to slow down. . . . During the sixties things seemed to go wrong. He got dragged into a good deal of stupidity—into an attempt to make an Austrian Archduke Emperor of Mexico.

But there was a longer and blacker shadow than that lying across the Empire—the shadow of Prussia climbing into European prominence. In 1864 she stole two Danish duchies; in 1866 she struck at the Austrian Empire. Napoleon III., the chief figure of Europe, did nothing. The world waited for him to speak; but he said nothing. In 1866 he was ill; a great deal of the brightness of the Second Empire began to be dimmed by the rising light of Prussia. France began to get restless, and the Emperor to become unpopular.

Then he made a real step forward in his attempt to build a liberal empire. But it was not fated to succeed, because in the year 1870 stupid French diplomacy made it possible for Bismarck to have his third war—war with France. Was it all a failure? I do not think it was. France was saved from anarchy and irreligion for eighteen years: that was something. It did not last because Louis Napoleon was a better man than his uncle; it did not last because he believed in nationalism, because he believed that nations should be allowed to govern themselves. He had permitted and encouraged Germany to unite and make itself a strong and united Germany. It was a more honourable failure than a failure of insincerity; he believed in the fairy tale of Bonapartism. He would have had a much easier life if he had never tried to help Italy or to help Prussia. If he had been his uncle, he would have wiped Prussia off the map in 1864 when they crossed into Jutland, or again in 1866. He did not, because he believed in Napoleonic ideas. That is an honest failure, and you know what the end was. We see him at Sedan, waiting for death. . . But that was not quite the end. There was a spell of captivity in a German palace, a year or two of gentle suburban exile in England.

A BRAVE END.

The end, when it came, was a brave end also. There was very little hope of a man in his state of health again becoming Emperor of France; but his son might. Late in 1872 he made the last plan of his long and contriving life. He wanted to slip over to Switzerland and get into Savoy, and show himself to his troops. He was an ill man, hardly able to sit on a horse. He tested his strength and found it was not sufficient. You cannot make a coup d'état sitting in a cab at the head of your troops; you have got to sit on a horse. He sent for a doctor, and had an operation; it was a failure, and he died. And that was the end of the fairy tale, and I am sorry it has so sad an end.

Professor Joly, who presided, thanked Mr. Guedalla for his most enjoyable and vivifying course of lectures, and showed the audience a passport, dated 1781, bearing the signature of Talleyrand, which had been the property of one of the Lansdowne family.

DUBLIN SKETCHING CLUB.

EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS.

The Dublin Sketching Club will open its annual Exhibition at the Mills' Hall, Merrion Row, on Monday next. The club was formed in 1874 for the purpose of bringing together artists, amateurs and others interested in art, and an Exhibition is held every year. All the works in this, the fifty-fourth Exhibition, are contributed by members of the club. They number a couple of hundred.

Many old-time members are strongly in evidence, foremost among whom comes Mr. Alexander Williams, who has preserved an unbroken association with the club since its inception. He has hung a half-dozen paintings—done mainly in the West—all bearing the touch that has won him such wide recognition. His intimate knowledge of the varying moods of Connemara and the West of Ireland is reflected in the studies of "Glendary, Achill Sound" (55 A), and two paintings at Clare Island (Nos. 41 and 65)—the one showing the bleakness of the late autumn and the other revealing the freshness and colour of the early summer. His treatment of Lough Gill (50) also is full of the beauty of that delightful spot. Mr. Alexander Colles, another members whose works are full of charm, has translated to canvas something of the wild grandeur of Glenmalure in Nos. 54 and 60. He has also a lovely painting of the Dargle River, County Wicklow (149). Henry Moss is always interesting, and in this collection he has three canvases which will attract attention. His "Souvenir of Italy" (58) and "September, Howth" (158) are strongly contrasted, but each preserves the natural atmosphere and colour of its subject.

In water-colours there are some interesting works from Lancelot Bayly, of which "Farm at Kilmacanogue" (55) is outstanding by reason of its greater strength. F. Severne MacKenna continues to bear out the promise of achievement his earlier efforts held, and a group of water-colours from him will find much favour. Nos. 85 and 91, studies in Scotland, are well treated, though in these and in his farm and cottage scenes—for instance 198—the lines show just a suggestion of too much care.

There is plenty of warmth in A. McGoogan's painting, whether it be in "Pals" (127), "The Blind Pedlar" (139), or "The Gale, Seapoint" (160). Mrs. Eileen Murray shows a number of her typical little impressions, of which "The Fisherman's Home" (178) is the chief.

Studies in still life form a fair proportion of the collection, and some of the work in this branch is excellent. Kathleen S. Going has some splendid results. "Eve's Temptation" (186) is distinguished by the excellent general treatment of the apples and the Chinese background. Another neat study is that of Chrysanthemums (124). Mauve Violas in a Chinese Jar (128) has provided Mrs. K. Marescaux with a subject which she has handled well. Miss H. Yates also has a very happy study of still life in No. 78, whilst her portrait studies, of which she has three, show great promise.

The exhibition will open on Monday next at 10.30, and will continue for a month.

Viscount Craigavon, the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, who is a Colonel in the Division, presided at the annual dinner in Belfast last night of the 36th Ulster Division of the Officers (Old Comrades) Association.

The Duke of Abercorn, the Governor of Northern Ireland, was the guest of honour, and read a telegram from the King, sent in response to one expressing on behalf of the officers their sentiments of loyalty. It was as follows:—"I have read with much pleasure the message of loyal greeting you have sent me from the officers of the 36th Ulster Division, which I much appreciate. YESTERDAY IN DAIL EIREANN.

UNITED UNDER THE FLAG OF COMPULSORY IRISH.

FIANNA FAIL RALLIES TO THE GOVERNMENT SIDE.

THE PAUL PRY BROTHERHOOD OF THE CENSORSHIP.

Dail Eireann continued the discussion of the Censorship of Publications Bill yesterday. Several Fianna Fail members spoke in favour of the measure.

Mr. Anthony, Labour member for Cork, was afraid that the bill might produce a number of groups of persons of the "Nosey Parker" type. He warned the Government against going too far with prohibition.

The debate was adjourned.

Sharp diversity of opinion even among supporters of the Government was revealed in the debate on the second reading of the Legal Practitioners (Qualification) Bill, which provides that future members of the legal profession "shall possess a competent knowledge of the Irish language."

The second reading was moved by Mr. Martin Conlan, the Government representative for Roscommon, and supported by Mr. Blythe and Mr. McFadden, who sits on the Government benches for Donegal. The policy of the measure was strongly criticised by Major Cooper, the Government representative for Dublin County, whose viewpoint was endorsed by Captain Redmond (National League) and Mr. John Good (Independent).

It was obvious that Fianna Fail would vote wholeheartedly for the bill. Mr. Anthony supported it in the hope of a full discussion on the whole educational position as effected by the Irish language. Working-class children, he said, were suffering severely because some young people were in too great a hurry in the matter of furthering the language. They were being sacrificed educationally.

EVILS IN THE TRAIL OF PROHIBITION.

LABOUR MEMBER WARNS THE GOVERNMENT.

At the sitting of Dail Eireann yesterday morning the debate on the Second Reading of the Censorship of Publications Bill was resumed.

Mr. J. J. BYRNE (Govt., Dublin) said that the principles contained in the bill were such as no fair-minded man could object to. Foreign newspapers, which obtained a big circulation by means of the vile matter they contained, were a danger to the morals of the young people, and this bill was designed expressly to check the operations of the foreign Press. It was suggested that it would be better to leave books alone, but he suggested that the Minister should stand firm on the section dealing with books as well as that relating to newspapers. There were books that should not come under the operations of the bill, but there were books like Gustave Flaubert's "Sapho" and Fielding's "Tom Jones" that should not be permitted in this Christian country.

Mr. O'HANLON (Ind., Co. Cavan) congratulated the Minister on the introduction of the bill.

Mrs. COLLINS-O'DRISCOLL (Govt., Dublin, North) expressed the hope that this bill would go through the House in such a way that it would be an efficient instrument to combat the evil which everyone deplored.

Mr. D. BUCKLEY (F.F., Kildare) said that more harm was done by the cheap novels that came into this country by the ton than by newspapers. These novels were bought principally by the young girls of the country, and went into every cabin.

THE HIGHER MORALITY.

Mr. HASLETT (Ind., Monaghan) said that the bill was a step in the right direction, in so far as it set out to suppress evil literature and what was obscene and indecent. If they were led away further into other realms he could give only qualified support to the measure. The realm of higher morality belonged to another educational department, which should see to the training of the youth of the country.

Mr. FLINN (Fianna Fail, Cork Borough) said that in attempting to kill that hydra-headed evil they might fail to kill that evil and over-reach themselves and leave themselves open to attack. There was unanimous agreement in the House and outside that a certain particular evil should be stopped, ruthlessly. In so far as the bill would confine itself definitely to that issue—to clear out garbage and suppress pornographic literature of all kinds—so far as that was so it would have the unhesitating support of the whole House. The difficulty had been that people had to some extent misunderstood the bill. If the bill was as stated by the Minister it would receive general support, but the draft of the measure was something different.

"We start in this country in sexual matters," said Mr. Flinn, "with one enormous advantage, and that is that the majority of the people are living on the lands, close to natural phenomena, and they know those facts which in cities, to many people less fortunately situated, are the subject of prurient curiosity." He believed that morally and physically the country was healthy and sound.

"Thank Heaven," said Mr. Flinn, "there are very few people in this country who would deprave the name of education to the extent of being in any way against the central principle of the bill."

"FOR PRIVATE CIRCULATION."

Mr. S. BRADY (Fianna Fail, Dublin Co.) said that those people who had been making fortunes out of evil literature had found it sufficiently profitable to enable them to employ great lawyers to help them to evade the law. To meet that, he thought it would be advisable that the Minister should insert a clause in the bill making it illegal to advertise or "write up" any of the banned literature. They should make provision to control advertisements in the Irish editions of those papers. There was also the possibility that a certain paper or periodical would be put on the Black List, and, as happened with political papers in the past, when censored, they would come out the following week under a different title. Some provision should be inserted to prevent that.

He noticed that throughout the bill they were dealing with the importation of books for "sale or distribution," but he thought it would be well that the Minister should make it illegal to keep such books without licence. He could foresee people bringing banned books into the country and handing them round amongst their friends. He was convinced that the greatest amount of harm was being done in the country at the present by books of this nature being circulated in this way.

Mr. S. GOULDING (F.F., Waterford) said that he would like the Minister to state what would be the position of a public library which had in its catalogue books that were banned. There should be time given to the Library Committees to go through their books and find out what exactly should be removed.

Mr. R. ANTHONY (Labour, Cork Boro') said that he found himself in entire agreement with the principle underlying the bill, but he would like to say that to him the words "public morality" appeared rather vague and required further definition. He hoped to have an assurance from the Minister that in the bill there was no intention to restrict liberty of religious, economic, or political thought.

BREEDING "NOSEY PARKERS."

Referring to Section 6, which relates to the setting up of "recognised associations," his own view was that they would have a very keen rivalry set up between associations. They might bring into existence a number of groups of persons of the "Nosey Parker" type. They had evidence all round them of little groups of religious fanatics banding themselves together under a fancy name, and they might easily have such groups coming together under this bill, whose only object in life would be the picking out of filth and the introduction of it into their daily lives—the type of people who would go round the country saying that everything was not as it should be, and turning up their eyes even at a ballet dance.

They might go too far with this prohibition, and as a result introduce into this country a very profitable industry—bootlegging in books. If they were not careful they might be the means through this bill of giving a rather effective advertisement to a class of literature which they all wanted to keep out of the country.

Fielding and Smollett had been mentioned, and to students of history those books were of some value. The same was true of certain French authors, whose works might be regarded as filthy and unclean by some, but still were books of a high moral character. If those books were to be banned he did not think it would be a good thing for the country. He agreed that books mainly of a sexual character should be kept out, but in the description he would like to have it clearly defined, and that they would not find coming under the ban books dealing with economics, philosophy and sociology, even though those books advanced theories not acceptable to the majority of the people of the country.

The debate was adjourned.

COMPULSORY IRISH.

INFLICTION UPON LEGAL PROFESSION.

Mr. MARTIN CONLAN (Govt., Roscommon) moved the second reading of the Legal Practitioners (Qualification) Bill. He said that one of the reasons for the introduction of this bill was that the legal profession, as a whole, had not shown much inclination to do justice to the Irish language. The Gaeltacht Commission in their report had recommended that persons should not after the lapse of a certain time be admitted to either the solicitors' or the barristers' profession without a competent knowledge of the Irish language. The medical and the engineering professions were in a different category from the lawyers. Solicitors and barristers were officers of the Courts, and he considered it the duty of the Government to see that the officers of the Courts should fall in with the national policy in regard to the use of the Irish language. He thought that most people did not realise what the position of the people in the Gaeltacht was when they wanted the assistance of a solicitor or counsel who could speak Irish. How would it be if, in English-speaking districts, only lawyers who spoke only Irish could be had? He thought that the legal profession should be brought into line with the other institutions in the State. He was only concerned to see that the people got the service to which they were entitled, and that the legal profession, as a whole, would be in a position to render that service. Section 3 of the bill provided that no person shall be admitted to either branch of the legal profession unless he had a competent knowledge of the Irish language. He appealed to the deputies of all parties to support the bill.

Mr. McFADDEN (Govt., Donegal) said that, as the declared policy of the Government was the restoration of the Irish language, this bill, which would aid that policy, ought to have their approval; for it was impossible to have in this country a self-reliant people unless they had as their bulwark the national language. There were few departments in public life in which the Irish language could be more usefully employed than in the Courts.

THE WRONG PROCEDURE.

Major COOPER (Govt., Dublin County) said that he did not object to the Irish language—because twenty years ago he had done his best to learn it—but, he asked, how was the object of the bill to be carried out? The Gaeltacht Commission, in their report, recommended that the Government should approach the governing bodies of the legal profession—the Incorporated Law Society and the Benchers of the King's Inns. These bodies, Mr. Conlon admitted, had not been approached on the subject. There were reciprocal arrangements between the Irish and the English Courts by which Irish barristers could be admitted to the English Bar and English barristers to the Irish Bar. If an examination in Irish were to be imposed upon them, the English would have a good excuse for breaking off that arrangement.

There were people in the Gaeltacht who found it difficult to obtain legal assistance in Irish, but as the demand would create a supply there would be undoubtedly in twenty years' time Gaelic-speaking barristers and solicitors. If the bill got a second reading it would go before a Special Committee, and come back to the House in what was virtually its completed form. He hoped that some members of the legal profession would be represented on that Committee. He believed that the change would come by evolution, not by revolution.

WHERE MR. CONLON FAILED.

Captain REDMOND (N.L., Waterford), opposing the bill, said that he did so because he was consistently against compulsion in any form. In his view compulsion was not the proper means to secure that there should be more Irish spoken in the country than there was to-day. As to the necessity for legal practitioners having a knowledge of Irish, there was no profession in the world where, if there was a demand for it, there would not be a supply. If admission to the legal profession was to be confined to those passing a qualifying examination in Irish, why should it not be laid down that a knowledge of Irish was essential for election to the Dail?

He thought that Deputy Conlan should have introduced a bill proposing that in every walk of life Irish should be compulsory, and especially there in the Dail. If it was the settled policy that Irish should be compulsory in every branch of life, why not come forward and bring in a comprehensive measure? He thought Deputy Conlan had been wanting in not consulting the governing bodies of the legal profession, the Bar Council and the Incorporated Law Society. If he had done that he would have discovered that at the preliminary examinations under these bodies Irish was an optional subject. If those who went forward to practice law in this country found that there was a demand for Irish-speaking lawyers, they would take Irish as one of the optional subjects. He did not think that the legal profession, as a whole, was hostile to the Irish language, though it did not favour compulsion.

Mr. BUCKLEY (F.F., Kildare), in supporting the bill, said that there was a large section in the country whose settled policy was to further the spread of the language in every way, and it did not matter whether Deputy Redmond or Deputy Cooper were opposed to that. He hoped that the bill would soon become law.

MR. BLYTHE ENTHUSIASTIC.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, in giving his personal support to the bill, said that if the matter had not been dealt with by a private deputy's bill, and if it had been left for the Government to take some action on the White Paper which was prepared in connection with the Gaeltacht Commission Report, it was probable that it would have proceeded differently. The most likely action of the Government would have been to approach the Benchers of the King's Inns and the Council of the Incorporated Law Society and to point out to them the constitutional position of Irish, the needs of the Gaeltacht and the Government declaration of policy on the Gaeltacht Commission's report indicating that they should do something to secure that future members of the legal profession should have a knowledge of Irish. If the two bodies had promised to hold examinations requiring a standard of Irish, perhaps the Government would have given publicity to that promise, and been satisfied But he did not think it was any harm to have the matter put on a legislative basis. On the other hand there was no ground for criticising Deputy Conlon for introducing the bill simply because the two governing bodies of the profession had not been consulted. After all, those two bodies were in a position to know the national policy regarding the Irish language. They knew that the main political parties of the country had been in favour of the preservation and revival of the Irish language. They knew that a big political committee at one of its conventions long before the rise of Sinn Fein passed a resolution in favour of compulsory Irish at the National University. They knew what was being done, and what had been done, in recent years, and they had taken no action on that knowledge. The Benchers had made Irish optional. That was an indication that times had changed, but was of no practical value. The Council of the Incorporated Law Society had done nothing in recent years.

THE ROSY FUTURE.

He thought that they might go further than Deputy Conlon, and look forward to the time when everybody who chose to use Irish would be able to have his legal business done through Irish. It was necessary, and steps had been taken already to see that doctors who had not a knowledge of Irish would not be appointed to Irish-speaking districts. He thought that it was essential that solicitors and barristers in all parts of the country should, as soon as possible, be able to do the work of their clients in Irish if their clients desired it.

It was asked what the standard should be. He thought that perhaps it would be necessary to somewhat lower the standard below that which should be insisted on later. They had to recognise the difficulties of the position, and to some extent the difficulties of the individual. So far as the question of reciprocity was concerned, he thought there was little point in it. He did not think that there was going to be any interchange of barristers in the future. Under the new conditions people who had practised five years at the Irish Bar were not likely to go to the English Bar, and consequently if such provisions for reciprocity were lost, he did not think it would be any great matter. In any case, in taking the steps necessary to preserve the Irish language, they could not be held up by these things for the sake of the convenience—and it was only the question of convenience—of a few individuals.

HIS ONLY DOUBT.

It might be that the age of 16 years was too low or too high. The Government, in preparing the White Paper on the Gaeltacht report, thought that 16 was a reasonable age, and that it was no hardship to say that those who reached that age should acquire a knowledge of Irish before becoming solicitors or barristers.

While the matter might have been dealt with along different lines, the principles in the measure were quite reasonable and proper, and probably would settle the matter more satisfactorily and with less disability or question of difficulty afterwards than if other lines were adopted.

Mr. FAHY (F.F., Galway), who spoke in Irish, supported the measure which he considered was long overdue. He would prefer to see the age 18 years, as he considered compulsory Irish was in operation in the country for five years. Deputy Cooper had referred to children attending schools outside the country, and he (Deputy Fahy) would like to remind him that the laws of the Free State were not made for those people. He would go so far as to say that Irish should be made compulsory not only for lawyers, but for doctors, engineers and priests. His party's only objection was that the bill did not go far enough.

WHAT ABOUT TRADE UNIONS?

Mr. JOHN GOOD (Independent, Dublin) said that, the principle of the bill being one of compulsion, he was opposed to it. He opposed compulsory Irish when it was applied to primary education, for he held that any of them should be free to select whatever subjects they considered most suitable in education. Now they had taken a step further. This bill had been introduced by a private member, and he took it that it was going to be supported by the Government. Without any interlude or intimation of any character, it was going to apply the principle of compulsion to two very important professions without any consultation at all with them. He thought that it was a very unwise principle for that or any other Government to adopt

"Suppose," continued Mr. Good, "that a private bill was introduced here which would make it compulsory on all tradesmen to have a knowledge of Irish before they could get into the various trades. I can imagine such a bill calling forth the strongest protests from the Labour members against such interference on the part of the State with their trades. In the bill before the House we have exactly the same principle applied to two professions. It is a distinction without a difference, and I think the question has been approached in the wrong way without consultations of any kind."

A DISTINCT INJUSTICE.

He did not think that the people in the State who spoke only Irish suffered under a great disability because all doctors were not able to speak Irish. Except in a few isolated cases in remote parts of the country the people understood English. He had carried out works in various parts of the country, even in remote districts, and he had never any difficulty in that way. He was sure that a great deal more was being made of that matter than there were grounds for.

The two professions to which this bill applied were largely recruited from middle-class families. Many of their young people to-day were being educated in schools outside the Saorstát. That had been the custom of those families for generations, and those young people would have no knowledge of Irish, for at the age of 16 he thought their education was fairly complete. It was a distinct hardship on any of those who intended entering either of these professions. At least five years' notice should be given of such a serious change of that kind, so that any young persons who intended following those professions would have an opportunity of learning Irish.

Mr. GOULDING (F.F., Waterford) also supported the bill.

MR. ANTHONY'S DOUBTS.

Mr. ANTHONY supported the bill. He said that the second reading might be made a peg on which to hang a discussion of the whole educational position, particularly of the Irish language, and its effects on education on the youth of the country. There was, he said, a lack of moral courage on the part of many of their public representatives. It was not considered by some to be politic to say what they thought for fear they would bring upon themselves the antagonism of certain interests in the country. Those interests might be clerical or lay, but they all knew they were present. For that reason he considered it would be a very useful thing to have this discussion and examine the whole situation, apart altogether from the position of the law students.

In the case of 99 per cent. of the population when a boy or girl went home from school with an exercise written in Irish their parents were unable to examine or correct it, and that was a different state of things from that which obtained in regard to English exercises. That part of education had "gone west." He did not want to inflict hardships upon men or women who might be hindered or turned away altogether from their intended career. There were young people who were in too great a hurry in the matter of furthering the language. To-day working-class children were suffering severely from that hurry. He admitted that the revival of the language had come to stay—(hear, hear)—but a very severe handicap had been inflicted upon the present generation of children. They were being sacrificed educationally.

THE RESULT IN THE SCHOOLS.

Mr. BUCKLEY asked if the deputy was aware that the schools most fully in touch with Irish had the best results not alone in Irish, but in other subjects.

Mr. DERRIG (F.F., Kilkenny), asked Mr. Anthony to give the House data upon which his statement as to the "suffering" was based.

Mr. ANTHONY said that he could do so, but he had not come prepared with such data: but when he compared the intellectual standard of the children of to-day with those of twenty years ago he saw the difference.

Mr. DERRIG said that the reports of the Inspectors of National Schools showed that there was no foundation for the statement.

Mr. LITTLE (F.F., Waterford), supporting the bill, said that all education was compulsory, and it was no handicap to have to learn one subject in preference to another. Solicitors and barristers were officers of the courts, and it would be inconsistent to make one set of officers learn Irish, and allow others to avoid it. He had great hope that the measure would encourage a love of the Irish language among the educated classes, which was the one way of bringing into existence a cultured modern Irish speech, which, with a few shining exceptions, they had not to-day.

The debate had not concluded when the House adjourned until 3 p.m. on Wednesday next.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

CHURCH AND STATE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Catholic Truth Society is discussing the relation of Church and State in a "Catholic" country like Ireland. May I say a few words in explanation of this word "Catholic"? It is used by all the speakers and writers to distinguish the doctrines and discipline of the Roman or Papal Church; but there are other Churches which are not subject to the Roman or Papal Church. These are all what may be called "national Churches." They are self-governing and independent. Being national, they seldom or never clash with the civil government of the State to which they belong, because they recognise the divine authority of the State equally with that of the Church. They are democratic in their constitution and admit the laity into their councils and government.

The Church of Ireland is a very striking illustration of such a national Church. It was intensely loyal to the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to-day it is equally loyal to the Irish Free State Government and to the Government of Northern Ireland. As the lex credendi is the lex orandi, I quote the following prayer from our Revised Prayer-book:—"Look with Thy favour upon our country and Empire, and preserve them from all perils. Save and protect our Sovereign Lord, King George, enrich him plenteously with heavenly gifts, and prosper his counsels for the welfare of his people. Bless also our gracious Queen Mary, Edward Prince of Wales and all the Royal Family. Guard in Thy good providence this our land. Bless and direct the Chief Governors in Ireland and those who bear rule under them. Endue with wisdom and strength the Ministers of the Crown, the High Court of Parliament, and the Parliaments in Ireland, at this time assembled, and all who are set in authority." We prayed for the Ministers of the Irish Free State from the day it was constitutionally established. We pray for the de facto system of government under which we find ourselves, whatever may be our private opinions on political matters. Thus our Church assures the loyalty of all its members to "the powers that be."

Consider the case of the Roman Church in Ireland. The laity have no place at all in its councils and government, nor have its priests, except in their own parishes. The governing body is the bishops. The "National" Synod of Maynooth held last year consisted exclusively of bishops. Its deliberations were held within closed doors, and every member was pledged to secrecy. The bishops are the nominees of the Pope; they derive their authority from him, and take an oath of absolute obedience to him. Thus the "Catholic Church," as the term is used by the readers and speakers at the meetings of the Catholic Truth Society, really means the Pope and the Committees of Cardinals, whom he alone appoints to assist him in carrying out the government of that Church of which he is the supreme head. As he is believed to be infallible, there is, and, logically, can be, no appeal from his decrees, which are imposed on the bishops, by them imposed on the priests, and by the priests imposed upon the laity.

As an illustration of what I say, I may refer to the laws of the Roman Church on marriage. Pope Pius X. ordered that Committee of Cardinals known as the Sacred Congregation of the Council to revise the canon law on marriage. The result was the decree Ne Temere, which was sent to the bishops in Ireland, and by them to the parish priests, who were directed to read it to their people. It thus became the law of marriage for every "good Catholic." No notice was taken of the fact that in some cases it rendered null and void certain marriages which were recognised by the State, and are still recognised as valid by the laws of the Irish Free State. Is it seriously suggested now that in an ideal "Catholic State" the laws of the civil legislature are to be overridden by the laws of the Pope and the Roman Curia? This is the real question which we have to face when people talk of a "Catholic State" in Ireland. This is the question which, under the misleading name of a "religious" question, has caused an upheaval in every Christian country in the world; it is really the question of an imperium in imperio.

Should anyone object to my using the term "Roman Church" instead of "Catholic Church," I have the highest authority for doing so. The third session of the Council of Trent lays down the following decree:—"This Council has thought good that the Symbol of faith which the holy Roman Church makes use of—as being that principle wherein all who profess the faith of Christ necessarily agree, and that firm and alone foundation against which the gates of hell shall never prevail—be expressed in the very same words in which it is read in all the churches." Then follows the Nicene Creed. As both the Roman and Irish Churches use this creed in their Eucharistic offices, they can both claim the title "Catholic." It is a degradation of a noble word to use it in an exclusive and sectarian sense.—Yours, etc.,

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN THE SCHOOLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—May I point out to your readers that the Reformed Churches of the world stand to-day as firmly on the side of "the idea of God, the idea of religion and our last end" permeating the whole curriculum of education as does the Catholic Truth Conference? Anyone can test the truth of this statement for himself by referring to the report on religious education issued by the International Missionary Council which met at Jerusalem last Easter. That report, after a world survey of significant tendencies in modern education, has as one of its findings that religion is an essential factor in education. It may now be said, without fear of contradiction, that all Christian public opinion is on the side of making religion permeate the whole curriculum of education.—Yours, etc.,

"OUR GREATEST NAMES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—"L.'s" letter, commenting on the absence of a tablet in Kilkenny Cathedral to the memory of Bishop Berkeley, reminds me of a story told to me by the late Primate Crozier, when Bishop of Ossory, as nearly as I can recollect, as follows:—A visitor from America entered a druggist's shop in Kilkenny and asked where in the town did Bishop Berkeley live. The shopkeeper replied, "Berkeley? Berkeley? Bishop Crozier, you mean?" "No," said the visitor; "I mean the great George Berkeley, the philosopher." "Well," replied the druggist, "I don't know. He does not deal with us."—Yours, etc.,

THE WELSH LANGUAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Minister who recently stated in Dublin that the entire population of Wales could speak Welsh is very near the truth. Welsh in Wales is a living language used by all. The Welsh are a bilingual people, and their language, together with English, is spoken from infancy in every walk in life. I have travelled through that country and I know, though on the occasion of my first visit I admit I was astonished, having been led to believe that this tongue held the same position in Wales as Irish in Ireland. The travelling companions of your correspondent, Mr. Hughes, not knowing his name, probably thought that he was a foreigner, English, Irish, or Scots; for, with unintentional discourtesy, they often avoid the use of English before these "strangers." He need not go as far as a railway carriage in Wales to hear Welsh spoken. I have heard more of that language in one day on the Irish mail-boat and at Holyhead—to go no farther—than Irish in Ireland, aside from lectures and speeches, during a residence in Dublin, City and County, of almost nineteen years.—Yours, etc.,

"BRIGHTER HOWTH."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Referring to the timely protests of your correspondents in their respective letters in your issues of Monday and Thursday last, I, as a lover of Howth and frequent visitor there, would express the warmest appreciation of their sentiments. I and many such as I, who live in or near the city, value Howth as a delightful place to visit and enjoy, largely because it has remained unspoiled by ugly development. We gain benefit from visiting this place, where we still find a complete change amid superb scenery still offering views, near and far, second to none. Howth is already bright by Nature. May this brightness never be diminished by so-called "improvements!"

Some time ago in your columns a suggestion was made that an art censor should be appointed by the Government to control from his point of view the developments and consequent housing schemes which become necessary from time to time in various localities. How excellent it would be if such an appointment were accomplished, and what lovely scenery and rural amenities would be preserved to the benefit of the entire community under such circumstances. It is surely time that the Government showed more interest in the preservation of so great a national asset as our scenery, even in the immediate vicinity of our cities.—Yours, etc.,

KERRY COUNTY COUNCIL

INQUIRY REGARDING RECENT FRAUDS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

TRALEE, Friday.

Further evidence regarding the loss to the Kerry County Council of £1,700, in respect of which three of the staff are undergoing terms of imprisonment, was taken at Tralee to-day by Mr. Quigley, Chief of the Local Government Roads Department in the Free State.

Mr. Quinlan, County Secretary, in his evidence, said that anything that occurred could not make any change in the office system. He discussed the matter with a bank manager and others, and they could suggest no better way than the present system.

The Inspector remarked that he would be a very courageous rogue who would attempt a fraud with the efforts that were now being made to detect him.

Mr. Kennedy, accountant to the County Council, said that it was no part of the duty of the office staff to examine endorsements on paying orders.

Replying to the Inspector, he said that it was hard to expect any member of the staff to have any suspicion of what was going on when one of the men responsible was a trusted official of almost thirty years' standing.

The Inspector said that it was, indeed a strange experience—one, he was glad to say, that never came his way—to find that a man whom they knew for so long, and kept company with, an Irishman and a Catholic, would be guilty of such a heinous offence. I did not know, said Mr. Quigley, whether we are going to alter it, but we must try to take steps to prevent its recurrence in this country, and the commission of a similar crime in other counties.

Mr. Kennedy—Of course, this occurred during a period in which there was a lot of moral looseness.

The Inspector said that that was so, and, perhaps, it was all an aftermath of the war.

Mr. Delahunty, county surveyor, in his evidence said that most of his time was taken up with bridges. Nothing could have been done by him to detect the fraud which had been perpetrated.

Did it ever occur to you, asked the Inspector, that this particular method in Kerry of supplying stones by piecemeal, and being paid for every fortnight, was a method peculiarly open to fraud?

It occurred to me that it was open to fraud from the supplier's point of view, inasmuch as a man might change a heap of stones from one place to another, and I warned the assistant surveyor particularly to watch out for anything like that.

You continually suspected that the supplier might "do" the County Council?—Yes. The witness added that it was not possible to get contracts of material in Kerry, such as 1,000 tons, as was possible in the eastern counties.

The Inspector then went into evidence as to the system of direct labour on the roads in Kerry, and whether or not value had been given for the money expended under this system in the upkeep of the roads.

HOUSE-BREAKER SENTENCED.

At Clonmel District Court, John Brislin, an ex-soldier, and a native of Athy district, was charged with breaking into a labourer's cottage at Seskin, and stealing a watch and purse, containing money, and other articles. He also was charged with stealing a cycle, and with obtaining board and lodging by false pretences. He pleaded guilty to the first charge.

It was stated by the Superintendent of the Guards that defendant had been previously sentenced to several terms for house-breaking.

Defendant said that he did not steal the cycle, but got it from a friend.

Accused man was sentenced to six months, with hard labour. The charge of false pretences was dismissed.

BISHOP OF RAPHOE BEREAVED.

The death occurred yesterday morning of Mrs. MacNeely, Donegal, widow of the late Mr. James MacNeely, and mother of the Most Rev. Dr. MacNeely, Roman Catholic Bishop of Raphoe. Deceased, who was over eighty years of age, had been ill for only a little over a week.

"I take the cake," said Mr. York.

"Full up?" said Mr. York, Motoring.

"Yes," said the friend who was driving Mr. York. "They're full up again—which is a good deal more than I am. How far is it to the next hotel?"

"Only twenty-five miles," said the hotel keeper.

"That's not much in the morning," said the motorist, "but it comes a bit heavy at the end of a long day's run. Besides I'm hungry—and that really does take the cake."

"Well, why don't you take the cake?" said Mr. York. "I'm sure there's a cake of Motoring in the pocket by the driver's seat."

"Of course," said the motorist. "I'd sooner go out without a spare wheel than without a spare cake of Motoring Chocolate."

Censorship and Liberty.

The debate on the second reading stage of the Free State Government's Censorship of Publications Bill has proved that the cause of intellectual liberty can expect no help from Dáil Eireann. It is an undisputed need that the sale of a few newspapers which pander to lust and ignorance shall be suppressed; but Ministers propose to break the dung-beetle upon a wheel that may become a national tyrant, and the Dáil does not propose to say them nay. The Government is prepared to revise the definition of the word "indecent," but it will suffer no interference with its machinery of censorship. It insists that "recognised associations" shall have power to report to its board of censors any book that deals with sexual passion—and sexual passion is the stuff of eighty per cent. of the world's greatest literature. The board may advise the Minister for Justice to condemn any book, and, if he condemns a book, its sale thereafter will be a penal offence. Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney argues that "no sensible board of censors" will seek to abuse its trust; but the bill contains no guarantee that future Ministers of Justice, and the censors whom they may remove from office at any time, will not be fools or fanatics. The whole domain of art, letters, science and religion—which, after all, is a matter of "public morality"—will be at the mercy of a Minister and his satellites. Lists of prohibited books will be published by the official Gazette. In the debate's best and most courageous speech Professor Tierney, of the National University, predicted that these lists "would make a laughing-stock of the country." On the other hand, if prohibition is confined to really indecent books, the Gazette will give them a valuable advertisement. We are reminded of the school edition of Martial which collected the improper epigrams in an appendix.

The debate has shown that the second reading of the bill will be virtually unopposed; indeed, it may be carried without a division. Not a single member of any party has announced his intention to vote against it. Even the severest and most voluble critics appear to have persuaded themselves that the bill can be made tolerable by amendment. Thus the Free State Government will be able to claim that it has obtained a national mandate for the principle of the bill; and that principle is the State's right to establish an autocratic control over the reading of all educated citizens—a right which is so obnoxious to abuse that almost certainly, sooner or later, it will be abused. We challenge the Government's demand as an invasion of public liberty. We are convinced that hundreds of thousands of the Free State's minority share our view; yet the fact remains that the Censorship Bill is unopposed in a legislative chamber where that minority has a representation which is not unfair in proportion to its numbers. This disquieting phenomenon asserts itself also in other fashions. The Censorship Bill is not the only part of the Government's policy that imposes unjust restrictions on freedom of thought and action. In the field of education the culture and the prospects of a large and loyal class are being impaired by the tyranny of the Irish language. Compulsory Irish is playing havoc with the main purpose of the primary schools; it is killing the study of modern languages in the secondary schools; it is closing a thousand doors of opportunity, and for that reason it is compelling hundreds of Irish boys to seek an unfettered education in other lands. Yet the minority's representatives in Parliament have offered no serious resistance to this oppression; some of them have connived at it.

Buffon described a certain animal as "very wicked; it defends itself when attacked." We might be tempted to suppose that the Free State minority, too, had persuaded itself of the immorality of self-defence. It is responsible for the conduct of its representatives in Parliament, which, almost of necessity, reflects its own conduct. The minority has failed to establish a public opinion which would serve alike to strengthen its courage and to support its legitimate claims. To this extent it is the architect of its own troubles, but may it not plead the excuse that its natural leaders have withheld their aid? Dublin University is the centre of the ancient and wide culture in which the educated minority has been bred. The Protestant Churches are the custodians of that minority's spiritual interests, and, in some measure, of its intellectual liberty. The ancient culture is being undermined by the Free State Government's system of compulsory education; the spiritual and intellectual freedom is menaced gravely by the claims of the new Censorship Bill. If, during the last five years, Trinity College, while offering every encouragement to the study of Irish, had taken a bold stand against the principle of compulsion, the educational history of those years might have been written very differently. If Trinity College and the Protestant Churches had taken a bold stand against the Censorship Bill, the second reading certainly would not be assured of a smooth passage through the Dáil. To-day, however, the Government is in the happy position of "having it both ways." It is able to invade liberty and at the same time to boast that there are no complaints.

South Africa and the Empire.

Political controversy in South Africa has been aroused again in an acute form by the proceedings during the present week of Nationalist Party congresses. The most important of these meetings was held in the Orange Free State, where General Hertzog was in attendance, and the discussions in regard to the status of the South African Union were very significant. Eight years ago the Nationalist Party drew up a programme of its aims, which included an article demanding the complete separation of South Africa from the British Empire. When the Party came into power, however, its leaders, faced with realities, modified their attitude, and, although they still insisted that an independent republic was their ideal, they admitted that it could be obtained only by evolutionary processes. Then came the Imperial Conference of 1926, where General Hertzog seemed to have been converted wholly to the imperial point of view. On his return to Cape Town he announced that republicanism in South Africa had ceased to exist; its raison d'être had been removed by the Imperial Conference. This announcement was received with joy in the Union. General Smuts congratulated his former opponent on the statesmanship of his attitude, and all went well until the personal jealousy between the leaders of the two great parties began to assert itself again. During the last two years the Nationalist Party has remained fairly loyal to the Hertzog declaration; but now it appears that the old desire for separation is beginning to reassert itself. Obviously, after the Imperial Conference agreement, the Nationalist Party in South Africa could not consistently retain the article in its programme which called for separation. This article was amended to suit the new circumstances, but General Hertzog, apparently as a sop to the "die-hards," expressly announced at the Free State conference that he did not expect any member of the party to desist from separatist propaganda. This statement has been received with dismay by the British element in South Africa; for it indicates that General Hertzog's former protestations of loyalty to the imperial connection were of small value. If the Prime Minister of the Union deliberately encourages his followers to engage in republican propaganda, there can be little hope of a reconciliation between the two great parties. General Hertzog's speech has undone much of the good work of the last two years.

The White Line.

Pedestrians who were abroad in the principal streets of Dublin yesterday were surprised to find some of the pathways divided evenly by thick white lines. These lines lost some of their brilliant whiteness during an exceedingly wet day, but they remained conspicuous. Pointing arrows left no doubt as to the purpose of this innovation, but a large number of citizens took little notice of them. Perhaps, this indifference was natural. The pedestrian already has lost so much of his old freedom to wander on the highway that he resents instinctively an attempt to confine his movements in the only oasis that remains to him. He feels sometimes that motorists regard him as a hunter regards some strange, but vanishing, beast or bird. The "white line" is designed, however, to save the pedestrian from himself. It is estimated that half of the street accidents which occur in Dublin are due to carelessness on the part of pedestrians. The total number of street accidents in the city for the first nine months of 1928 was one less than the total number for the twelve months of 1927. If a "keep to the left" rule is observed, on the pathway as well as on the roadway, it seems, theoretically, that there must be fewer casualties. All persons walking on the outer side of the line will face the oncoming traffic. A person who is walking on the inner side will have time to pause and consider, and his natural carelessness will be checked by the reproving white line. Certainly many people display great levity in rushing from the place of safety, without the precaution of the man in Burns's poem who "turned him left and right, upon the Irish shore." The white line experiment originated in Australia, and it has been tried, with some measure of success, in some towns of Northern England. The part of the police in this matter is advisory; there is no power to compel a pedestrian to keep to the left if he wishes to keep to the right. Possibly, even if everyone on the footpaths keeps obediently to the left, the decrease in street accidents may not be considerable. The experiment is worth a trial, however, and pedestrians ought to meet it with good-will.

Playing-Cards.

There is a popular, but incorrect, belief that playing-cards were invented during the middle ages to amuse a mad king of France. In actual fact, the origin of card games, like that of chess, is lost in the mists of antiquity. Different nations, at different periods of history, have invented cards. During the reign of Charles I. card games became very popular in England. Perhaps, it was the liking of the Cavaliers for this form of recreation, and their habit of playing for ruinous stakes, that led the Puritans to associate inseparably these harmless-looking designs in black and red with gambling and extravagance. The manufacture of playing-cards in England became sufficiently important to form the subject of a Royal Charter. This Charter was granted by Charles I., and the "Worshipful Company of Makers of Playing Cards," to whom it was granted, will celebrate its tercentenary on next Monday. In Stuart times the importation of playing-cards from abroad was prohibited; the right of manufacture was confined solely to the "Worshipful Company," which in return paid a fee to the Crown. The Company no longer possesses a monopoly, but the old-time royal percentage is represented by the modern Excise duty. No other pictures have been more familiar to generations than these masterful-looking kings, demure queens and impudent knaves, who look the same whether they are the "observed of all the observers" in a children's party or in a gambling saloon. Probably, very few card-players have troubled to investigate the origin of these figures. In earlier times the kings were real kings; the queens and knaves were ladies and gentlemen of the court. It is said that spades originally stood for soldiers, clubs for farm labourers, diamonds for artisans, and hearts for ecclesiastics.

LONDON LETTER

REPARATIONS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The meeting at the Treasury yesterday, when Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Parker Gilbert discussed matters concerning German reparations, had a somewhat surprising sequel last night; for Mr. Churchill left by the night train for Paris and paid a visit to M. Poincaré, the French Premier, in the course of this morning. Mr. Parker Gilbert attended the interchange of views, and the conversations lasted for nearly an hour and a half. Ostensibly, the discussion related to the constitution of the committee of experts contemplated in a recent Geneva communiqué, and, since this committee is to be set up to deal with the reparations question, it seems possible that some interesting developments are in prospect. The opinion in diplomatic circles here is that no change in the situation is likely to be made for some time, though there is much to be said in favour of a final settlement of a question likely to become provocative at any moment. One point must be considered by the British Treasury; for it is obvious that, in the event of reductions in the amount of reparations, this country would be certain to suffer financially unless it is the intention of the United States to make concessions.

Mr. Parker Gilbert.

It has now transpired that Mr. Parker Gilbert, who left for Paris with Mr. Churchill, had been in London for some days, and spent the week-end with Mr. Churchill at his Westerham home. In addition, he has discussed the question with the Prime Minister and the higher officials of the Bank of England. Mr. Churchill's visit to Paris is not likely to be prolonged; for it is thought that he will be back in town by the week-end, and that the discussions at the Treasury on the reparations question may be resumed in the course of next week. It is known that Mr. Parker Gilbert is in favour of a Commission, composed of experts from all the countries interested, to examine anew the whole question of German reparations and financial stability.

Lord Londonderry's New Post.

The Marquis of Londonderry, appointed First Commissioner of Works, is to have a seat in the Cabinet. The intimation is interesting, because the occupant of the post is usually considered to be outside the Cabinet, and there was some doubt whether Lord Londonderry's appointment would carry Cabinet rank, in view of the fact that he had not hitherto had a seat in the British Government. Lord Londonderry, however, joins the Cabinet at the express invitation of the Prime Minister, and thus its size will remain unchanged.

Influenza in London.

Mr. J. L. C. Davidson, the Chairman of the Conservative Party, was to have given an address on housing at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields to-day, but he was suddenly taken ill with influenza and had to retire to his bed. It seems that the wave of influenza which has begun to attack Londoners is three months before it usually comes, and is also of an unusually serious type. A specialist in the disease said to-day that the epidemic was not due until January, dealing with the usual forty weeks' calculation. Its advent may have been hastened by the exceptional dryness of the past summer, which has brought about an unusual amount of dust and the germs concealed in it. The peculiarity of the attack this year is that it develops with extreme rapidity, though the symptoms are much as usual. Immediate retirement to bed is advocated, with a summons to the doctor.

Irish Produce.

The Irish Free State Trade Commissioner, Mr. Dulanty, in his efforts to promote the use of Irish products in the metropolis, has been highly successful in securing the help of some of the great departmental stores, and a notable display of Irish goods has been arranged in some of these. Every variety of produce obtainable in the Irish Free State has been secured, with the result that a most attractive exhibition resulted. An immense amount of good has been done by bringing these Irish products to the direct attention of the consumer.

The Whiskey Trade.

In spite of the falling off in the consumption of whiskey, I understand that a number of financiers are trying to organise effective competition with the Distillers' Company, which has almost a monopoly of the trade in these days. With what justification I do not know, but it is said that there is now less variety in quality and blend, though no less choice in names, than there used to be, and the people who are now getting together think that the public would readily respond to the introduction of new brands. A number of Scotsmen, resentful of the amount of foreign barley imported into their country, are also said to be behind the movement. So far, I have heard of no intention to try to secure a reduction in price, though it may possibly come as the result of competition.

Afghanistan.

News from Afghanistan is so uncertain, and frequently so unsound, that it would be interesting to know whether there is any truth at all in the stories that King Amanullah is meeting with considerable opposition to his progressive plans. Stories of executions of fanatical Moslem priests are related, and it is added that Afghanistan is blazing with a seditious movement fostered by the Quazi, a body designed to maintain Islamic traditions. It will be remembered that King Amanullah had to hasten back to Kabul owing to threats of a seditious rising, and, though this was repressed at the time, it seems to have broken out again.

The Malines Conversations.

I gather that the statement which Cardinal Bourne has just issued to the rural deans of his diocese of Westminster indicates that the movement represented by the Malines conversations is dead. There is little doubt that whatever hopes there may have been of it were killed by tactical blunders. Many sincere admirers of Lord Halifax's work feel that he would have been wiser to allow himself to be guided by the Archbishop of Canterbury instead of rushing precipitately into print. Another mistake was to create the idea that things could be done over the head of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy in this country, and that Cardinal Bourne was at variance with Cardinal Mercier. Obviously an official denial had to be issued. The reunionists suffered from lack of patience.

Sir George Power.

Sir George Power, the seventh baronet of Kilfane, Co. Kerry, who has just passed away at eighty-one, was once a popular figure in the D'Oyly Carte Company at the Savoy Theatre. He created the parts of Ralph Rackstraw in "H.M.S. Pinafore," and Frederick in "The Pirates of Penzance." Sir George Power, like other of his fellow Savoyards, was fond of telling stories of Gilbert, and described him as an absolute martinet. He recalls the author once telling him at a rehearsal, "Down on your knees, sir. Is that the proper way to make love to a lady?" Sir George Power succeeded to the title in 1903, and, retiring from the stage, became a popular teacher of singing.

CHEAPER BREAD IN BELFAST.

He recalls the author once telling him at a rehearsal, "Down on your knees, sir. Is that the proper way to make love to a lady?" Sir George Power succeeded to the title in 1903, and, retiring from the stage, became a popular teacher of singing.

CHEAPER BREAD IN BELFAST.

On and from next Monday the price of bread in Belfast will be reduced to 4½d. for the 2lb. loaf retail.

MR. CHURCHILL'S SURPRISE VISIT TO PARIS.

REPARATIONS.

DISCUSSIONS WITH M. POINCARE.

Mr. Winston Churchill paid a surprise visit to Paris yesterday—returning to England late last night—to discuss the reparations problem.

During his visit he had conversations with M. Poincaré, Mr. Gilbert Parker, and Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan. The presence of the latter at the luncheon at the Embassy (says Reuter's Correspondent) throws a vivid light on the importance of the conversations, and the part that the United States may play in the proposed official settlement of reparations was, doubtless, discussed with the great American banker.

It is understood that M. Poincaré, Mr. Churchill, and Mr. Parker Gilbert agreed on the advisability of inviting the United States to appoint a representative to the Committee of Experts on Reparations, decided upon at Geneva in September.

Mr. Parker Gilbert is known to be a strong advocate of an early fixation and commercialisation of the German debt. As the marketing of the debt depends on the United States, the value of Mr. Pierpont Morgan's views requires no emphasis.

The primary object of the sudden visit to Paris of Mr. Churchill was to discuss with the French Government and Mr. Parker Gilbert, the question of the composition of the committee of financial experts from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Germany, which is to inquire into the whole reparations problem, and to endeavour, if possible, to fix the total German liability, which, under the Dawes plan, is left unspecified.

This committee will be concerned with the problems of the issue of bonds in the world markets to cover the German indebtedness should it be successful in definitely fixing the total German liability.

CONFERENCE IN DECEMBER.

AN AUTHORITATIVE STATEMENT.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Friday.

An authoritative statement issued here this evening says:—

"The exchange of views between the two Governments—those of Great Britain and France—most interested in the problem of reparations have concluded in a very satisfactory drawing together of their respective theses, as regarded essential principles and minimum demands. The two Governments will now attempt to win for their common point of view the approval, not only of other Aillied Powers, Italy, Belgium, and Japan, but also of Germany herself.

The date of the projected conference has not yet been fixed, but it may commence at the beginning of next December. There is no doubt that steps will be taken to secure the sending of a semi-official observer by the United States.

Berlin seems to be the place that will have to be chosen for the labours of the committee, which will thus have at its disposal all the information that it may need on Germany's capacity for payment.

It now remains to appoint the experts who will compose the committee. These will consist either of important members of the financial world, who will act with complete independence, as was the case when the Dawes plan was drawn up, or of officials who will only act ad referendum. It is expected that the delegates will be of the latter category. The French Government will determine its choice at the next Cabinet meeting, which is called for October 30th.

"MR. CHURCHILL VERY PLEASED."

BRITISH CHANCELLOR'S HUSTLE IN PARIS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Friday.

"He is very pleased," said Sir William Tyrrell, the British Ambassador, as Mr. Churchill's train steamed out of the Gare du Nord at four o'clock this afternoon.

This, for the moment, is about all that can be gathered regarding what were evidently extremely important conversations between the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, M. Poincaré, and Mr. Parker Gilbert this morning.

On leaving the Finance Ministry Mr. Churchill took Mr. Parker Gilbert back to the British Embassy, where they took luncheon together with Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, the American banker.

Conversation continued right up to the moment of Mr. Churchill's departure, leaving only just time for the Embassy car to dash through the congested Paris traffic to the station.

EXCHANGE OF VIEWS.

In spite of that reserve which is observed in official circles, it is reasonable to suppose that the conversations dealt with other subjects than that of the organisation of the committee of financial experts, and that Mr. Churchill and M. Poincaré took advantage of the opportunity to exchange views with reference to the settlement of problems connected with the reparations question.

It is pointed out that as no new developments have occurred since the time when the policies of the British and French Governments were publicly made known, there is reason to assume that their respective positions remain the same as when formulated on the one hand in the Balfour Note, and on the other in the speech recently delivered by M. Poincaré at Chambery.

The Balfour Note, it is recalled, laid it down that the British Government would only ask of Germany and its debtors among the former Allies sufficient to meet its own war debt payments to the United States.

THE FRENCH VIEW.

On several occasions, and notably in his Chambery speech, M. Poincaré has stated that France would not refuse to examine any proposals which might be put forward with a view to the mobilisation of the credits which France possesses in respect of Germany, always provided that any settlement contemplated would permit France, on the one hand, to pay her debtors, and, on the other, to secure reimbursement of the sums expended on the reconstruction of the devastated regions.

That the respective points of view of the British and French Governments, though differing in some respects, were in no way irreconcilable, seemed to be the impression which Mr. Churchill had gathered from his conversations with M. Poincaré, judging by the satisfied expression which he wore on leaving the Ministry of Finance this morning.

GALE DAMAGE IN DUBLIN.

CHIMNEY CRASHES INTO HOUSE.

CORK STEAMER PUTS BACK TO PORT.

The gale warning which was broadcast from London and Daventry yesterday afternoon was thoroughly justified last night so far as Ireland was concerned.

A strong sou'-sou'-westerly wind sprang up as darkness fell, and speedily reached gale force, blowing in violent gusts throughout the night.

Old Dublin yielded the usual storm harvest of slates, but the newer portions of the city did not go unscathed, and reports of damage caused by the gale came in from many districts. For the most part, however, the damage was of a minor character.

CHIMNEY BLOWN DOWN.

The most serious incident reported occurred at 180 Pearse street, where portion of a large chimney was blown down, and about three-quarters of a ton of bricks crashed through the roof.

Most of the occupants of the house were in bed at the time, but all escaped without injury, as the débris fell on the staircase.

For a considerable time members of the Fire Brigade were engaged clearing away the bricks and slates. The ground floor of the premises is occupied by the Hibernian Dairy Company.

WINDOWS SMASHED.

Plate glass windows were blown in at the business premises of

Duffy and Sons, drapers, Thomas street.
Frewen and Ryan, drapers, O'Connell street.
M. Tarlo and Co., Talbot street.

TREE FALLS ON A 'BUS.

A tree which was blown down between Chapelizod and Palmerstown, Co. Dublin, fell on one of the 'buses of the General Omnibus Company, which was proceeding to Dublin.

The driver, William Keogh, and the conductor, Bernard Shaw, sustained head injuries, and were taken to Dr. Steevens' Hospital in a private motor car.

The 'bus was badly damaged.

The road remained blocked to vehicular traffic.

PEDESTRIANS INJURED.

Near the Custom House, Ellen Cullen (63), of 3 Moore's Cottages, was knocked down by a gust of wind. She received an injury to the forehead, and was taken to Jervis street Hospital in the city ambulance.

Mary Bolger (52), of 81 Capel street, sustained an injury to her right leg by being blown down in Capel street. She also was taken to Jervis street Hospital in the ambulance.

WIRES DOWN.

The telegraph and telephone service was greatly interrupted, and early this morning many of the lines were out of order.

Two of the trunk lines between Dublin and Cork, and all the lines between Dublin and Limerick, were out of order.

The trunk telephone service between Dublin and Belfast and Dublin and Dundalk also failed.

In most cases the interruption of communications is believed to be due to trees falling across the wires.

Uprooted trees which had fallen across the roads obstructed traffic in some of the outlying districts of Dublin.

STEAMER PUTS BACK.

MANY CRAFT STORMBOUND ON SOUTH COAST.

CORK, Saturday Morning.

Following a wet and stormy day in Southern Ireland the wind increased towards last evening, and many gusts of gale strength, accompanied by driving rain, made conditions extremely unpleasant in Cork City. The streets were deserted.

Little damage was done beyond the stripping off of loose slates, and no serious accidents are reported at any of the hospitals.

Very heavy seas were running last night off the Southern coast, and the little coasting vessels lost no time in making for the nearest port.

Conditions were so bad that the Fishguard steamer which left Cork at 6 o'clock put back within a couple of hours to await better weather.

PRAISED BY SIGNOR MUSSOLINI.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
ROME, Friday.

Signor Mussolini to-day received General O'Duffy, who is in charge of the party of 250 Irish Civic Guards who have come on a pilgrimage to Rome. The Duce had a long conversation with his visitor, and inquired about the organisation and work of the Civic Guards.

He displayed a keen interest in all the details of their service, showing that he had already studied the history of the Guards, and congratulated General O'Duffy upon the splendid results obtained and upon the order and security maintained in Ireland, thanks to the good work of this fine body of men.

THE POPE'S MASS.

His Holiness the Pope celebrated Mass this morning in the Consistory Hall. The delegation of the Irish Civic Guards, under the leadership of General O'Duffy and other officers, attended the Mass and received Holy Communion.

Before taking their leave the Irishmen were again blessed by the Pontiff.

ENGLISH CARDINAL RECEIVED.

The Pope to-day granted an audience to Cardinal Gasquet, the well-known English historical writer and Prefect of the Vatican Archives, on his return to Rome from a vacation. His Holiness inquired after his health and expressed his pleasure at seeing him so well.

Monsignor Giardinis, Apostolic Delegate to Tokio, has arrived in Rome, and will shortly be received by the Pope, to whom he will report on the religious situation in Japan.

GRAIN SHORTAGE IN SOVIET RUSSIA.

ALARMING SITUATION.

MOSCOW.

The Soviet Government will probably be obliged again to purchase grain abroad, according to the Moscow Press, which has been discussing the spread of famine in the Ukraine. Reports state that four million inhabitants are now without bread, and it is known that an urgent appeal has been sent here for more grain, since the bread lines of the cities are not only growing in length, but in many towns have reached the starvation point.

The Isvestia reports that the Ukraine is again swarming with sack-men—men who carry sacks of grain and flour between good and bad harvest districts. It is also reported that passenger trains are now carrying more sacks than passengers, and the outlook is decidedly pessimistic in view of reports that the tender shoots of the winter grain are being destroyed by insects.

MR. AL SMITH IN CHICAGO.

BONFIRES IN THE STREETS.

CHICAGO, Friday.

Chicagoans are suffering from sore throats to-day. The city went wild and shouted itself hoarse when Governor "Al" Smith, Democratic candidate for the United States Presidency, came to town in continuation of his speech-making campaign.

Bonfires blazed furiously in the middle of dignified Michigan avenue, while Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson's police stood by and did nothing to break up the most significant demonstration thus far in the Presidential campaign. The bonfire was fed with copies of a Chicago newspaper, which carried a cartoon on its front page, with the "G.O.P. Elephant" watching Smith's demonstration and exclaiming: "It's lucky for me that eagerness to see him doesn't mean eagerness to vote for him."

While the bonfire continued the crowd jammed a full block on the lake front of the avenue, and kept up a steady deafening cheer until a smiling man appeared from the balcony of a hotel and waved a brown Derby. There was no disguising the man, and as the cry of "Smith" went up the bands played "Sidewalks of New York."

This was a sample of Governor Smith's welcome, and later, reclining in his suite in the Congress Hotel, he admitted it was "the greatest reception I ever had in my life."

From the time he arrived at the Union Station and fought his way through a lane of one hundred policemen, Governor Smith has been besieged by thousands. Bands are playing all the time, and the throng about his hotel never subsides.

Democratic leaders claim that Governor Smith will carry Chicago by 150,000, a vote that would go a long way towards breaking the Republican hold on the State.

KEEP TO THE LEFT ON FOOTPATHS.

THE WHITE LINE IN DUBLIN.

The people of Dublin awoke yesterday to find white lines drawn along the centres of the footpaths in the chief streets of the city, and at the end of each white line an arrow-head, pointing the stream of traffic to the left. They soon discovered that in following the direction of the arrow-head they were making the rule of the footway like the rule of the road and, therefore, lessening the risk of accident in passing from the footway to the road. By noon the great majority of citizens were moving easily on the new traffic lines.

The City Commissioners and the police authorities hope to extend the white line to other streets, and the public are asked to support them by observing a principle that should ensure their common safety.

WHY THE CHANGE IS MADE.

GENERAL MURPHY'S STATEMENT

General W. R. E. Murphy, Deputy-Commissioner of the Civic Guard, in a statement issued yesterday, thus put the case for the new method of control:—

"Following a practice which has been inaugurated in several cities in the North of England—notably Oldham and Huddersfield—it is proposed, as an experiment, to have white lines laid down to mark the centre of the footways in the chief thoroughfares in the city, such as O'Connell street, Westmoreland street, Dame street, Grafton street, etc. It is the intention, when these lines are marked out, to make the rule of the footway the same as that of the roadway—viz., 'keep to the left.' The advantage of this alteration in the rule of the footway will be that all persons walking on the outer side of the line will face the on-coming traffic, and they will, therefore, be much less liable than at present to step off the footway in front of on-coming vehicles. In addition, persons walking on the inner side of the line who desire to cross the roadway will require to cross the white line and traverse the outer half of the footway. The white lines will direct their attention to the necessity for careful observation of traffic before they step off the footway.

"The following is a return of accidents which have occurred in Dublin since January, 1927, through persons stepping off the footway in front of on-coming traffic:—

| | Fatal. | Serious. | Trivial. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Year 1927. | 8 | 13 | 91 | 112 |
| Nine Months Ended September 30, 1928. | 6 | 11 | 94 | 111 |

"These figures show the absolute necessity for the institution of a proper 'rule of the footway,' and also the necessity for strict adherence to such rule on the part of pedestrians. The figures for the nine months ended the 30th September, 1928, are only one less than the total for the year 1927, showing that pedestrians do not yet realise the necessity for extreme care when stepping off the footway. It is considered that all the accidents in question could have been avoided if the persons concerned had been facing the on-coming traffic when stepping off the footway, and the proposed new rule of the footway, in conjunction with marking of white lines, will help materially to reduce such accidents.

"The most disquieting feature of the figures quoted above is the large number of fatal accidents. The total fatal accidents in the Dublin metropolian area in respect of all classes of vehicles for the year 1928 was 27. Of these 8—nearly 30 per cent—were due to carelessness in stepping off the footway. The percentage for the first nine months of the current year is 25.

"The City Commissioners are in consultation with the police authorities experimenting in the use of the white line as a means of reducing these pedestrian accidents, and the Press is asked to urge pedestrians to follow the rule, 'Keep to the Left.'"

INSPECTOR HURLEY EXPLAINS.

In an interview with an Irish Times representative, Inspector Hurley, Traffic Superintendent for Dublin, said that the Civic Guard were merely acting in an advisory capacity to the public, and they trusted that the common-sense of the people would do the rest. There is nothing, he added, to compel pedestrians to keep to one or other side of the white line; but a special appeal is made to them to observe the rule, as, after all, it is simply for their own personal safety and good.

THEFT FROM A CATHEDRAL

VALUABLE CRUCIFIX DISAPPEARS.

COLOGNE (by Mail)

A valuable ivory crucifix in the Baroque style has been stolen from the Muenster, Westphalia, Cathedral.

The thief had substituted a plaster of Paris replica for the crucifix, which was so exact that it was not until a keen-eyed sacristan came to dust it that the disappearance of the original was remarked.

DEPUTIES AS CENSORS.

BOOKS THAT THEY WOULD BAN.

SOME WARNINGS.

IRISH TESTS FOR LAWYERS.

By Our Special Correspondent.

Dail Eireann yesterday divided its time equally between the resumed debate on the second reading of the Censorship of Publications Bill and the second stage of the Legal Practitioners (Qualification) Bill, which provides that future entrants to the Bar must have a knowledge of the Irish language.

With the exception of Mr. Anthony's speech on the Censorship Bill, the contributions to the debate were poor. Many deputies follow the example of the famous divine who boasted that he never prepared his sermons, but opened his mouth and trusted to the Lord to fill it, with the result that their speeches are at once mediocre and ineffective.

Fair-minded men would gladly accept the bill, said Mr. J. J. Byrne (Government, Dublin City North), and then he lumped together in an incongruous mass Fielding's "Tom Jones," the writings of Marie Stopes, Daudet's "Sapho," and Miss Radclyffe Hall's "The Well of Loneliness," as books that should be banned. The Board of Censors will, no doubt, take notice, but the moderate statements of deputies like Mr. Buckley (F.F., Kildare) are likely to carry more weight. He saw some danger in questionable "yellow-back" novels, but if harm at all was done by classics, like Shakespeare and Thackeray, it was infinitesimal.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

Mr. Hazlett (Ind., Monaghan) said that he would support the bill if it were not made to apply to other matters than indecent and immoral literature. If the bill cleared out garbage, the Dail would unhesitatingly support it, declared Mr. Hugo Flinn (F.F., Cork City). He told an astounding story about a bad book which had been given to a boy as a school prize. Its title was quite innocuous, but its contents were abominable.

Mr. Brady (F.F., Dublin County) thought that the bill did not go far enough. He was all in favour of making it an offence not only to sell or purchase questionable books, but to lend or borrow them. Mr. Goulding, his colleague, wanted to know the position of a public library with banned books on its shelves.

"Who is to decide?" he asked. "One reader may see harm in a book; another may discern no harm at all."

BOOK-LEGGING.

A fearsome picture was drawn by Mr. Anthony (Labour, Cork City). He visualised a battalion of Nosey Parkers, "little groups of religious fanatics banding themselves together under a fancy name," picking out filth and introducing it into the daily lives of the people. These Nosey Parkers, he declared, "would turn up the whites of their eyes even at a ballet dance." Even Fielding and Smollett had written books of value, and French authors, whose works were regarded as unclean had a high moral value. Of course, filthy sexual publications should be excluded, but it ought to be made clear in the bill that writings on political, economic, sociological and philosophical subjects would not be condemned.

Mr. Anthony was afraid also that extreme prohibition might create "bootlegging in books," an industry, as somebody said afterwards, which would not help to reduce our adverse trade balance.

IRISH IN THE COURTS.

When the Minister for Justice had moved the adjournment of the debate, the House turned its attention to the second reading of the Legal Practitioners (Qualification) Bill. It was sponsored by Mr. Martin Conlon (Government), whose remarks were well enough reasoned, but difficult to hear in the Press Gallery. Chiefly because the people in the Irish-speaking districts of the country suffered disability in the hearing of their cases, he thought it necessary that judges and legal practitioners should have a knowledge of the Irish language.

Hence the bill had been introduced.

A NEW BAR.

"The Government must follow its policy and Irishise every department of the State," said Mr. Michael Og McFadden, who represents Donegal in the Government interest. At this stage was indicated a little rift in the Government lute.

Major Bryan Cooper told the House a little secret. "Twenty years ago I tried to learn Irish," and then he said something which did not seem to startle deputies much. "To impose Irish as a new subject for the Bar will throw up a barrier between the English and the Irish Bars. It might be used as a good excuse for breaking off the present arrangement whereby members of each Bar may become members of the other."

EXAMINATIONS FOR DEPUTIES.

Captain Redmond asked the Government to be logical. "Why not," he asked, "make candidates for the Dail pass an examination in Irish before they are nominated?" He was against compulsion all along, and if there was a real demand for Irish-speaking lawyers, that demand would be met. Mr. Conlon, he argued, should have introduced a bill making Irish compulsory in every walk of life. Was it not necessary that a doctor attending to an Irish-speaking patient should understand what the patient said, and what of auctioneers and grocers, who came into even closer contact with their clients and customers than the lawyer?

The Minister for Finance urged that they must look forward to the time when people could have their legal business done in Irish. He thought there was very little in the point about reciprocity with the English Bar, because there would be very little exchange in future.

After brief speeches by Mr. John Good, who opposed the bill, and Mr. Little, who supported it, the debate was adjourned.

BETTING SHOPS INQUIRY.

MR. BLYTHE'S MOTION NEXT WEEK.

An important motion has been tabled by the Free State Minister for Finance for discussion by Dail Eireann on Wednesday next.

The motion is in the following terms:—

"That it is expedient that a Joint Committee, consisting of seven members of the Dail and seven members of the Senate, be appointed to consider the working of the Betting Act, 1926, and to report what amendments for the existing law relating to the business of bookmaking are desirable. That the Committee have power to send for persons, papers and records."

The purpose of the motion, which is fairly certain to be accepted, is to investigate the conduct of betting shops—with, no doubt, particular reference to the growing evil of juvenile betting—and to suggest some provisions for their better regulation.

District Justice Ford at Galway District Court presented Edward Faherty, fisherman, the Claddagh, Galway, with a cheque for £10 and a certificate presented by the Carnegie Hero Trust Fund for his heroism in diving into the sea at the Claddagh and rescuing a boy, Thomas Feeney, who had accidentally fallen in.

MACHINE GUN IN THE STREET.

CHICAGO LIQUOR GANGS AGAIN AT WAR.

CHICAGO, Friday.

Police squads and detectives are patrolling South side streets in readiness for further outbreaks of the beer warfare, which was renewed with the machine-gun shooting there last night, in which one man was murdered and another seriously wonuded.

"Boss" J. Murphy, said to be a friend of Ralph Sheldon, the notorious gangster, was shot by a hail of machine-gun bullets as he stood on a street corner talking with Mike Quinlan, a confederate.

Witnesses who rushed to the side of the men as the assassins' motor car sped away, found Murphy dead and Quinlan badly wounded.

The shooting followed four bombings, which wrecked as many buildings in different sections of the city.

All the bombings were said by the police to be reprisals by one faction of the city's beer-running brotherhood against another, which had "cut in" on the former's profits, and more shootings are momentarily expected.

MR. COOLIDGE'S LITTLE LIST.

SOME ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
FREDERICKSBURG (VIRGINIA), Friday.

A new national park commemorating the bitterest battles fought on Virginian soil during the American Civil War was dedicated here this afternoon by President Coolidge.

Accompanied by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, and senior officers of the Army and Navy, the President drove in State through the town, while a salute of 21 guns was fired. The park dedicated by Mr. Coolidge commemorates the battlefields of the Wilderness, Chancellorsville, Spottsylvania, Fredericksburg and Salem Church. Its establishment was authorised at the last session of Congress in memory of the 113,000 soldiers of the Union and Confederate armies who fell within its limits.

Speaking from a platform overlooking the battlefield of Fredericksburg, Mr. Coolidge declared that, as a result of the union brought about between the North and South after the Civil War, American prosperity and standards of living had reached levels never before experienced by any people in human history.

In his opinion also the resentment between the North and South was being forgotten and the reconciliation was becoming complete.

After referring to America's progress since 1860, the President declared that the world war had shown the soundness of America's financial structure. When abandoning her rôle as a debtor nation, she advanced large sums to foreign countries, besides carrying on her own war activities, with no internal economic interruption. Mr. Coolidge concluded with a pæan of praise for America.

"Our charities are lavish and worldwide; our missionary efforts reach in every direction; our actions on behalf of the limitation of naval armaments have been of the greatest benefit to all mankind; our influence in negotiating the recent peace treaty is well-known—it raises the greatest barrier against war ever created by the art of man."

FAMOUS TAPESTRIES STOLEN.

EIGHT BURGLARS IN CUSTODY.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Friday.

Eight burglars have been arrested on a charge of breaking into the Château de Fresnaux-Montchevreuil, belonging to the Marquis de Balleroy, and the Château Ne Brumare, belonging to Prince de Robech, and stealing articles of considerable value, among them being some Aubusson tapestries.

The haul is estimated at ten million francs, but the major portion has been recovered.

LADY BAILEY'S FLIGHT

JOURNEY TO LONDON RESUMED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
LOANDA, ANGOLA, Friday.

Lady Bailey, who is on her return flight from the Cape to London, and had been held up here for minor repairs to her machine, left to-day for Boma and Leopoldville. She was seen off by a number of British, Portuguese and other residents.

Her probable route will be Bandundu, Coquilatville, Bengi, Fort Archambaut, Fort Lami, and Zidner or Kano.

AIRMAN'S EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

FORCED LANDING AMONG TRIBESMEN.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MADRID, Friday.

A message received here to-day from Cape Juby, Spanish Morocco, reports the exciting adventure of a Spanish airman who had the ill fortune to make a false landing in a wild region of the interior.

He was piloting one of the two aeroplanes that set out to deal with the party of cattle thieves reported to have been marauding a few days ago. Trouble developed while the aeroplane was flying over a point 125 miles south of Cape Juby and over six miles inland.

The lieutenant and two natives who were in the aeroplane were somewhat alarmed to see a crowd of tribesmen rushing towards them, but their anxiety was set at rest when their hosts showed signs of the greatest friendliness. The tribesmen were most attentive to the fliers, all three of whom were more or less injured by the shock of the forced landing.

Later they were all taken off by aeroplanes of the Aero Postal Company.

THE VINCENNES ACCIDENT.

INCREASED DEATH-ROLL.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Friday.

It was announced this evening that the death-roll in the Vincennes building collapse has now risen to eleven. Seven or eight workmen are still buried. One man was rescued to-day after having been buried twenty-seven hours under the ruins. He was taken to hospital.

The Intransigeant announces that the contractor and foreman of the ill-fated building have been arrested. The contractor said that cracks appeared in the building three weeks ago, but he did not attach any importance to the fact, and contented himself with having them filled in with cement and with staying up the threatened walls.

All hope of saving the men who are believed to be still buried in the ruins has now been abandoned, but a fresh gang of workers has taken on the work of clearing away the débris.

NO NEWS OF THE MISSING AIRMAN.

A LAST HOPE.

SEEN AT MIDNIGHT ON WEDNESDAY.

No news of Lieutenant-Commander Macdonald had been received up to this morning, but Mrs. Macdonald is still hopeful of the safety of her husband, who left Newfoundland on Wednesday in a Moth aeroplane, in which he intended to fly the Atlantic.

The aeroplane was sighted by the Dutch steamer Hardenberg on Wednesday night.

The United States liner Leviathan yesterday wirelessed the following message to London:—

"Following radio relayed from ss. Hardenberg, via ss. Baltic, to Devizes:—

"Aeroplane passed steamer Hardenberg latitude 53.29 N., longitude 41.30 W., 00.30 G.M.T."

The message indicates, adds the Press Association, that Lieutenant-Commander Macdonald was about six hundred miles from Newfoundland five and a half hours after setting out on the flight.

On his arrival in Manchester yesterday to inspect the site for the new municipal aerodrome, Sir Sefton Brancker, Director of Civil Aviation, questioned regarding the chances of Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Macdonald having reached land on this side, said: "I have still hopes that he may be somewhere in Norway, or some place like it."

He added that before the flight started he was prepared to bet "ten to one" on the commander.

U.S. BANKERS KILLED IN AIR CRASH.

SISTER 'PLANE TO BREMEN NOSE DIVES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
ATLANTIC CITY, Thursday.

Two men were fatally injured and five others seriously hurt this evening when the Junker monoplane W 33, a sister 'plane to the trans-Atlantic 'plane Bremen, nose-dived and crashed from a height of 600 feet.

The passengers of the monoplane were all bankers attending a Convention of the Investment Bankers' Association here, and they were taking a sight-seeing trip over the city.

The wives of both the men fatally injured were at the aerodrome at the time and saw the machine crash.

The aeroplane was of the dual control type, and the manager of the service expressed the opinion that one of the passengers had crawled from his cabin into the relief pilot's cockpit, and got frightened when the pilot executed a "wing over," and froze on to the control.

When being carried to hospital the pilot kept crying out: "Getta hell away from those controls."

Mr. Octave Chanute, one of the killed, was an aviation enthusiast and a close friend of Colonel Lindbergh. His grandfather, who was also named Octave Chanute, was known as the father of aviation in America.

LONDON TO BERLIN BY AIR.

A NEW "RECORD."

From Reuter's Correspondent.
BERLIN, Friday.

Captain Neville Stack, the well-known test pilot, landed this afternoon at the Tempelhofer field at 4:52, having accomplished a non-stop flight from Croydon in the record time for a light 'plane of 4 hours and 52 minutes. Captain Stack was flying an Avro Cirrus Avian light aeroplane.

[The previous record non-stop flight to Berlin, a distance of 615 miles, is held by Captain McIntosh, who did the trip in four and three-quarter hours. Captain McIntosh, however, was flying a 240 h.p. machine, while Captain Stack's aeroplane was driven by an engine of only 80 h.p.]

PASSENGERS' PLIGHT IN FRANCE.

HELD UP BY "LIGHTNING" STRIKES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MARSEILLES, Friday.

A number of passenger vessels are held up here as the result of a series of "lightning" strikes, one after another. The crews of various vessels refused to go on board, claiming an increase of pay, whereupon the owners decided to cancel a number of sailings.

As a protest against the cancellations the seamen then decreed a twenty-four hours' strike, which is general in the port to-day, the Marseilles dockers having ceased work in sympathy with the seamen. Only a few foreign boats have succeeded in leaving port.

Negotiations between seamen and owners seem to have reached a deadlock, and a delegation of passengers held up by the dispute have called upon the Prefecture, which has sent an official report upon their plight to Paris.

NICKEL MERGER RUMOUR.

MORE "FIREWORKS" ON WALL STREET.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Friday.

Wall street was full of rumours to-day that negotiations were under way for a merger between International Nickel and the Mond Nickel Company of England, two of the largest nickel companies in the world. The union of these concerns would create a virtual world's monopoly in nickel.

Mr. Charles Hayden, President of International Nickel, to-day denied the report, but nevertheless the shares of that company continued their fireworks on the Stock Exchange, scoring a further advance to 190, compared with the year's lowest level of 73.

EXCITEMENT ON 'CHANGE.

With many shares that have a reputation for making prodigious jumps again acting spectacularly, prices continued whirling upward on the Stock Exchange to-day. Despite the new high total for Federal Reserve brokers' loans announced last night and heavy week-end profit-taking, orders poured on to the floor in such a gigantic volume that the "ticker" was hopelessly behind before the end of the first hour, while the final quotation was not printed until fifty-five minutes after the market had closed.

Total sales amounted to nearly 4,700,000 dollars, exceeding even yesterday's high figure.

International Nickel was the most sensational individual feature, actually touching 190 points. Adams Express soared 22 points to a high record of 410 points, and retained all its gain, while Montgomery Ward and American Smelting only lost 1 point after 19 and 14 points rises to new high levels.

Radio emerged from comparative obscurity and closed at 238, with a 20 points rise, while Curtiss Wright, American International and John S. Manville were from 7 to 11 points higher.

DETROIT ON THE LEE.

FORD PLANT COMING FROM U.S.A.

BIG CORK STAFF.

DAILY OUTPUT OF 300 TRACTORS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
DETROIT, MICHIGAN, Friday.

It was announced to-day that the machinery of the main Fordson tractor plant is being shipped to Cork, where it will be reassembled and placed in operation by January 1st.

Manufacture of the Fordson tractor here was discontinued about a year ago to allow more space for the manufacture of the new model "A" Ford car.

The Cork plant will be operated on the basis of two eight-hour shifts a day, turning out about 300 tractors daily.

Ford officials say that the Soviet Government recently placed an order for £200,000 worth of tractors.

WELCOME NEWS.

From Our Own Correspondent.
CORK, Friday.

The announcement that the entire Fordson tractor plant at Detroit is being shipped to Cork will come as particularly welcome news to the people of Cork.

This is the first step towards the establishment of the Marina works as the firm's headquarters for the manufacture of tractors, a step which was announced in the Irish Times on Monday, 8th October.

This reorganisation of the works here is expected to mean a period of unprecedented prosperity in connection with the factory, as upwards of 3,000 workers probably will obtain regular employment once the necessary alterations in plant and machinery are completed, but this cannot take place before the end of the present year.

The amount of wages paid to the workers will reach almost £1,000,000 annually.

The effect of this development will be felt in many directions in Cork, and the increase in exports is of importance to the whole Free State.

LORD LONDONDERRY

TO HAVE A SEAT IN THE CABINET.

The assumption made in some quarters that the Marquess of Londonderry, the new First Commissioner of Works, will not be a member of the Cabinet is incorrect, says the Press Association. There is authority for stating that his appointment carries with it a seat in the Cabinet.

Lord Peel was a member of the Cabinet as First Commissioner of Works. There have been occasions, both before and since the war, when the First Commissioner did not have a seat in the Cabinet, but the office has more frequently carried Cabinet rank.

MORE RAILWAY 'BUSES.

GREAT NORTHERN NEW MOVE.

The directors of the Great Northern Railway Company are contemplating the inauguration of a road transport system of their own, an Irish Times representative was officially informed yesterday.

Although no definite and final decision has yet been taken, the probability is that the company will have its own road services in the near future.

The Great Northern Company, like the other Irish railways, has been feeling the effects of the competition of the numerous motor omnibus services which now run throughout the country.

In the Irish Times of yesterday the company published an advertisement inviting applications from candidates for post of superintendent of its road motor services.

THE COWDRAY ESTATES.

A NEW LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

The Aberdeenshire and Kincardineshire estates of Annie, Viscountess Cowdray, are being formed into a limited liability company, with a capital of between £600,000 and £700,000. The estates include Dunecht, Kirkville, Hill of Cairnie, Raemoir, Campfield, Forest of Birse and Dunnottar Castle, extending in all to over 30,000 acres.

At a meeting at Dunecht it was explained to the heads of the various departments on the estates that a company to be known as Dunecht Estates, Limited, had been formed, and would shortly be incorporated as a private company under the Joint Stock Companies Acts. The capital, fixed at between £600,000 and £700,000, would be divided into preference and ordinary shares.

It wa sstated that the company was being incorporated to centralise the management of Lady Cowdray's various estates in Scotland. The expenditure on maintenance and improvements had been on a very high scale, and it was necessary, in view of modern tendencies and methods, to adopt the company system. In carrying out this scheme Lady Cowdray was putting into effect the wishes of the late Lord Cowdray.

Lady Cowdray will be managing director of the new company, the other two directors being Mr. James L. Mounsey, of Messrs. John C. Brodie and Sons, Writers to the Signet, Edinburgh, Director and Secretary, and Mr. David Morris, of Dunecht, Director and Factor.

IRISH KENNEL CLUB.

THE NATIONAL BREEDS.

MR. JUSTICE HANNA'S SUGGESTIONS.

The importance of raising the standard of the Irish breeds of dogs was urged in a lecture on "Kennel Government in Ireland: its Actualities and Possibilities," delivered by Mr. R. G. Quirk, Secretary to the Irish Kennel Club, in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night. The lecture was under the auspices of the Irish Kennel Club.

COMPLAINTS AT SHOWS.

Mr. Quirk said that 11,000 dogs were registered with the Irish Kennel Club. From time to time people at shows saw something done which was not right, and complained to the club. The complaint was often made in a haphazard manner, and without any evidence whatever. He need hardly say that, with two judges, several barristers, and solicitors, and a number of other keen-minded people on the Committee, complaints of wrong-doing were fully examined. If ever they hoped to put things in this country upon a more or less perfect basis it was to the thorough organisation of the specialist clubs that they must look in the first instance.

As regards possibilities, the lecturer said that the club was not half as efficient as it might be. The bulk of people who took an interest in dogs in this country did so for love of the sport. They enjoyed trying to breed the best stock, attending dog shows, and meeting their "doggy" friends, but, on the other hand, there were others interested in dogs for the purpose of augmenting their incomes. The mistake that the latter people often made was that they tried to breed "fliers" from poor stock. He believed that Ireland was the best country in the world for the breeding of dogs, particularly in so far as the five Irish national breeds were concerned. Their duty was to attract the eye of the foreigner to the Irish dogs. The Irish Kennel Club show was now looked up to as the dog show of the year.

MR. JUSTICE HANNA.

Mr. Justice Hanna, who presided, referring to the financial position of the club, said that if they wanted the sport to continue the members must do some practical work themselves. The majority of dog-fanciers in Ireland seemed to think that they had discharged their obligation by paying a small fee to their club. If they wanted the Kennel Club to continue in its present state of efficiency, and if they could not get sufficient members to keep the club going financially, he believed that they would have to put their hands in their pockets and try and carry on. He was aware that the staff was overworked. If they had not the means they would have to reduce the staff. He would not stand for the club getting into debt.

He thought that their great object should be to bring to a state of pre-eminence the five national breeds—the Irish wolfhound, the Irish setter, the Irish water spaniel, the Irish red terrier and the Irish blue terrier. He would like to see the Kennel Club in the position that a person who wanted to buy one of these dogs would come to Ireland and know where the best dog was obtainable. There were good dogs of other breeds in this country. They had the fox terrier, but they could not expect to raise the standard of that breed higher than it was in England.

GATE RECEIPTS.

He thought that the membership of Ard Chomhairle was too large, and they should, to a certain extent, prevent duplicate representation of clubs. The gate receipts at their shows usually amounted to £250, but if they wanted to make the shows successful the amount should be £400. To get that sum they would have to increase the prices of admission.

Mr. J. J. Malone said that more encouragement should be given to the novice who was interested in dogs.

Mr. Fintan Fitzpatrick, proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, said that if they asked the members to assist financially he was sure that the response would be instantaneous.

Mr. H. B. Fottrell, Vice-Chairman of the Irish Kennel Club, seconded the vote of thanks, which was passed unanimously.

IRISH FARMERS' UNION.

THE SINGLING OF RAILWAYS.

A largely attended meeting of the National Executive of the Irish Farmers' Union was held at 37 Upper Fitzwilliam street, Dublin, on Thursday last. Mr. R. A. Butler presided.

A letter was read from the Great Southern Railways Company requesting that a representative of the Union should be nominated to serve on a committee which was being set up for the development of business in the Free State. Senator M. F. O'Hanlon was appointed to act on the committee.

Mr. Marcus Daly, Galway, said that strong opposition should be offered to the proposal of the Great Southern Railways Company to single the line from Clonsilla to Attymon on the ground that it would be detrimental to the interests of farmers, as it would lessen the facilities for the transport of live stock and goods. This view was supported by several members of the National Executive.

On the motion of Mr. C. O'Neill, South Tipperary, seconded by Mr. M. Doyle, Wexford, it was resolved:—"That, in view of the acute situation which has arisen owing to the proposal to single certain railway lines, and the general uneconomic condition of railway transport in the Free State, we call upon the Government to appoint a commission of inquiry into the whole transport situation."

The following resolution from County Kilkenny Farmers' Association was adopted:—"That, notwithstanding that five years have elapsed since the passing of the 1923 Land Act, a large number of tenants who purchased under that Act are still paying 2s. in the £ more than if the purchase were completed, we call upon the Government to fix the appointed day for the vesting of all lands not yet vested under this Act, so as to give all tenants affected the full relief due to them under the Act."

It was also decided to ask the Farmers' Party to raise this question in the Dail at the earliest opportunity.

ENFORCING VACCINATION ACTS.

WARNING TO FERMOY URBAN COUNCIL.

At the meeting of the Fermoy Urban Council, Mr. Matthew Young, Chairman, presiding, the Clerk read the following letter from the Chief State Solicitor:—"I have been instructed by the Free State Minister for Local Government and Public Health that your Council have failed to carry out the statutory duty imposed upon them of enforcing the Vaccination Acts in their district, notwithstanding repeated communications made to them by the Minister, pointing out the number of defaulters and requesting that steps be taken by the Council to ensure that all defaulters comply with the law.

"I have also to state that I have been instructed to institute proceedings by way of mandamus to compel your Council to carry out their duties under the Acts referred to, and to name as special defendants, with a view to recovery of the costs of such proceedings, those members of the Council whose action has rendered such proceedings necessary."

After discussion, Mr. Kearse proposed the following resolution:—"That the Council, before taking any action to enforce the Vaccination Acts, ask the Free State Minister for Local Government and Public Health to guarantee the purity of the lymph as given out at the dispensaries, and, if such guarantee is given, the Council are prepared to enforce the Acts."

Mr. McCarthy seconded, and the Clerk was directed to send the resolution to the Minister and inform the Chief State Solicitor of the Council's action.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE ELECTION.

REPUBLICANS MAY GET BIGGER MAJORITY.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

An increased Republican majority in the United States Senate seems virtually assured as the campaign enters its final stages. The Democrats are on the defensive, with as many as a dozen of their present Senators facing stiff contests and possible defeat.

Present Republican Senators, with but two or three exceptions, are certain of re-election. If Mr. Herbert Hoover is elected to the Presidency he is likely to have the support of a safe majority of the Senate. Even if Governor "Al." Smith wins, the Republicans expect to keep control of the Senate by a narrow majority.

The present Senate includes forty-seven Republicans, forty-six Democrats, and one Farmer-Labour member.

Thirty-four Senators are to be elected in November. In Maine a Senator has already been elected, making thirty-five, who will take their seats next March.

States where the Republicans believe that they have a fighting chance to make gains include Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Delaware, in the East; Maryland, West Virginia and Missouri, among the border States; Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming and Washington, in the North-West, and Arizona in the South-West.

About the only chances for Democratic gains seem to be in Indiana and New Mexico. The outcome of the Presidential contest in the Eastern States will have an important bearing on the Senatorial fights in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Delaware. All of these States are normally Republican, but must be carried by Governor Smith if the Democrats are to win the Presidency.

SUICIDE TO EVADE ARREST.

HUNTED MAN SHOOTS HIMSELF.

"Deceased shot himself in trying to evade arrest," was the verdict at the inquest at Petrockstow, North Devon, last night, on the body of Percival Claude Lewis (28), labourer, who, after being hunted by the police for three days, shot himself through the heart by placing the barrel of a gun against his bared chest, and pulling the trigger with a piece of string.

"It is satisfactory that we are not here on a much more serious matter," said the Coroner. "In one way it is a satisfactory ending, and I am glad that no one else has been hurt, although I feel very sorry for the parents."

Lewis was wanted for stealing a bullock from a farmer, which he sold at an auction for £12 9s. The police called at his house early on Monday morning, and were told that he was upstairs. Leaving a constable outside, the sergeant went upstairs, but, hearing a noise, rushed down, and saw the constable pursuing the man, who disappeared in a wood. On Tuesday morning a farmer found that while he was out milking someone had entered his farmhouse and taken his breakfast, some clothes and boots, and his gun.

DOCTOR CRITICISED.

ALLEGED REFUSAL TO ATTEND DYING WOMAN.

"It is a matter of surprise and regret that the doctor refused to come to the assistance of this woman when she was dying within a few yards of his surgery. There was no legal obligation on him, but I am at a loss to understand the mentality of a medical man who refused to relieve her suffering," said the Salford City Coroner (Mr. A. Howard Flint) addressing the jury at the inquest at Pendleton Town Hall, yesterday, on Mrs. Hannah Parr (56), of Longmead road, Salford, a member of the Salford Board of Guardians, who was killed by a motor car while crossing Bolton road, Salford.

"Happily such cases as this are rare. I have had many instances when medical men in Salford had gone out of their way to render assistance in emergencies arising out of street accidents," added the Coroner. "I am sorry that I have no jurisdiction in this case, but I think you will join me in expressing disapproval of this callous conduct."

Constable Kenyon said that after the accident he went to the doctor's surgery, but the doctor refused to assist, although he told him that the woman was bleeding to death.

At this stage the Coroner said that he would adjourn the case sine die, as the driver of the motor car had been accused of manslaughter.

"ENOUGH FOR ANY MAN."

During a discussion at the Longford County Council meeting regarding the County Surveyor's salary, Mr. Robert Belton said: "£375 as a salary is enough for any position —even quite enough for President Cosgrave."

Mr. J. J. Murphy, B.E., holds the position of acting County Surveyor in Longford, at a salary of £375, with an addition of £50 for travelling allowance. There is no cost of living bonus. This salary was fixed by the County Council, although the Local Government Department advised a higher salary nearly two years ago, and several times since then they urged the desirability of increasing it. The acting County Surveyor expressed his willingness to continue in office at the salary and the Local Appointments Commissioners informed the Department that the salary did not attract suitable applicants, although the position had been frequently advertised.

A further letter from the Department of Local Government was read at the meeting. "The Minister," it stated, "as indicated in his letter of 6th July last, could not agree to any other course than the filling of the post at a salary appropriate to attract suitable applicants. The Minister trusts that the County Council may accept this point of view, as it is desirable that a permanent appointment should not be deferred any longer."

Mr. O'Neill said that the Department's letter was not a reply to the resolution forwarded by the Council, that the Council was satisfied with Mr. Murphy's services, and requesting his appointment to the permanent office of County Surveyor.

THE MAN WITH THE PEN.

Mr. Sullivan—The present salary is sufficient, and there is no necessity for all this dictation from the Local Government Department. What does a man sitting in an office in Dublin with a pen behind his ear know about the state of the country and its inability to pay high salaries? he asked.

In reply to Mr. Dunne, the Secretary (Mr. E. D. McCann) said that the present salary was the same as that paid in 1921.

Mr. Dunne—Then it should be cut down. Farmers are not in the same position to pay now as they were then, and the cost of living has gone down.

Mr. O'Neill proposed—"That we refuse to raise the salary we have already fixed for the office of County Surveyor, as we have at present a temporary surveyor, who has been sanctioned by the Local Government Department as a qualified engineer, willing to act at the salary so fixed, and we respectfully ask the Local Government Department to make permanent his appointment, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the representatives of the constituency in the Dail."

The resolution was passed unanimously.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

INCOME TAX COLLECTOR SENT FOR TRIAL.

At Youghal John O'Daly, income tax collector, Lismore, Co. Waterford, was charged in custody before District Justice O'Dwyer with the alleged embezzlement of £102 11s. 6d., the property of the Revenue Commissioners. The accused man was returned for trial to the Waterford Circuit Court.

JEKYLL AND HYDE HANGED.

MURDER THAT SHOCKED AMERICA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SAN QUENTIN, CALIFORNIA, Friday.

William Edward Hickman, the youth whose brutal murder of a twelve years old Los Angeles schoolgirl caused a sensation all over America, was hanged in the jail here this morning.

Few crimes in recent years in America have been more revolting than that of which Hickman was guilty. He kidnapped from school a twelve years old girl named Marian Parker, and then rang up her father, giving the name of Fox, and asking for a ransom of 1,500 dollars (£300). The father kept an appointment that the kidnapper made, but the police were watching, and the man did not turn up.

Then followed threatening messages and a plaintive note from the little victim:—"Dear Daddy and Mother, I wish I could come home. I think I will die if I have to be here much longer. Won't someone tell me why this had to happen to me. Daddy, please do what this man tells you, for he will kill me if you dont."

HORRIBLE DISCOVERY.

Finally, the father persuaded the police to allow him to meet the man alone, armed with the necessary ransom. The man drove up to a lonely street corner, his face concealed by a handkerchief, took the ransom from Mr. Parker, and showed him the child, apparently asleep on the floor of the car. He drove off, saying: "I will put her out a little way down the road."

A hundred feet farther on he dragged the girl out of the car, and drove rapidly away. The distracted father hurried to the spot, and found, not his daughter, but her dismembered body. Her legs had been severed from the trunk, and her arms had been cut off at the elbows. The murderer threw the severed portions away in a public park as he drove to keep the appointment with the father.

The rest of the body showed signs of the fiendish cruelty of the abductor. The throat had been bound round with wire so tightly that it cut into the flesh, and the ends had been brought around the upper part of the face, and used to prop open the eyelids, so that the father might think she was alive.

THE MAN HUNT.

A wave of horror spread through America at the news of the crime. Every man in the Californian police forces was set to work to find the murderer, and crowds held up and roughly handled anyone whom they suspected

A reward of £20,000 was offered for the arrest of the murderer, who was soon discovered to be Hickman, a nineteen years old ex-employé of Mr. Parker's bank, whose release on probation for theft Mr. Parker had opposed.

Hickman headed for the Canadian border, but was recognised in Seattle, traced by the twenty-dollar bills with which he bought petrol for his car in his flight North, and finally arrested in Pendleton, Oregon. He confessed immediately that he kidnapped Marian Parker, saying that he wanted money to go to college, and thought that kidnapping was an easy way out of his difficulty, but he asserted that another man murdered her.

CALLOUS CONFESSION.

Later he admitted that he killed her, and described how at first he treated the child gently, and, becoming friendly with her, took her to a cinema. Afterwards—he continued, in a confession which was surprising in its cold-bloodedness—he left her repeatedly alone in his room tied to a chair, blindfolded, and before going out always frightened her by the display of a revolver and the threat of instant death.

Finally it occurred to him that he had been imprudent in telling her that he was an ex-employé of the bank, as it would enable the police to trace him, and he decided to kill her. He strangled her with a piece of piano wire, and then dismembered the body in a bath-tub, using a pocket-knife. After a visit to the theatre he returned to his room, powdered the child's face, combed her hair and propped her eyelids open so that her father would think she was alive. He then drove the keep the appointment.

ATTEMPTS AT LYNCHING.

Intense indignation was caused by his confession, and an attempt was made to lynch him, but under heavy guards of armed police he was brought from Pendleton to Los Angeles. According to police inquiries, he was found to be a veritable Jekyll and Hyde—at one time a neat and well-behaved boy attending Church and Sunday School and never staying out late, and at other times "The Fox," as he delighted to call himself, planning for weeks the carrying out of a cunning and diabolical murder for revenge.

Attempts to prove him insane at his trial failed, and he was sentenced to death. He was also charged, in company with another man, with the murder of another girl, Ivy Toms, an assistant in a chemist's shop, whom they were accused of having killed in an attempted hold-up. Found guilty of this, he was again sentenced to death.

Since then further efforts have been made to secure his reprieve, on the ground of insanity, but to-day "The Fox" paid the penalty for his crime.

The trap was sprung at 10.10, and Hickman was pronounced dead at 10.25. He approached the gallows calmly, and responded to the Litany for the Dying, which was chanted by the priest who had converted him, but he collapsed several moments before the trap was sprung.

The drop was not so complete as usual, and several of the two hundred witnesses present agreed that death was delayed two or three minutes.

One of the last comforts the doomed man had was the reading of letters from close relations. His mother's letter made him weep—for the first time since his fate was sealed.

Four months from to-day Hickman would have been twenty-one years of age.

CHURCH OF IRELAND MISSION EFFORT.

NEW COUNCIL FORMED.

At the meeting of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland, held last May, a resolution was passed which is likely to have excellent results in the missionary work of the Church of Ireland. The Board of Missions was abolished and a Council equipped with extensive powers was formed. This Council will be the official body representing all the Church's missionary work overseas and will be in direct communication with the Missionary Council of the Church of England and with other missionary organisations.

The first meeting of the Council was held last Thursday at the Representative Church Body's House, 52 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. There was a large attendance of members, including the Archbishop of Dublin and nine Diocesan Bishops. The Bishop of Cork was appointed permanent Chairman, with Canon Baillie and Mr. J. P. Burkitt as Honorary Secretaries. A long and useful discussion ensued on the policy of the Council. The Bishop of Cork laid great stress on the advantages to be derived from the formation of missionary schools. He showed, from his experience in his own diocese, how possible it is to form these schools anywhere. They last for a few days, during which time the members live together, and, through prayer and study, gain, and are entitled to impart much missionary inspiration. The next meeting of the Council will be held on Thursday, November 22nd, at 12 o'clock.

DRUGS TAKEN FROM A CAR.

SUFFICIENT TO KILL MANY PEOPLE.

The Smethwick (Staffordshire) police are anxious to secure the return of the contents of a doctor's attaché case which were taken from his car. The case was found with documents intact, but drugs and poisons had been removed.

They contained highly dangerous substances in small tubes, sufficient to kill many people.

LORD ROSSLYN SUED.

LOSSES AT LE TOUQUET.

The sequel to a meeting at the Casino at Le Touquet in 1926 was heard in the King's Bench, London, yesterday, when Mr. Lewis Schaverien, formerly a registered moneylender of London, but now living at East Grinstead, sued the Earl of Rosslyn to recover £340, the balance on two promissory notes.

Mr. J. B. Melville, for the plaintiff, said that the signature to the notes and defaults were admitted.

Mr. Eustace Joy, for Lord Rosslyn, said that his lordship's attitude was that he had paid back the money, together with a substantial sum for interest. He was advised that the plaintiff could not recover under the transaction which did not take place at his registered offices, as required by the Act. While Lord Rosslyn was at the Casino at Le Touquet in September, 1926, continued counsel, he found himself sitting next to Mr. Schaverien, and they began chatting on sporting matters. Lord Rosslyn was not having a successful time at the tables and lost what money he had with him. There was a camaraderie of the tables under such circumstances, and Lord Rosslyn borrowed from his neighbour 5,000 francs, about £30. Matters did not get better, and Lord Rosslyn found himself rather up a tree by the small hours of the morning, and wrote to Mr. Schaverien asking for a loan of £500, repayable monthly, or at the end of six months.

LOAN REPAID.

Mr. Schaverien agreed to let Lord Rosslyn have £300 only, repayable in six monthly instalments of £90 each. There was a second transaction of exactly the same nature. Between the two transactions Lord Rosslyn gathered that Mr. Schaverien was a money-lender. After Lord Rosslyn had paid back the whole of the principle, £600, he also paid a further sum of £140, and he considered that that was good interest. Lord Rosslyn was a man of substantial means, and was not a bad risk from a money-lender's point of view. An expert would be called who would amply satisfy the Court that the transaction was harsh. The rate of interest charged was about 900 per cent.

Lord Rosslyn gave evidence, and said that Mr. Schaverien promised to come along, and they met in a cocktail bar at Le Touquet. Lord Rosslyn said that his income was at least £500 a month, and sometimes he got a bonus at Christmas, which amounted in 1926 to £2,000.

BORROWED £86,000.

Cross-examined, Lord Rosslyn admitted that throughout his life he had been having recourse to gambling and money-lending. As far back as 1893 he was borrowing very heavily.

Mr. Melville (for plaintiff)—You say that your usual source of supplies (Mr. Sam Lewis) having dried up, you had to seek the scum of the moneylending fraternity?—I did. He had borrowed £86,000, he thought it was more, from Mr. Sam Lewis, but the latter got it all back.

After Lord Rosslyn had left the box, counsel conferred, and ultimately it was announced that an agreement had been reached, and that the case would be withdrawn.

No terms were announced.

ADVICE TO FARMERS.

VALUE OF CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING.

Speaking at a meeting in Wicklow, Mr. Fahy, General Secretary and Organiser of the Irish Farmers' Union, said that since the standardisation of butter and eggs had been accomplished they were commanding the highest price in the British markets. Danish bacon, he said, was marked and graded, and could be traced, like their own eggs, back to the producers. Irish bacon should be graded. Instead of throwing away their barley at £6 per ton, they should feed it properly to their pigs, and at a price less than Indian meal, produce the hard, clean, white pig suitable for bacon and pork, that would bring them 15s. a cwt. more in price and win the British market for them.

If they could procure a million pounds to expend on the manuring of their good pastures they would within five years double the carrying capacity of their grass lands. But now they sold anything anywhere, anyhow. He held strongly for co-operative marketing.

On the question of milk prices, he said if the Dublin dairymen though they could dictate to the farmers of the country it was time to show them differently.

He hoped that when he had the counties organised to meet in conference in Dublin and draft an economic programme to organise co-operative marketing for pork and other produce through Dublin, Waterford and Cork, but they had first got to organise.

The meeting decided to subscribe capital to establish a pork and lamb trade through Wicklow.

DOUBLE BIGAMY CHARGE.

CASE IN ENNIS DISTRICT COURT.

At the Ennis District Court yesterday, a double bigamy charge was heard, the defendants being John Burke, of Drumbiggle, aged about 30 years, and Mary Ellen McGowan (née Ryan), of Pound lane, Ennis. Burke was charged with going through the ceremony of marriage with McGowan while his legal wife (née Kennedy) was alive. The woman, McGowan, was charged with going through the marriage ceremony with Burke while her lawful husband, William McGowan, was alive.

Sergeant Bernard Sherlock gave evidence of arrest. When charged and cautioned, the accused, Burke, said: "I knew that my lawful wife was alive when I married Mrs. McGowan."

When charged and cautioned, Mrs. McGowan said:—"I admit everything. I ran away with Burke on the 13th January, 1923, and lived with him until we got married at St. John's Church, Tralee, on the 30th May, 1923. We lived together since, and I have had two children of the marriage."

Burke was returned for trial to the next Circuit Court, bail being allowed in £100 and two sureties of £50 each.

Superintendent J. J. Kelleher applied for the remand of Mrs. McGowan in custody, so that an effort might be made to trace her lawful husband, William McGowan, who was supposed to be in South Shields.

Mrs. McGowan was remanded for a week in custody.

ARMED RAID FOR BAND INSTRUMENTS.

ECHO OF THE TROUBLED TIMES.

An interesting action was heard at Monaghan Circuit Court, before Judge Sheehy, in which Patrick Sherry, James McKenna and Patrick McKenna, trustees of Division 12, Ancient Order of Hibernians, of Clara, Co. Monaghan, brought a claim for £70 compensation in respect of a banner and band instruments seized by armed men on September 24, 1921. The case had been heard before Mr. Commissioner Henry in 1923, who, it was stated, reported for £67 5s. 6d. compensation

Mr. Basil McGuckian, for the plaintiffs, said that no note could be found of Mr. Henry's award, while Mr. J. J. Keenan, State Solicitor, who appeared for the Free State Minister for Finance, said that no such award had been made.

Edward Flood, president of the division, gave evidence that on the night of September 24, 1921, a number of armed men came to his house and demanded the drums of the division.

Mr. Keenan urged that when the instruments were taken in March, 1921, those who took them were not acting against the Government, and the action of the raiders could not be held to be for the overthrow of the Government, and the case must accordingly fail.

The Judge held that this was done by an unlawful organisation. There was a National Army at the time, and he was entitled to infer that the men who did this were not members of the regularly-constituted national forces. He would report in favour of the applicants, and fix the compensation at £37 16s., with £3 3s. expenses.

LIVELY DAY FOR MRS. McPHERSON.

GLASGOW STUDENTS IN HILARIOUS MOOD.

EVANGELIST "SCARED STIFF."

Mrs. Aimee McPherson, the Los Angeles "hot Gospeller," was given an amazing reception yesterday by students of Glasgow University, whom she had been invited by the University Union to address. The students are in hilarious mood over the Rectorial election, and the welcome was elaborately staged.

As she entered the University Debating Hall, which was packed to the doors with more than a thousand students, she saw four burly students squatting on the floor in front of the platform indulging in a game of pontoon. Empty beer and whiskey bottles were whisked from every pocket, and, instead of water, a glass of beer was placed on the speaker's table. From the galleries were suspended placards bearing the words: "Have you brought your chewing gum"? and "Here's to good old whiskey."

All the male students got to their feet when Sister Aimee reached the platform, and the card players immediately draped the platform with their cards. Mrs. McPherson seemed nervous and amazed when the male chorus struck up to a hymn tune, "Oh, Aimee dear, we love you so," which was followed by a rendering of "Here's to Good Old Whiskey." An empty beer bottle was lowered from the balcony in front of the bewildered evangelist, and paper streamers soon covered the platform.

AN OFFER OF BEER.

When she rose to speak Mrs. McPherson gave a little cough, and a student stepped forward with a glass of beer, which was refused. In front of the Gospeller about a dozen girls students, seated under a large notice, "Ladies May Smoke," were puffing at cigarettes.

A reference by Mrs. McPherson to her old school days brought forth a chorus of "Old Soldiers Never Die," and at its termination she said: "Yesterday, when I received your invitation to come here, my heart rejoiced. Now I am scared stiff." In the midst of the uproar she could be heard appealing for silence, and then an amazing transformation took place. With her hands clasped Sister Aimee prayed with deep emotion in her voice. Dead silence prevailed, but when the prayer was over the Evangelist again was drowned in noise.

QUIETNESS SECURED.

On the advice of the Chairman she sat down while a strong appeal was made for a fair hearing. "Mrs. McPherson would like all those who wish to hear her speak to hold up their hands," shouted the Chairman.

Every hand went up and the Evangelist began her address, which received a courteous and quiet hearing. She won over her audience with a story of an undertaker who, while attending to the funeral of an Atheist looked at the body and said: "Oh! poor man; he dosen't believe in Heaven; he dosen't believe in Hell—he's all dressed up and nowhere to go."

At the close of her address, Mrs. McPherson was accorded the honour of the University song: "Ygorra."

Before leaving in her car, which had been decorated with streamers by the students, Mrs. McPherson said to a reporter: "It was a wonderful expenience. They were really wonderful to me; just typical of college boys and girls, who had to have some jollity; but they listened very attentively after my address really started."

THE REV. EDMOND ROBINSON.

RETIRING FROM ST. PAUL'S, GLENAGEARY.

A correspondent writes:—The entire diocese of Dublin, his many friends, and, above all, his parishioners, will be sorry that the Rev. Edmond Robinson, M.A., Rector of St. Paul's, Glenageary, acting on the advice of his doctor, has sent in his resignation of his parish, and that it has been accepted.

There was no more devoted and faithful parish clergyman in the Church of Ireland. He simply loved his work, and was indefatigable in visiting both the sick and the well, and in his care of the churches committed to his charge.

Mr. Robinson was ordained for the Curacy of Clonmel, Diocese of Cashel, in 1881. He came to Dublin in 1887, and worked in the Irish Church Mission and in the old Molyneux Church, Peter street. He then was appointed to St. Mark's, and subsequently to St. Thomas's. In St. Mark's he was the means of the fine parochial schools being built in Westland Row at a total cost of over £4,000. In St. Thomas's he did yeoman's work, and only relinquished it on his appointment to Glenageary in 1902. In Glenageary, besides the chancel, a fine parochial hall was built, costing nearly £2,000; the war memorial reached £1,000, and the electric lighting £150. Mr. Robinson's zeal for missions is well known, and St. Paul's contributed the largest sum given by any parish in Ireland last year—namely, £700.

In conclusion, we will only add that Mr. Robinson has worked, as his record shows, in many different kinds of parishes—from St. Mark's and St. Thomas's, in the slums of Dublin, to the well-to-do parish of St. Paul's Glenageary. In all of them his ministry was eminently successful, and he earned the respect and love of all his parishioners, for he never spared himself; but always sought to promote the temporal and spiritual interests of his flock. It is hard to understand how such a ministry received no diocesan recognition except a small "good service" grant. Probably, it was because he never put himself forward; but always sought the advancement of others. May he be long spared to enjoy a well-earned rest

U.S. MARKETS.

COPPER SHARES SUPPORTED.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Stocks at the opening ruled strong, and speculation for the advance gathered momentum, despite the week's increase of nearly 75,000,000 dollars in brokers' loans, together with unusually heavy week-end profit-taking. Pools, encouraged by the recent easing of money rates, pushed forward their favourites, but the fact of the "ticker" being 40 minutes behind early in the afternoon tended to discourage trading. Montgomery Ward was the most prominent, and soared 19 points, while Coppers were supported on the expectation of an early increase in the price of the commodity, American Smelting and Refining being marked up 14 points. International Nickel advanced 23 points on unconfirmed rumours of merger negotiations with the Mond Nickel Company. Radio again stepped into the speculative spot light when reaching the new high level of 233; and Warner Brothers issues, Murray Corporaton, and Du Pont were among the numerous advances of 5 to 7 points. Motors, however, eased, owing to the disappointing third quarter Hudson report. In the final hour interest in Merchandising issues revived, while General Electric, Adams Express, Wright Aero, and Greene Cananea Copper rose extremely fast. The market closed strong. Government Bonds steady. Railroad Bonds firm. The day's sales totalled 4,720,000 shares.

Money on call closed easy at 6½ per cent. bid and 6¾ per cent. asked. All business was done at 6½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady. Silver unchanged at 58.

NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON opened steady, 4 points up to 2 points down. Steady Liverpool cables, a forecast for frost over portions of Texas and Oklahoma, and favourable trade reports stimulated early advances; then a reaction set in under the influence of hedge selling and liquidation, but the trade continued to absorb offerings. A further easing in prices was due to the lower spot basis, and the market finished barely steady at declines of 4 to 20 points. Spot steady and 5 points lower. New Orleans futures opened 3 points down to unchanged, but around 10.15 a.m. October touched 19.20, December 19.21, January 19.22, March 19.09, and May 19.05. Values eased off again later, and at 12.45 December was quoted 19.13, January 19.12, March 19.07, May 18.95, and July 18.74. The market closed 6 to 11 points lower. Spot declined 9 points.

CHICAGO, Friday.

The Chicago Board of Trade will close at 12.30 p.m. to-morrow owing to the death of a member.

WHEAT opened steady, ⅛c. up to unchanged, but soon reacted on a forecast for clear and warmer weather. Selling of December and March by North-West houses, along with increased carlot receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, encouraged further recessions; then buying by Eastern houses caused partial recoveries. The market closed barely steady and ⅜c. to ½c. down. Spot easy.

BELFAST PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMME.

Our Belfast Correspondent writes:—The first subscription concert of the present season was given last night by the Belfast Philharmonic Society. There was a large attendance, indicating that the Society is losing none of its popularity with local music lovers. The programme was of a miscellaneous character. Szigeti, whose violin playing was eagerly anticipated, was unable to fulfil his engagement owing to a severe attack of influenza; but Mr. William Primrose was an admirable substitute. With orchestral accompaniment, he played Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E minor," Opus 64, with great ability, particularly the difficult third movement, Allegretto Non Troppo. He was equally effective in two arrangements by Kreisler—Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" and the "Lebieslied Waltz." As an encore he gave an excellent rendering of Kreisler's arrangement of the "Tambourin." Miss Eileen Ledlie sang Bizet's "Agnus Dei" with orchestra, a violin obligato being supplied by Mr. John Crowther, and a harp obligato by Madame Pauline Barker. Later she sang, in German, Schubert's "To the Lyre," "Hedge Roses" and "Margaret at the Spinning Wheel."

The orchestral treat of the evening was Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony No. 8, in B Minor."

The second movement, "Andante Con Moto," displayed the orchestral balance to the best advantage. Greig's overture, "In Autumn," was the opening item. The choruses included the following three operatic choruses, arranged and scored by Sir Henry Wood:—(a) "Crown him ruler," from "Lotharius"; (b) "Now cometh May," for female voices, from "Rinaldo," and (c) "The heart that's contented," from "Admetus." Another very pleasing chorus was the 8-part motet, "The surrender of the soul to the everlasting love" (Op. 18, No. 1), by Peter Cornelius. The concluding items by the chorus was Sir Henry Wood's arrangement of two of Handel's operatic choruses. The chorus was under perfect control throughout, and the parts blended very well. The conductor was Mr. E. Godfrey Brown. Mr. J. H. MacBratney was a sympathetic accompanist.

"BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP SEA."

DISTRICT JUSTICE AND 'BUS DRIVERS.

"Some of these 'buses are driving without any regard for the safety of passengers and public, and the people are afraid of their lives of them," said Superintendent M. J. Higgins at Moate District Court, when Patrick Gilligan, 29 East Wall street, Dublin, was fined 23s. 6d. for driving an omnibus on two occasions on September 17 last between Athlone and Moate at a speed of over 27 miles per hour. The company also was fined 23s. 6d. for aiding and abetting.

The Acting District Justice (Mr. J. H. Rice) said that he was glad the company was prosecuted along with the driver, because the drivers were between the devil and the deep sea, and did not know what to do, as they had to carry out the programme.

PARIS BURGLAR'S STRANGE WEAPON

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS.

A burglar, who broke into a house in Bordeaux, was interrupted in his operations by a young woman. Fearing that she would give the alarm, he brought down on her head a huge ox bone. This primitive weapon caused a terrible gash, but the victim was, nevertheless, able to make her way downstairs, collapsing at the front door in the arms of her mother-in-law, who was just coming in.

Meanwhile the house was surrounded by a police cordon and the burglar was captured. He admitted that his object was robbery.

Patrick McGuinness, Laphoil, Carrick-on-Shannon, has been appointed a Peace Commissioner.

PRINCESS MARY'S VISIT.

PORTADOWN COUNCIL AND THE ARRANGEMENTS.

Mr. David Rock, Chairman, presided at a meeting of the Portadown Urban Council held on Wednesday evening last.

A letter received from the Ministry of Home Affairs for Northern Ireland sanctioned the expenditure of £100 on decorations and the erection of barricades in connection with Princess Mary's visit to the town on the 11th instant.

Mr. G. A. Locke said that the town had been slighted very much by the arrangements made in connection with the visit. All the members of the Council should have been present as representing the citizens at the reception to the Princess. The Council was able to make arrangements in connection with any Royal visit, and it should not be dictated to by Belfast, as was done on this occasion. The arrangements for the visit of the Duke and Duchess of York were better than those made for Princess Mary's visit, because they were left in the Council's hands. They should protest against the way in which Portadown had been insulted.

The Chairman explained that the recent visit was a State one, and that the arrangements for it were in the hands of the Ministry of Home Affairs, who invited only the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Clerks of the various public bodies to meet the Princess.

The Clerk stated that he wrote asking for tickets for members of the Council, and of the social, religious and industrial life of the town, and he got no reply.

A letter was read from the Ministry of Home Affairs stating that everyone was delighted with the arrangements made for the reception of the Royal party at Portadown. Sir Dawson Bates desired to tender to the Chairman of the Urban Council and the other members who were associated with him in connection with the reception his warmest appreciation of the splendid manner in which everything was arranged. The Princess and the other visitors were most deeply impressed with the arrangements made for allowing the children of the town to occupy such a good position in the vicinity of the railway station, and also with the splendid manner in which the town was decorated and the people received them.

LOUTH AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Louth Agricultural Committee, which was held in Drogheda, the following resolution, proposed by Mr. James McCarthy, was adopted unanimously:—"That the Department of Agriculture should at once endeavour to create, protect and stabilise a home market for all native produce, and thus prevent the rapid ruin of tillage farming and the promotion of unemployment and emigration."

SECONDARY TEACHERS' GRIEVANCES.

THE SUPERANNUATION BILL.

At the annual meeting of the Limerick Branch of the Association of Secondary Teachers, Mr. M. H. Daly, B.A., was elected chairman; Miss E. L. Dundon, B.A., H.Dip., vice-chairman, and Mr. J. J. O'Brien, B.A., hon. secretary.

The meeting adopted a resolution from Waterford branch, recommending that a representative meeting of the Munster branches be held without delay to consider any action that may be deemed advisable in the interests of secondary teachers, having regard to present circumstances.

The Superannuation Bill was discussed, and a resolution was passed, declaring that no bill will be acceptable to secondary teachers which does not give to every teacher concerned the benefit of all his services from any age, and in any department of public education, primary, technical or secondary; that, in view of the conditions to which older teachers were compelled to submit for virtually the whole of their teaching career, any scheme that would give them a superannuation allowance of less than the equivalent of three-quarters of their maximum salary "would be monstrously unjust to the teachers concerned, and highly discreditable to the departments concerned in the framing of such scheme."

LORD BANBURY RESIGNS.

RESULT OF ROYAL SOCIETY POLL.

Following a meeting of the Council of the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in London, the following official statement was issued:—

"After a meeting of the Council of the R.S.P.C.A., held to-day, the Chairman, Lord Banbury, announced the result of the recently taken poll on the question of the alteration of the rules in reference to the introduction of proxy voting. Two thousand and twenty-seven members recorded their votes on the pool, the figures being: 'Alteration to Rule 5—Voting by pool: Against, 994; for 880; majority against, 114. Alteration to Rule 18—Voting by proxy: Against, 1,041; for, 908; majority against, 133.

"The Chairman then tendered his resignation. Sir Robert Gower proposed that Lord Banbury be asked to reconsider his decision, and to remain as chairman until after the annual meeting. This was seconded by Mr. H. J. Selby, and the motion was carried.

"Lord Banbury stated that he would yield to the wishes of the Council on one condition, that he did not take the chair at the annual meeting. He then moved, seconded by Mrs. Penn Gaskell, that Sir Robert Gower, M.P., should take the chair at the annual meeting, and this was carried."

ROYAL MINSTREL FAILS.

VICTORY OF MR. JINKS.

HERMIT II. REAPPEARS.

(FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWMARKET, Friday Night.

The weather turned fine again for the last day of the meeting here, and it was a pleasant, sunny afternoon; but the racing was distinctly weak; though it had some good spots. One was the easy victory of Major McCalmont's colt, Mr. Jinks, in the Prendergast Stakes. At the last meeting here Mr. Jinks had been beaten three-parts of a length by Reflector, who has performed so moderately in the Middle Park. This had discounted the reputation of the grey, and he was well fielded against, there being strong support for the Aga Khan's La Phare, a nice Phalaris colt, receiving a stone from the grey.

La Phare jumped off in front from the best position in the draw, but he began to hang away across the course. Coming down the hill, Harry Beasley sent Mr. Jinks to the front, and he won easily by three lengths and a length and a half from Greenery and La Phare. Greenery is a filly by Thunderer, who was making a first appearance on a racecourse; was not fancied and was ridden by the unfashionable jockey Wells. She gave earnest here, that she is a very useful filly.

TETRATEMA STOCK.

I cannot write this account of the day's racing without the name of Tetratema being stamped on it. Mr. Jinks is, of course, by that sire, and so were two others that ran in the race—Marble owned by Lord Lonsdale, who ran well, and Tetragal, a backward filly owned by Sir Victor Sassoon.

There were three Tetratemas also in another race, a selling event for two-year-olds. One of them, Gilltown, owned by Mr. Disney Beer, started favourite and was well beaten. Another of them, Weir Bank, showed speed for four furlongs. The third was the Tracedes colt, who finished third, beaten a length and a half and a short head by Alone and Claudine. It may be said that the judge's verdict was strongly differed from in this case.

The race finishes in the Abingdon mile bottom. Those on the stands felt sure that Claudine, a French filly new to this country, had won. It is, however, impossible to judge a finish at this point from the stands. However, people who went down the course and watched the finish from both sides also thought Claudine had won. Beary, who rode Alone, thought that he had been beaten. Donoghue, who rode Claudine, thought he had won, and was dumbfounded when he found that a length and a half verdict had been given against him. Mr. Murray bought in Alone, to return to Mr. Cottrill's stable, for 460 guineas.

Royal Minstrel was another Tetratema colt who ran. Three other starters opposed him in the Royal Stakes—Exeter, Coster Boy, and Saracen, the colt for whom Major Courtauld gave Lord Furness 12,000 guineas as a yearling. Royal Minstrel had 10st. 1lb., and there being a doubt about his ability to get ten furlongs, he was strongly fielded against. Childs lay last on him until they came to the bushes, where Saracen was leading; then Royal Minstrel moved up to join the others. Saracen dropped out, and Coster Boy took it up. Royal Minstrel did not sustain the effort, and also dropepd out, after which Donoghue brought Exeter with a well-timed run to get up and beat Coster Boy by a neck. As Royal Minstrel was giving the winner 17lb., it does not put Mrs. Whitburn's colt on a very high pedestal.

FORM OF GLENHAZEL.

For the Southfield Plate Glenhazel came back to his form of the spring, when he won six races straight off. He took up the running from Kindred as they came into the dip and beat him by half a length, Never Cross finishing third, and the favourite, Monastic Haste, fourth.

Mr. S. B. Joel did not have the best of luck during the afternoon. His Irish three-year-old, Fleeting Memory, was favourite for the Exning Welter, but he failed by a head to get up and beat Capture Him, whom Richards pushed along vigorously after taking up the lead at the bushes, and made him just last home. With a little further to go, Fleeting Memory would have won.

Capture Him is not the most reliable of horses, but at six years old he has retained his speed, and he has, on the whole, done well for Lord Glanely since he bought him in Ireland, some years ago. Portland, who finished third, ran his usual consistent race, but the handicapper will not give him a chance.

neth Stakes—a five furlong event—was that neth Stakes—a gve furlong event—was that of Mr. A. K. Macomber's three-year-old, The Hermit II. I did think about this time last year that there were many possibilities about this colt, and so, apparently, did the official handicapper, Mr. Dawkins, for he placed him alongside Fairway and Buland at the top of the Free Handicap. This was the first time he had been seen this season, and from the way he went to the post, with his ears laid back, he may have a temperament. However, he showed a great turn of speed, for he led until they were close home, when Richards pushed the favourite Stroma a short head and a head in front of Mr. Joel's Mellin and The Hermit. The last-named was not fancied. For a colt who had not seen a racecourse for twelve months he put up a smart sprinting performance, as he was giving weight to both first and second.

The going should be good to-morrow at Lingfield, and on this account a good chance can be given to BAGATELLE in the Lingfield Autumn Oaks. RED SHADOW should win the Lingfield Handicap, and CAFE AU LAIT the October Nursery.

SOFT DRINK may win the Hurworth Nursery at Catterick Bridge, and NICOLETTE the Bridge Handicap.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

The Phœnix Park Club's season will be brought to a conclusion to-day, and, judging by the attractive nature of the programme, the wind-up should be associated with sport of an entertaining character. The entries are numerous and class well represented, so that the racing promises to attain to a nice standard. Four of the half-dozen events are confined to two-year-olds, and for the first time at this venue a one mile nursery handicap, the Warrenstown Plate, figures on the card. The West Plate is the principal race down for decision, and, although it will not bring out a big field, there is promise of an interesting contest, and, in the absence of Alne Forest, it may be won by

LONDON BETTING—YESTERDAY.

There was a small but representative attendance at the Victoria Club last evening for the call-over of the Cambridgeshire. Fohanaun and Sunny Trace wound up equal favourites at 15 to 2, the former being supported to win upwards of £3,000 and the latter about £5,000. Gang Warily was next in request at 9 to 1, and was backed to win about £5,000. Palais Royal II. was on offer at 100 to 8. Delius came in for notice at the odds of 1,000 to 60, which was taken twice, the final quotation being 15 to 1, this price remaining on offer. There was small money for Pondicherry at 100 to 6. A wager of 1,800 to 100 was accepted about Orbindos, after which 100 to 6 was taken to small money. St. Jerome was supported for minor sums at a similar rate of odds. Baytown opened at 25 to 1 and closed at 20 to 1, taken and offered, after being supported to win upwards of £5,000. The remaining candidates were easy at their quoted rates.

THE TOTALISATOR COMMITTEE.

NEARING COMPLETION.

The constitution of the Totalisator Committee has advanced a step further towards completion by the acceptance by Mr. Justice Wylie of the invitation of the Metropolitan Race Executives to represent them on the Board of Control.

As has already been announced, the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee have selected General Sir Bryan Mahon, Sir Walter Nugent and Major T. C. Gerrard, and the provincial executives' interests are entrusted to Mr. Martin M'Donogh, of Galway. The Turf Club will, we understand, appoint their representatives next week.

It will then only remain for the owners and breeders to elect their delegates, and the urgency of the matter suggests that they should do so without delay.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Essex Key Sold.

Major E. M. Conolly has sold the two-year-old Essex Key, by Essexford out of Disclosure, to Mr. F. S. Myerscough, who has also acquired Star Eagle (2 yrs.), by White Eagle out of Herod's Joy, from Count McCormack.

The Turf Club.

A general meeting of the Turf Club will be held at the Stand House, Curragh, on Tuesday next immediately after the second race has been run.

Point-to-Point Meetings.

A notice appears in yesterday's Irish Racing Calendar to the effect that the Stewards of the I.N.H.S. Committee have ordered that racecourse executives must not in the future allow their stands, offices and enclosures to be used for point-to-point meetings.

Cincinnatus has left Newmarket en route to Ireland.

Century-old Races Abandoned.

The Hambledon Hunt meeting, which had been in existence for more than a hundred years, has been abandoned owing to insufficient financial support.

Jockey's Narrow Escape.

E. Fox, the jockey, had a narrow escape from serious injury at Catterick Bridge races yesterday. He was riding Peardrop in the Bedale Handicap, when the horse suddenly turned and dashed into a hurdle flanking the outer edge of the track. The horse came down and Fox was unseated, but, although badly shaken, he was otherwise all right. The Stewards held an inquiry into the matter and found that the mishap was quite accidental.

Joe Butters' Eighty-first Birthday.

Joe Butters, the veteran Newmarket ex-trainer and father of the Stanley House trainer, Frank Butters, and of Fred. Butters, celebrates his eighty-first birthday to-day. Although he retired from active training two years ago, "old Joe" is still a well-known figure on Newmarket Heath and is as wiry as ever.

THE M.C.C. TOUR.

BRILLIANT BATTING BY HENDREN.

PERTH (W.A.), October 19.

A gratifying feature of the M.C.C. Team's first innings in Australia, from the English point of view, was the success of the middle batting. After four wickets had fallen for 105 the next four added 293, the innings closing to-day for 406.

In the absence of Tate, Larwood, Freeman and Staples the visitors' attack was weak, but it kept down the West Australian scoring to normal limits. White, the Somerset captain, surprised the Australian critics by his great steadiness, accurate length and clever variation of flight. On the other hand, Hammond and Geary never looked at all deadly. Chapman's fielding at mid-off was magnificent. He brought off two fine catches and stopped everything that came his way.

Brilliant springlike weather prevailed when Hendren (55) and Ames (3) resumed the Englishmen's first innings with the total at 306 for six. The batting was of a confident character from the start. Faced by Evans and Inverarity, both batsmen jumped out to the pitch of the ball and brought off several superb drives, while Hendren hooked Inverarity for a splendid 6, the second of his innings.

HENDREN'S BRILLIANT EFFORT.

Fifty runs were added in little over half an hour, the Middlesex man scoring much the faster, but at this point Arthur Richardson put himself on in place of Inverarity, and in his first over got Hendren taken low down in the slips by Taaffe. It was hard luck for the Middlesex player, who appeared well set and was within ten runs of his century. His brilliant all-round innings, which occupied just over two hours, and included a couple of sixes and seven fours, was marked by fine driving and cutting. The partnership for the sixth wicket put 60 runs in 46 minutes.

Chapman, on coming out to join Ames, was greeted with a burst of cheering. He was wearing the cap of the West Australian Incogniti, of which he has been elected a life member. His new colours are similar to those of the London Incogniti. Ames continued to force the pace with fine drives, while Chapman also scored at a good rate, but with the total two short of the fourth century Ames was smartly caught at the wicket for a useful 36.

With Geary in, Chapman mistimed a delivery from Evans and put up a skier to mid-off, where Richardson brought off an easy catch. Geary and White were then associated for the last wicket, and after each had added a single the innings was brought to a conclusion by the Leicestershire player being run out.

The Englishmen batted for six hours and four minutes, 100 runs being added this morning in just under an hour and a quarter. With the close of the innings at a quarter past one o'clock the luncheon interval was taken.

RICHARDSON'S LUCKY ESCAPE.

About 3,000 spectators were present when Richardson and Quinlan came out to open West Australia's innings. They were opposed by Hammond and Leyland, and in the former's second over Richardson was missed in the gully before a run had been scored. Following this lucky escape the home captain proceeded to hit freely, and in one over off Leyland scored three boundaries with powerful drives. Meanwhile, his partner adopted stonewalling tactics. Geary, with his arm strapped in adhesive plaster, came on for Leyland at 25, and he and Hammond, who was keeping a steady length, kept the run-getting down. They were supported by some excellent ground fielding.

Despite several other bowling changes, the score continued to mount slowly, the 50 being signalled at the end of the first hour. Nine runs later, however, Richardson was finely caught at mid-off by Chapman from a full toss by White. The home captain, who scored his 44 in an an hour and five minutes, made several excellent drives, his chief hits being six 4's.

ENGLISH BOWLING SUCCESSES.

With the dismissal of Richardson the English bowling began to meet with more success. At 64 another excellent catch by Chapman at mid-off, taken low down, got rid of Quinlan, who batted an hour and twenty minutes for 14, and four runs later a low catch by Hammond in the slips disposed of Taaffe for the first "duck" of the match.

White was flighting the ball skilfully, and the English fielding was good all round. At the tea interval F. Bryant and McRae were together, their respective scores being 15 and 5 and the total 86 for three.

White and Hammond continued the attack after the interval, by which time the attendance had increased to 5,000. Both began to show improvement, McRae making several nice off-drives. The century was sent up when the innings had lasted two hours, and, playing with great confidence, Bryant and McRae began to jump out at the bowling with marked success. Chapman tried Jardine at White's end at 133. The Somersetshire captain had bowled an hour and forty minutes, and his analysis was 16 overs, 3 maidens, 29 runs, 3 wickets. Jardine met with immediate success, getting McRae snapped at the wicket when the partnership had yielded 66 runs in an hour and five minutes.

Horrocks then joined F. Bryant, who had scored 34. Jardine, after bowling a couple of overs, both maidens, for one wicket, retired in favour of White, whose good-length deliveries, assisted by smart fielding, again kept down runs. Leyland, who had not bowled since the score stood at 25, replaced Geary at 149. The last three-quarters of an hour's batting was very quiet. Bryant, showing good form all round, completed his 50 in two hours and ten minutes, and shortly afterwards the close of play was reached, with the total at 181 for four.

Neither Chapman nor Jardine is returning with the rest of the team next March. The English captain is proceeding to New Zealand at the conclusion of the fifth Test match, while Jardine is returning to England at the same time via India, the land of his birth.

BILLIARDS.

NEWMAN V. DAVIS.

Thanks largely to a break of 472, Davis was within 463 points of Newman at the end of yesterday afternoon's session in their time match at Thurston's, London. Newman, who totalled 425, took his overnight unfinished 11 to 104, and had a subsequent run of 100. Davis's best efforts, besides his big break, were 97 and 103. Interval scores:—Newman (in play), 14,346; Davis, 13,883.

Davis at his second innings at night had 279. Newman at once settled down to a magnificent exhibition of strokes. A fine sequence of 43 close cannons helped him along, and still scoring at the top of the table he added hundred after hundred. His first difficulty came at 628 when playing a forcing cannon, a kiss separating the balls but he recovered by means of a two-cushion cannon. Soon after passing 700 he was compelled to play two kiss-cannons in succession, and yet again playing in the vicinity of the spot he went on to 938 before meeting another difficulty. He regained position by making a brilliant cushion cannon from an awkward angle. Eventually when the break had realised 974 he wavered between a middle-pocket loser and a long loser; he preferred the last named, and failed. His break was the second highest made this season, the previous best of 1,231 being by Newman also against Davis at Liverpool. Afterwards Davis played out time with 114 unfinished. Closing scores:—Newman, 15,355; Davis (in play), 14,276.

M'CONACHY V. LINDRUM.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

The New Zealand billiards champion, Clark McConachy, had the best of to-day's play in his match of 18,000 up with Walter Lindrum, and at the end of this evening's session he had increased his lead to 629. His best breaks were 384, 320, 305, 207, and 119 (unfinished); and Lindrum's chief breaks were 322, 286, 151, and 108. Closing scores:—McConachy (in play), 13,500; W. Lindrum, 12,871.

IRISH GREYHOUNDS' SUCCESS.

Mr. M. Collins' Colleen Cairralde and Mr. Frank Dillon's Pulcinella won their heats in the Welsh Grand National, at Cardiff White City on Thursday night. The former was favourite (evens), and beat Monero a length in 31.31 secs. Pulcinella started at 5 to 4 on, and beat S.S. by half a length in 31.45 secs.

220 Yards Ladies' Swimming Championship of Ireland, held in Tara Street Baths, Dublin, last night.—1st, Miss Marguerite Dockrell (Dublin S.C.) (holder); 2nd, Miss S. Tierney (Victoria S.C., Belfast); 3rd, Miss Peggy Morgan-Byrne (Pembroke S.C.), and 4th, Miss M. V. Armstrong (Pembroke S.C.).

RUGBY.

TO-DAY'S MATCHES.

Of the many Senior matches arranged for this afternoon that between North of Ireland and Lansdowne at Lansdowne Road should prove the most attractive. Lansdowne have only suffered one defeat this season, and that at the hands of Wanderers, who likewise have only lost one game. Lansdowne's opponents to-day inflicted a heavy defeat on Wanderers at Belfast, and were themselves beaten by Constitution at Cork. Conflicting form, no doubt, but with both sides at anything like full strength to-day's game at Lansdowne Road should be a highly interesting one. Monkstown play Wanderers at Sydney Parade, Bective Rangers engage University College at Donnybrook, and Clontarf meet Enniscorthy at Castle Avenue, these being the only Senior fixtures in Dublin. Dublin University first and second teams travel to Belfast to oppose the first and second teams of Instonians, Old Wesley visit Constitution at Cork, Blackrock College go to Limerick to meet Garryowen, and Palmerston will be engaged with Malone at Belfast. To-day's matches start at 3 o'clock.

VISIT OF FAMOUS WELSH TEAM.

On Monday week, the 29th inst., at Lansdowne road, a County Dublin XV., selected by Monkstown R.F.C., will play Llanelly, the famous Welsh side which supplied no fewer than seven players to last season's vastly improved Welsh team.

It is likely that on the following day Llanelly will be opposed by a team selected by Mr. W. E. Crawford.

DUBLIN AND LEIX.

BIG HURLING LEAGUE TIE.

CORK COUNTY FINAL.

(BY PAT'O.)

Garrett Howard, prominent for Limerick in All-Ireland games some years back, has been of great assistance to the Garda hurlers since the Dépôt team came into the first flight of Irish hurlers. Playing at mid-field, left or right wing, he has been a fast, accurate finishing medium for Michael Gill, James Walsh and M. Power. Slight infringement of rules in a County League game at the Phœnix Park recently brought Howard under the notice of the referee. The County Committee suspended him on the referee's report. In a vigorous game, such as hurling is, strict enforcement of rules and rigid discipline are essential to progress. I sympathise with a first-class hurler and good sportsman like Howard, and in to-morrow's game against Leix Dublin loses something by his absence. Yet first-class players must set an example in these matters of discipline and self-control.

To-morrow's game at headquarters should be a stern struggle, for Leix always play well on a heavy pitch. They are a strong vigorous team, carrying an essential leavening of clever hurlers, including Tobin, who figured prominently with the Guards when they won the All-Ireland final of 1927 with, perhaps, the best fifteen that ever won a championship. He helps his native county of Leix under the much-debated, non-resident rule, which promises to outdo "the ban" question in Gaelic Athletic debates at future Conventions. With Sergeant Tobin on the Leix side to-morrow are Phelan (Garda), Kelly, O'Neill and Power (McKee) and P. Kelly (Garda). They make up a solid foundation for a good side, well supported by Conroy, Delaney, Cashin and the ex-Tailteann player, Byrne.

The Midlanders revel in heavy going, and have made their name in late season games. In hurling and football their League records are good. They will field a strong side and may extend the 1927 champions. The Guards have the Dublin selection, and have called on Eugene Ryan, from St. Kevin's, to fill Dr. Daly's place in goal. It is a difficult rôle; for Dr. Daly, the best keeper for many years and now practising in London, has been an inspiration to those in front of him. Ryan was goalkeeping for the Faughs before he joined the South city club, and has been playing well recently. Outside him the Guards have picked a strong side. They call on five Faughs and three from McKee. Should the Dubliners strike their best game they can win, and may go on through the competition to meet their Munster opponents in the final in the early spring. It is not easy to foresee National League developments in either code, but I like the chances of Kildare v. Kerry and Dublin v. Cork as prospective finalists by the time the Railway Cup finals are completed and before the 1929 Championships reach their inter-county stage on the first Sunday in June.

Kildare travel to Breffni Park to-morrow, meeting Cavan in aid of the Park fund. The championship finalists have lost no friendship as a result of their exciting struggle, and the all-white boys are most popular in Ulster, where they have been frequent visitors in propaganda work. I know no footballers in the country who have played more serious matches in a twelve-month than Paul Doyle and John Higgins. Army, command, tournaments, championships and Leagues, they have had a busy year. They improve on hard competitive work, but deserve a brief rest.

Cork hurling final between Eire Og and Mallow will bring the biggest crowd of recent county finals to the Cork Park grounds to-morrow. Mr. Sean Murphy referees the game, which is the topic of the moment in the champion hurling county.

Ulster hurling, though in the junior grade, has many adherents, and the meeting of Antrim and Down at Castlebellingham to-morrow in the province final will have good support.

THE 220 YARDS LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

MISS DOCKRELL'S VICTORY.

A fine crowd was present at the Tara street Baths last night to witness two ladies' championship events held by the Leinster Branch I.A.S.A.—the 220 Yards (Irish) and the Squadron (Leinster).

Four competed in the 220 yards, including Miss B. Tierney, of the Victoria Club, Belfast, who had a fine reception. Miss Dockrell, the holder, took the lead at the first turn, and with six lengths to go was about three yards in front. Miss Tierney reduced the lead in the third last length, and with one to go looked like making up the leeway. Miss Dockrell, however, responded to the challenge of the young Belfast girl, and won a fine race by a yard in 3 mins. 18 secs. The youthful Northern representative put up a very good performance, and clearly is a swimmer who will be prominent in future championships.

Four teams turned out in the squadron race, Clontarf, who had entered, not competing. Pembroke worked out an early lead from Dublin, which, in the third stage, Miss Armstrong increased, to set Miss Dockrell, for Dublin, a handicap of about six yards to make up in the final sixty yards. The champion made a brilliant effort, but could not do better than gain about three yards on her opponent. Pembroke winning by that margain in 2 mins. 57 secs.

Mr. C. G. F. Chute, donor of the Squadron Cup, and father of Mr. T. V. Chute, the donor of the 220 Yards Ladies' Championship Cup, presented the trophies.

220 Yards Ladies' Championship of Ireland. (Holder—Miss M. Dockrell, Dublin).—Miss M. Dockrell (Dublin), 1; Miss S. Tierney (Victoria, Belfast), 2; Miss P. Morgan-Byrne (Pembroke), 3. Also competed:—Miss M. V. Armstrong (Pembroke). Won by a yard; twelve yards. Time—3 mins. 18 secs.

Leinster Ladies' Squadron Championship; (Holders—Dublin S.C.).—Pembroke S.C. (Misses B. Hanna, M. V. Armstrong, P. Morgan-Byrne, S. Sherlock), 1; Dublin S.C. (Misses M. Dockrell, E. M'Elwee, L. Quinn, M. Cody), 2; Bray S.C. (Misses S. O'Neill, M. Lyons, M. Murphy, O. Dacus), 3. Won by three yards; fifteen yards. Time—2 mins. 57 secs. Distance of race—240 yards.

WINTER SWIMMING.

The Leinster Branch I.A.S.A. are in negotiation with the Dublin City Commissioners to keep the Tara street Baths open for swimming during the winter months, in connection with which an announcement will be made later. It is hoped to have the baths made available for at least two days weekly, but this will depend on the support guaranteed by those who desire the facility.

HOCKEY.

ANNUAL MEETING I.H.U.

The annual general meeting of the Irish Hockey Union was held yesterday evening in the Mills Hall, Mr. J. F. Crawford (President) in the chair. As usual at the October meeting, Leinster delegates were in the majority, but Ulster and Munster were represented by Messrs. A. G. Burney and J. E. McCausland.

Faced with a serious drop in revenue, delegates were pleased to find that the Emergency Committee had already had the prospects under consideration, and had their plans more or less prepared to face what must be a critical year in the game in Ireland.

The treasurer's statement alone raised any discussion. He had to report a falling off in revenue and heavy expenditure in travelling, which, combined, reduced his credit balance to half what it stood at last year.

In the thirty-fifth annual report the hon. secretary, Mr. C. S. Waugh, reviewed the past season in detail, and found many points on which to congratulate the Union. The strength of the game had been well maintained, and the drop there was in affiliated clubs in the South was compensated by an increase in Ulster and Leinster.

The meeting listened with interest to the Secretary's careful summary of the events in connection with the International Hockey Board which resulted in the resignation of Ireland and Scotland last month. In view of the fact that the Irish members of the Board had received their authority from the February meeting of the Union, it was decided, without discussion, to postpone further consideration of the matter until the meeting to be held in February, 1929.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—
Hon. Secretary—C. S. Waugh (re-elected).
Hon. Treasurer—W. F. McDonnell (re-elected).

Selection Committee—J. W. F. Crawfurd, W. F. McDonnell (Leinster), A. G. Burney, L. Rose (Ulster), J. E. McCausland and E. L. Wickham (Munster). The Midlands and Connaught representation was left vacant as the branch had not met.

Emergency Committee—Officers of the Union and Messrs. W. Chiddick, T. S. C. Dagg and J. S. McMahon.

Auditors—Messrs. W. C. Peterson and W. Campbell.

SUPPORT FOR MISSIONS.

PONTIFICAL SOCIETY'S WORK.

The half-yearly meeting of the Pontifical Society of the Propagation of the Faith was held on Thursday in the central offices of the Society, 22 Parliament street, Dublin. The Right Rev. Monsignor Dunne, P.P., V.G., Dean of Dublin, President of the Society, was in the chair. The other members present were:—The Right Rev. Dean Quinn, P.P., V.G. of Armagh (Vice-President); the Right Rev. Monsignor Cotter (Treasurer), the Right Rev. Monsignor Wall, P.P., V.G. (Dublin); the Right Rev. Dean Keown, P.P., V.G. (Clogher), the Very Rev. Canon O'Hagan, P.P., V.G. (Dromore); the Very Rev. L. Brophy, P.P. (Kildare and Leighlin); the Very Rev. J. Flynn, P.P., V.F. (Meath); the Very Rev. H. McDwyer, P.P. (Raphoe); the Very Rev. M. Maher, Adm. (Cashel); the Rev. J. Kelly, C.C. (Ferns); the Rev. M. Moloney (Limerick); the Rev. D. Power (Waterford and Lismore), and the Rev. E. Gallen (Acting Secretary).

In the course of the meeting the Chairman paid a tribute to the fine work accomplished by the Rev. Father Deery as Secretary of the Society, and wished him success in the new work he had taken up.

The Treasurer gave a statement of the financial position for the half-year, and the Secretary presented his report on the working of the Society since the last meeting of the National Council. As far as could be judged at this early date the year 1928 promised well, and the Council confidently expected to be able to send to Rome in February next a national contribution to the Missions well in excess of Ireland's previous totals. The progress made was chiefly due to three influences—one, the strong support given to the work by the bishops; secondly, the magnificent work being done throughout the country by the organisers and collectors, who did not spare themselves in their work for the Missions; and, thirdly, the renewed interest of the people in things missionary, an interest which demanded, and was being met by, an intelligent and well-informed supply of missionary journalism.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The opening meeting of the session of the Presbyterian Association, which numbers over 600 members, took the form of an "at home" last Monday evening. The fine rooms of the Church House, Dublin, were well filled, mainly by young people. Mr. Justice Hanna, the President, presented Mr. George Hewson with a gift expressive of the members' appreciation of his services as temporary secretary from the late Mr. Henry Hanna's death till Mr. W. C. Torrance, the present secretary, was appointed. An excellent concert was provided by Mr. Stone, organist of Adelaide road Church, assisted by Mr. George Prescott and ladies from the choirs of several of the city churches. The gymnasium was used for dancing by the younger members, and the billiard and games rooms were utilised to the full.

Owing to his increasing duties as Junior Clerk of the Assembly, the Rev. W. A. Watson, B.D., minister of York street Church, Belfast, for twenty-six years, has resigned his pastorate, the Belfast Presbytery recording their appreciation of his services.

The Rev. Thomas Kilpatrick, M.A., of Clagan, has been installed as minister of Millisle and Ballycopeland. Mr. Kilpatrick was a student of Trinity College, Dublin, and of the Dublin Presbytery.

Belfast Presbytery has received as students for the ministry Mr. R. C. Gillespie, B.A., and Mr. S. Carter, undergraduate. Ballymena Presbytery has under its care nine students for the ministry. There is a general increase throughout the Presbyteries of candidates for the ministry, after many lean years.

News has been received from India of the death of Mrs. McNeill, wife of the Rev. J. H. McNeill, of Dohad. Mr. and Mrs. McNeill have for 35 years been missionaries to the Bhil tribe. During famine and cholera in 1899 Mrs. McNeill saved many lives by her heroic medical and nursing work. Mr. and Mrs. McNeill had booked to come home on furlough when Mrs. McNeill's illness intervened.

The Rev. E. Ormrod Rodger, minister of Giffnock, Paisley, was the preacher last Sunday at the anniversary Services in the Scots Church, Abbey street, Dublin, of which the Rev. A. H. Macpherson, the minister, is his brother-in-law. Mr. Rodger also lectured last Monday evening in the Abbey Hall.

MIDLAND FARMERS AND A BARLEY TARIFF.

DEMAND FOR MARK LANE PRICES.

A meeting of farmers at Maryborough—Mr. J. Delaney, Co.C., presiding—passed a resolution calling on the Government to put an embargo on all foreign malting barley and malt; demanding "Mark Lane prices" until all Irish barley is purchased, or, in lieu of this, a stay on Land Commission annuities for at least three years. "Otherwise," the resolution declared, "the farmers see no hope of preparing their land for the future growing of barley."

The resolution further called on all Fianna Fail, Labour, Independent and National League members in the Dail to urge the Cumann na nGaedheal members "to have this matter remedied at once and come to a definite decision on it."

The Queen's County Board of Health, on the motion of Mr. G. Jessop, seconded by the Chairman (Mr. T. Tynan), passed a resolution calling on the Government to assist the tillage farmers of the Free State by putting a tariff on all imported barley and oats and their products of at least 6d. per stone, those duties, after deduction of expenses of collection, to be applied in reduction of the rates on all land under barley and oats. They also called on the Government to make proper provision for the kiln drying of Irish wheat to enable growers of wheat to compete with foreign wheat.

Mr. D. O'Connor said that a meeting of farmers the previous day had called for an embargo on foreign barley.

SLOW DEMAND.

Deliveries of barley are proceding at Maryborough maltings, where the average price is around 15s. 6d. per barrel; for a couple of exceptionally good samples 16s. per barrel was obtained.

Last Tuesday morning growers attended the maltings with barley samples, but many were disappointed, the buyer being able to deal with only a comparatively small number owing to the falling off in this season's requirements.

AN "ANIMATED MATCH-BOX."

SEQUEL TO BURNING OF A SINN FEIN HALL.

In the Dundalk Circuit Court a claim was heard for £1,000 by the trustees of the Sinn Fein Hall at Blackrock, near Dundalk, which was burned down last June. Other claims, amounting to hundreds of pounds, were made in respect of the furniture and musical instruments which were stored in the building on the night of the fire.

Mr. Campbell said that there were very peculiar circumstances connected with the hall. In September, 1925, the treasurer had been "held up" by armed and disguised men, and the books taken, as well as a sum of £11. The books had been returned a fortnight later. In October, 1926, the hall was entered and the books torn up in a peculiar manner. Certain names of members were cut out or pierced by holes in an extraordinary fashion. During one of the raids on the place chalk marks representing a skull and crossbones were found on the hall, and just before the fire a young woman returning home one night heard men discussing the proposed burning of the hall. The men were behind a ditch, and talked to one another, as the woman passed, about the best means of destroying the hall. After the fire three petrol cans had been found in the debris.

After evidence had been given,

Mr. Roe, for the County Council, asked for a direction on the grounds that accident had not been negatived by the applicants, and that if there was any direct malice it could only be held to be on the part of members of the National Club, who had been a minority when the place became a Sinn Fein Club. These men were still part owners in the building, and if direct malice was held as against them they could not be entitled to get compensation for the destruction of their own property.

Judge Devitt held with Mr. Roe on this point. The members of the National Club were still part owners of the building, and he could not give them compensation for destruction if it was done by themselves. But he was not satisfied that it had been, and that any ill-will which had existed in 1926 would have been carried on to 1928, and would have found expression in the burning of the hall. The past two and a half years had resulted in a miraculous change in the people of the country, nine-tenths of whom were now inspired by sanity, sobriety and good sense.

He said that he did not attach much importance to the evidence as to the alleged conversation supposed to have been carried on by men behind the hedge. He came to the conclusion that accident had not been negatived—that, in fact, the place was becoming an animated match box, being a hall in which smoking was carried on, in which cigarette ends were thrown about, in which petrol had been kept for the lighting of the lamps, and in which petrol and oil lamps were used—and he would have to refuse compensation.

On the application of the solicitors concerned, the personal claims were adjourned in view of an appeal of the case.

UNLICENSED WIRELESS SET.

At Howth District Court, the Free State Minister of Posts and Telegraphs summoned Herbert Pearson, Howth, for having a wireless set in his possession without having paid the licence fee.

Mr. Robert Hayes, solicitor, appeared in support of the prosecution.

Pearson was fined 20s. and 10s. costs.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This Company has been formed for the purposes appearing in the Memorandum of Association, and in particular (1) to acquire the whole of the Ordinary Share Capital of The Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., with the exception of 500 shares required by the Directors for their qualification, (2) to finance the said Company in order to enable it further to develop and extend its business by subscribing at par for 198,050 Ten per cent. Cumulative Participating Preferred Ordinary Shares of £1 each in the capital thereof, (3) to supply that Company on long credit terms with Maratti High Speed Circular Knitting Machines, (4) to acquire and develop further businesses of a similar nature as and when opportunities arise.

MARKET.—The demand for Silk and Artificial Silk Stockings in the home market is so great that, in spite of the increasing output of manufacturers in this country, enormous quantities are still being imported, notwithstanding a tariff of 33⅓ per cent. Outside England, within and without the Empire, entire populations are learning more and more to appreciate these products, and the limit of the world's capacity to absorb them cannot be gauged.

THE KLINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD.—This Company was incorporated on the 24th September, 1914, as a Private Company with a Capital of £25,000 in Shares of £1 each. For its activities for some considerable time past have been entirely confined to the manufacture of Silk and Artificial Silk Stockings. It owns freehold property of approximately 10 acres at Edmonton, including buildings accommodating machinery for large scale production.

In 1925 The Klinger Manufacturing Company was converted into a public Company, with a nominal Capital of £200,000, divided into 200,000 Ordinary Shares of £1 each, the whole of which are issued and are fully paid. Later in the same year the Company created £200,000 Seven-and-a-half per cent. 10-year Notes secured by a specific charge on the fixed assets, and a floating charge on certain other assets. The Notes are repayable at par by eight Annual Drawings of £25,000 each, commencing in October, 1928.

The whole of these Notes were issued. One of the terms of the issue was that the holders of the Notes should, on certain specific dates (all of which are now past), be entitled to exchange such Notes for Cumulative Participating Preferred Ordinary Shares of equal nominal value. £1,950 Notes were exchanged, leaving £198,050 now outstanding.

In April, 1926, the Company increased its Share Capital to £400,000, by the creation of 200,000 Ten per cent. Cumulative Participating Preferred Ordinary Shares of £1 each. These Shares entitle the holders to a fixed Cumulative Preferential dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and to a further participation in the divisible profits to the extent of a further 2½ per cent. (non-cumulative) after the Ordinary Shares have received a dividend of 10 per cent.

VALUATION.—The Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., has provided large sums for the acquisition and improvement of its property and plant. Messrs. Henry Butcher & Company, on the 28th February, 1928, valued the Freehold Premises, Plant, Machinery, Fixtures, Furniture and Stock at £337,049—since which date further important improvements have been made.

A Certificate of Assets and Liabilities, and of Sales and Profits, given by Messrs. James Meston & Co., the Auditors of English Stockings, Ltd., states that Sales rose from £112,432 in 1922 to £373,878 in 1928. During the years 1922 to 1925 Profits increased from £15,701 to £63,248, the average for the years 1926 to 1928 being £50,042, in which period changes of fashion necessitated expenditure upon alteration to machinery being carried out.

The Auditors certify that the total Assets as shown by the last Balance Sheet, dated 31st August, 1928, showed an Excess of Assets (exclusive of Goodwill) over Liabilities of £140,509. The Assets remaining to cover the Ordinary Shares which are being purchased for £130,975, amount to £138,212, while, regarding Future Profits, the Directors are convinced that the progressive increase of profits shown from 1922 to 1925 will, under the new regime, and with the adequate financial resources which are now being provided, be resumed and intensified, quite apart from the further developments referred to later in the prospectus.

PROGRESS.—The business of the Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., has expanded considerably since its inception, the annual production of stockings having risen from 3,082,962 in 1922 to 5,218,056 in 1928, while the average number of hands employed daily rose from 426 to 2,224 over the same period.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENT.—The Board of English Stockings Limited, estimates that the output of the Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., can be raised considerably without any increase in overhead charges, and that by making use of recent inventions and developments still further expansion can be achieved, more particularly with regard to the production of "full fashioned" hosiery. The Board also believes that great benefits can be derived from the adoption of the Maratti High Speed Circular Knitting Machine. With regard to which Mr. Alfred Mann, President of the Federation of German Knitting Manufacturers, in a recent report, stated:—

"The Maratti Circular Machine, in my opinion, constitutes a revolution in the Knitting Industry."

Arrangements are being made with Messrs. John Hetherington & Sons, Ltd., who are the sole makers for the British Empire (excluding Canada) of these machines, to give to English Stockings, Ltd., priority over all other customers in respect of 100 of these machines. These machines, of which the estimated total cost is £100,000, will, when delivered, be leased to The Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., on hire purchase over a period of 10 years, with option of earlier purchase.

A letter from Stern (Hosiery Manufacturers), Ltd., states that they "feel convinced that, in view of the new methods and up-to-date machinery to be installed, there should be a constantly expanding market for the Company's increased production, and the measures now being taken will make it possible, on a profitable basis to the Company, to be thoroughly competitive."

The minimum subscription on which the Directors may proceed to allotment has been fixed at the subscription of seven Shares of 2/- each, but the subscription of the whole of the Shares offered has been guaranteed under Contract, the Company may proceed to allotment on the closing of the Subscription List.

Full Prospectuses, upon the terms of which applications will alone be received, and Forms of Application for Shares can be obtained from the Company's Bankers, Brokers and Solicitors above-mentioned, and at the Registered Office of the Company.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN UNSETTLED.

SHELLS AND TOBACCOS GOOD.

There was a good deal of scattered realisations for the coming settlement, as yesterday was the last dealing day, so that in more than one direction the market was unsettled with sale pressure orders, while a distinct falling off of the demand added for the time being to the difficulty of completing the necessary adjustments. Investment stocks, including gilt-edged securities, were offered generally at lower prices, and the fall embraced both British and Government National Funds. Dublin Corporation "new" Stock was dull. There was a further decline in Bank of Ireland Stock, as supplies, so long absent, have come on the market. Nationals and Munsters also eased, but Hibernians were lifted to a higher price. Lively, but irregular, movements were recorded in Breweries and Distilleries. Guinness Ord. opened another ⅜ lower, and then advanced ½, only to slip away later to 44⅝, 1/16, or 1/16 lower on the day. Castlebellingham Ord. were advanced further on the dividend statement. Dublin Distillers appeared distinctly unsettled. The Ord. rallied to 5s. 6d., but the Pref., which appeared to close unofficially 11s., 12s., at the earlier market, dipped to 9s. 6d. at the later session on selling for the settlement. Marconis 10s. Shares were pressed back further. Home Rails Ord. Stocks were sellers. Drapery Shares show fluctuations, with Todd Burns much better again. Leading Tobaccos opened slightly lower, and then recovered strongly. Goulding Ord. moved up to 70s., but Dunlop Rubbers and Imperial Chemicals were both weaker markets, with numerous sellers. Margarines finally held their own, and Lever Bros. 7 p.c. Pref. and Coats were firm. Courtaulds closed buyers a shade over 90s., and closed at 90s. 3d. Shell Transports were again strongly supported.

LONDON QUIET.

MOND NICKELS A STRONG FEATURE.

Dealings in the London Stock markets as a whole yesterday were on a distinctly smaller scale, the attention of members being directed principally to the preliminary arrangements for Monday's carry-over. Despite the general slackness of interest, however, several active and strong markets were manifest among Industrials and Oils. Mond Nickels provided the principal feature, a sharp jump being scored to 8 3/16, a further new high level, while Brazilian Tractions were also an outstanding feature of strength on the September net earnings of 2,210,355 dollars. Among Oils, Shell Transport shot forward to 6, which is the highest level reached since 1921. There was not a great deal passing in the Gilt-edged section, but apart from a slight reaction in War Loan Fives to 103¼, the closing quotations were much the same as on Thursday. Foreign Government stocks also experienced a quiet session, and apart from Chinese Fives, which eased a trifle, quotations kept steady to firm. The dull tone which has characterised Home Rails of late was again evident, and at the close most of the leaders and a number of the Pref. issues were put back further. Colonial and Foreign Rails made a rather irregular showing.

Among Industrials, Mond Nickels and Brazilians, as mentioned above, provided outstanding features. Wireless issues displayed a slightly firmer appearance, and Tobacco descriptions stiffened here and there. Textiles and Artsilks moved uncertainly, and Gramophones were easier inclined. Foodstuffs and Stores were supported in some directions, Spiers and Ponds advancing on an announcement by that company which forecasts the possibility of an amalgamation. United Molasses kept firm, and Waste Foods Ord. and Defd. strengthened. Oils, as a whole, were firm, with Shells an outstanding feature. Mexican and Canadian Eagles also attracted attention on the reports that the difficulties in connection with dealing on the Paris Bourse are likely to be overcome in the near future. Rubbers were quietly steady, but among Mines, Kaffirs were dullish. Tin shares, on the other hand, went forward in several directions.

ENGLISH STOCKINGS, LTD.

This company is offering 4,500,000 shares of 2s. each at par, constituting its entire capital of £450,000. The company has been formed to acquire the Ordinary share capital of £200,000 of the Klinger Manufacturing Company, Ltd., and to develop and extend its business. The prospectus shows that the company acquires control of the largest pure silk and artificial silk stockings manufacturing business in Europe. The price paid for this control represents less than the value of the assets purchased without making any allowance for good-will. In the past seven years the sales have increased almost sevenfold. The company will make "full fashioned" hosiery and will receive the first hundred Maratti high-speed knitting machines made in England. These machines are being made by John Hetherington and Sons, textile machinists, and the managing director of Hetheringtons has a seat on the Board of English Stockings, Ltd. The subscription list will open on Monday next and close on or before Wednesday. Applicants should use the form attached to the prospectus.

BURMAH OIL DEBENTURE ISSUE.

The issue of £4,000,000 5½ per cent. secured Debenture Stock by the Burmah Oil Company, Ltd., was largely over-subscribed.

PERUVIAN LOAN.

Thirty-five million dollars (£7,000,000) of 6 per cent. Peruvian Bonds will be offered next week, of which $20,000,000 will be placed in the American market and $10,000,000 in Europe. The bonds are being offered as part of the $50,000,000 remaining of the $100,000,000 bond issue which was authorised by the Peruvian Congress in 1927.

DEBENHAM SECURITIES INTERIM.

For the first time since the formation of the company in 1926 directors of Debenham Securities (Limited) have declared an interim dividend on the Ordinary capital. The payment on this occasion is at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, less tax, for the six months ended September 30, which compares with a distribution of 15 per cent. actual, free of tax, for the 11½ months ended March 31, 1928, and one at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum for the broken period preceding April 15, 1927. The company, which holds the whole Ordinary share capital of Debenhams (Limited) and, through them, a controlling interest in the Drapery Trust (Limited), has increased its Preference capital to £3,000,000 during the current calendar year.

TOCUYO OILFIELDS OF VENEZUELA, LTD.

The subscription list in connection with the issue of 1,500,000 shares of £1 each at par in Tocuyo Oilfields of Venezuela, Ltd., will open on Monday next, the 22nd inst. The issue is being made under the auspices of the Central Mining and Investment Corporation, Ltd., whose shareholders, together with those of Rand Mines, Ltd., and Trinidad Leaseholds, Ltd., will receive preferential treatment in allotment, providing application is made on the prescribed form specially furnished for that purpose.

FAIR PRICE FOR TIN.

What is a fair price for tin? The editor of "Tin Companies' Position" (2s. 6d., London: W. H. Rickinson and Son) takes up the question in the ninth edition of the book, which has just been published. The answer he gives is that the law of supply and demand over a period of time settles the question, and that, as the price of tin for the past four years (1924-1927) has averaged £272 10s. a ton, there is no logical reason why this average price, which has ruled so long, is not the true price based on economic laws. But there is every reason to suppose, he points out, that this figure must be exceeded for a time if producers are to be encouraged to meet the increasing demands for tin. It was only the high prices in the middle of 1926, maintained to the middle of 1927 (about £300 a ton), which created the stimulus necessary to enable supply to meet the present demand, and it will need similarly attractive prices, he holds, to place tin production on the higher plane of output necessary to meet the future growth of consumption.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

MOND NICKELS ADVANCE SHARPLY.

LATE SPURT IN MARCONIS.

Although quotations for Industrial and Miscellaneous securities were very jumpy yesterday, and dulness ruled in the early hours, the general tone was sufficiently good as to be free from nervousness. Another spectacular display was made by Mond Nickels on the strength of American orders left here overnight. Their execution in the early hours caused the price to be rushed up from 7⅞ to 8¼, with a shading off later. Brazilian Tractions enjoyed renewed Canadian support, and several specialities made further headway. Gramophone and Amusement shares, notably the lower-priced varieties, opened weak, but had a feeble rally towards the close. Marconis, on the pending merger terms, had a last-minute spurt, having been dull around 73s. 6d.; strong buying in the "street" sent them up to 74s. 9d. bid.

Looking at the weakest centre first, market men found it necessary to point out that, as carry-over facilities are now much restricted, the prospects of continuing any of the cheaper Record shares is remote. Owing to the recent downward tendency in this section, profits were few and far between; the "bulls" with open commitments had to sell for cash and buy for new time. The whole group had a ragged appearance. Victors fluctuated between 139 and 142, closing at 140½, a net loss of 1½ in the late business. They were called 141 buyers. Gramophones held fairly steady at 13⅝, and Columbias did not look so bad at 10½, or 1/16 off. Vocalions fell 1/32 to 4 9/16, and the Foreign shed another 1/32 to 1¾. Duophones lacked friends and lost ⅛ to 3 3/16, while Goodsons moved between 10s. 9d. and 11s. 6d., closing a little harder at 11s. 3d., a net loss of 3d. Dominion Deferred dipped to 3s. 3d., but rallied to 3s. 9d., or 3d. lower, with such as Worldecho and Gramophone Records each a few pence to the bad. British Phototones were sold freely and shed 1s., Photomatons were called 15s. 9d., and although Poso-Graphs were no better than 1s. 9d. at mid-day, they were bid for at 2s. in the "street."

Engineering and Coal stocks had no developments likely to stimulate the market, and quotations drooped. The falls were not severe, 1/16 off Thorneycrofts at 2½ being the worst. Beardmore Pref. fell 3d. to 5s., Baldwins and Powell Duffryns losing the turn. Exceptionally, Continuous Coal Carbonisation A enjoyed support, and put on another 3s. 6d. to 18s., with the "B's" ⅛ up at 2⅛. Scottish Coal Products had lively trading around 6s 6d.

Of overseas issues, Bengal Iron receded by 6d. to 25s. 3d., but Chinese Engineering were wanted and rose ⅛ to 3 1/16. The great feature was Mond Nickels, where the special American buying caused them to finish ¾ to the good at 8 1/16, after 8¼ bid. Some local quick-profit professionals reaped advantage of this movement. It was taken as a welcome sign of the change over from speculation to find a wider trading in Hudson's Bays. Influential buying lifted them 1/16 to 6½, after 6 1/16. Sudans and other Land shares remained on the dull side. Anglo-Eastern Finance fell 3d. to 26s. 3d.

British Cement Products lost another 1/16 to 3⅜, with the Deferred 6d. down at 33s. 6d. Ship Canals looked a trifle easier at 9s. 3d., and Holborough lost 1/16 at 2. Oxford and Shipton had a fair turnover around 18s. 3d.

Lautaros were singled out among Nitrates. Paris was said to be a buyer, and on a market short of scrip a rise of 1/16 to 4¾ was recorded. Others in the group were neglected.

Having remained indifferent around 73s. 6d. for the greater part of the day, Marconis enjoyed late prominence by rising rapidly to 74s. 9d. bid on talk of the pending merger, and rumours that Lord Birkenhead would be the chairman of the new company. Others in the Wireless section showed no material change, and Cable stocks held steady.

Although not every man's market, it is of importance to note that Brazilian Tractions again proved a strong market, with big lines changing at advancing prices. On balance they closed 3 higher at 72. Barcelonas were wanted on Belgian account, and also rose 3 to 63. International Holdings gained ⅛ to 14¼.

On a market bare of stock Bournemouth and Poole Electric jumped to 3½, this being 6s. 6d. better, although, to some extent, the price was nominal. County of Londons put on 2s. to 45s. in sympathy. Metropolitans, at 47s., were also a good spot in this direction. Metropolitan Vickers continued in strong request, and, following the previous day's rise of 1s., finished 6d. better at 35s. 3d.

P. and O. Units met with good investment demand, and, although unchanged at 53s. 6d., looked cheap. Royal Mails rose 2 to 77; otherwise Shipping shares remained quiet.

Selling to close commitments by "stale bulls" caused Dunlops to close about 4½d. lower on balance at 25s. 10½d. Imperial Chemicals, for the same reason, also lost ground, and at 40s. the Ordinaries looked uncertain; the Defd. fell 3d. to 14s. 1½d. Waste Food Products met with renewed inquiry, and both issues finished strong. Anti-Dazzle Glass was another to be prominent, rising still further by 4½d. to 7s. bid. Roneos were wanted, and changed freely around 33s. Artsilks had a fair turnover, the feature being a demand for British Celanese, which put on 1/16 to 2⅞. Courtaulds held at 4½. British Enka looked a brighter spot at 2 1/16, but Nueras Defd. shed 1/16 to 1 1/16.

OIL SHARES STILL ACTIVE.

Interest in the leading Oil shares yesterday showed no signs of slackening; on the contrary, the volume of transactions in them was highly satisfactory for the closing day of the week, when, after steady advances, profit-taking sales would cause little surprise. Moreover, the approach of the settlement usually has the effect of restricting operations. Outstanding among the leading counters was the strength of Shells and Royal Dutch. Shells continued to change hands freely, and in response to active bidding the price advanced to 6. Few shares came out at this price, which would make it appear that those who have been buying so largely recently do not intend to sell yet. The shares closed a strong market at 6, the result of the day's business being a gain of 1/16, the bearer shares being up to a like extent at 6 1/16. Royal Dutch also claimed a good deal of attention and further rose ½ to 39¼. Transactions in the Eagle issues were on a more active scale than for some days past.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

The volume of business transacted in the Rubber Share market was on an extremely small scale, but despite the paucity of interest and the easier tendency of the commodity share market, quotations were well held, and at the close values were mostly the same as on the previous day. Quiet conditions ruled in the commodity market; spot and Nov. sold 8⅞d. per lb., Dec. 8 15/16d. per lb., and Jan. to March 9d. per lb. It is anticipated that the London stocks of the raw material on Monday next will show a decline of some 700 tons.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPH.

INFLATION OF NEW PROMOTIONS.

Notices of immediate successes of new industrial issues flow with monotonous regularity. Market conditions are a direct encouragement to "stagging" operations, and many of the reported heavy over-subscriptions are more apparent than real. I (Truth) have previously pointed out that the public have been invited to subscribe for only a relatively small proportion of the total capital of new companies, the bulk of the shares being taken by the vendors, who are able to manipulate prices to a substantial premium when dealings commence. Successes of offers for sale are frequently artificial, owing to the fact that the shares have been taken "firm" at an inflated premium. The capital is, of course, fully subscribed at the outset, and it takes only a small public demand to create the impression of over-subscription, with the result that no difficulty is experienced in further inflating the price of the shares issued. There is another aspect about new promotions which is of great importance to investors. The Industrial boom has encouraged promoters of the jerry-building type. These opportunists blossom into "issuing houses." Their resources in wits are prolific, but their financial standing is on a slender basis. Risks are run which would be suicidal in less active times. Competition among these alleged "issuing houses" for the amount of questionable business offering is keen and tempting terms are offered. The result is that the nominal capital is inflated at the outset to a total largely disproportionate to the assets, which are often of an intangible nature. The snowball is made larger by heavy underwriting commissions and other expenses, and investors are asked to foot the bill.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

FALL IN PIG PRICES.

There was a sharp fall in the price of pigs at Loughrea market, supplies being purchased at 46s. per cwt., live-weight, a decrease of 3s. within the past month.

A reduction of 2s. in the price of pigs since last week was registered in Athlone, where the ruling price was 45s. per cwt.

At Callan (Co. Kilkenny) pig market 68s. per cwt. was paid for fat pigs, a decrease of 1s. on last week's price. The continued drop in pig prices is causing much concern to farmers in South Kilkenny, many of whom have decided to discontinue the industry.

In Lurgan market the top figure for pork was 70s. per cwt.—2s. per cwt. of an increase since the previous market. There was a very small supply, only 28 dead pigs being on sale.

THE MONEY MARKET.

TREASURY BILL RATE UNCHANGED.

Tenders were received at the Bank of England yesterday for £40,000,000 Treasury bills. Those dated Monday to Friday of next week at £98 17s. 10d. get about 70 per cent., above in full; while those dated Saturday at £93 18s. 1d. and above receive in full. The average rate comes out at the same figure—namely, £4 7s. 7.53d. per cent.

Conditions were easier in Lombard street yesterday, borrowers generally paying 3½ per cent. for fresh daily loans, while renewals of old money were effected usually at 3¾ per cent. Discount rates were unchanged, the easier monetary conditions being counteracted by the firmness of the German exchange, there being possibilities of a renewal of gold withdrawals for that country.

LONDON MINING MARKET QUIET.

Interest remained on a small scale in the Mining Market yesterday, business, even in specialities, being of very small proportions. This was, no doubt, largely due to the fact that preliminary arrangements for Monday's carry-over were in progress, but also to the absence of any incentive to activity in any department. The publication of satisfactory quarterly reports by several companies failed to arouse any enthusiasm in the Kaffir section, and, as the Cape and Paris were quite as indifferent as the home public, the market was almost lifeless. Of the finance descriptions, African and European were again subjected to profit-taking, and Union Corporation and Rand Mines were also easier. The Far-Easterns attracted very little attention; but Springs Mines were lower, and, in the absence of inside support, Sub Nigel fell away. In the Rhodesian Department, Bwana M'Kubwa provided the outstanding feature, and a sharp advance was scored. Chartered were not much in evidence and closed without alteration, and Cam and Motor and most of the other Gold shares remained at previous levels. Diamonds still had a very neglected appearance, and the only quotable alteration was a small shrinkage in De Beers Defd. The price of tin further advanced £2 8s. 9d. to £224 17s. 6d. per ton, and at last the share market showed signs of responding to the steady rise in the metal quotation. Main interest still centred on the Finance descriptions, among which London Tin stood out prominently, a good demand finding the market none too well supplied with shares. Tin Selection followed suit, and Anglo-Oriental Pref. strengthened, but the Ord. receded. In the Nigerian department, Associated were a centre of attraction, good buying lifting the price substantially. The Bauchis also went ahead sharply, and Keffi and General Finance strengthened. All the other changes were against holders. The only alteration in the Copper section was a sharp rise in Arizona, Rio Tinto being content to maintain the former level. Corporation of Canada were dull, and in the Miscellaneous department the few movements recorded were downward.

BALBRIGGAN LIVE STOCK SALE.

Messrs. John P. Cuffe, Ltd., auctioneers, 31 Manor street, Dublin, held their fortnightly sale at Balbriggan on Tuesday last, when a large number of cattle were penned, the majority showing quality and condition. Although the store cattle trade is suffering from general depression, anything showing condition changed hands. Quite a number of buyers attended, and there was fair competition for the good lots, some nice beef shown making around 38s. to 42s. Springers and milkers were more numerous, and were cashed from £18 to £24.

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

Birkenhead—Steady trade for large supply of Cattle. Dublin—Butter dragging and weaker; Fresh Eggs dearer; Vegetables plentiful and cheap; Poultry and Game in good supplies and steady; Fish small and good sale; heavy offerings of Potatoes; Barley 17/- to 18/-. Bacon lower at Manchester. Rubber steady. Mark Lane steady. Rise in Tin.

CATTLE

BIRKENHEAD.—In market, 2,939 Irish cattle and 1,166 lambs. A slow steady trade prevailed for the larger supply of cattle on offer yesterday. Choice small heifers made 8½d., other heifers 8d., bullocks 7½d. to 8½d., cows and bulls 5d. to 6d. For the small supply of lambs a steady trade was experienced, the best qualities realising 1/1 per lb., sinking the offal.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN.—New samples of grain are now fairly plentiful, but although more interest is shown in the trade much apathy attaches to business; values, too, remain without a real and reliable basis. Wheat 22/6 to 24/- and extra 24/6; white oats 13/- to 14/6, extra parcels in some hands quoted more; black oats 12/3 to 12/6, extras 3d. or so per barrel more. Barley prices still unsettled and contentious. Country sales have been done at 14/6 to 15/- and 16/- per barrel, but at this centre 17/- to 18/- do not appear to be very attractive to holders of malting parcels.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT—A quiet tone pervaded the market for floating and forward cargoes, but prices unaltered, except for Plate descriptions, which were obtainable at slightly less money. A composite cargo, comprising 2,500 tons Rosafe wheat 62½lbs.) per Swiftway, expected to load 20th October, sold 44/-, and 3,500 tons La Plata maize 39/6; white Pacific November-December 47/9, No. 3 Northern Manitoba October-November 45/9, No. 4 ditto 42/6, No. 2 hard winter 45/6, Rosafe 63lbs. October 44/3, 62lbs. new crop January-February 45/6. Parcels quiet and occasionally the turn easier; No. 3 Northern Manitoba afloat per London Exchange sold 45/1½ to 45/3, ditto October 45/1½, Rosafe 62 lbs. shipping/shipped 43/10½ per 480lbs. MAIZE cargoes firmer and reservedly offered on continued inquiries from the Continent and Mediterranean; Plate steamers afloat sellers 40/- to 40/3, October 40/-, November 40/3, December 40/6, January 41/3. Parcels in request and firmer; Plate October-November sold 39/6 to 39/9, November-December 39/6 to 39/10½, December 40/-, ditto to Bristol Channel November 39/10½, December 40/3 per 480lbs. BARLEY quiet; parcels of No. 3 Canadian Western October-November 33/-, No. 4 ditto 32/-, Danubian 34/9, No. 2 Federal American 28/-, Algerian-Tunisian October-November 31/- per 400lbs. OATS dull; Plate f.a.q. December-January 24/9, new January-February 24/3, Chilian January-February 25/-, No. 3 white clipped American (36lbs.) October 23/6 per 320lbs.

MARK LANE CORN.—There was a fair attendance of buyers at the week-end market, and a moderate business resulted at generally steady prices. WHEAT maintained; No. 3 Northern Manitoba 48/-, No. 4 Manitoba 45/3, No. 5 ditto 41/9, No. 5 37/4 new crop, No. 1 Manitoba October-November 51/6, No. 2 ditto 50/-, No. 3 48/-, No. 2 mixed Durum 41/3, all ex ship; Rosafe (63lbs.) ex ship to arrive 46/6 per 490lbs.; English 9/4 to 9/8 per 112lbs. FLOUR steady; London standard grade 38/-, town whites 39/-, patents 40/- to 41/- per sack delivered in the home counties, with 6d. to 1/- per sack less for deliveries in the London districts. Of imported, Manitoba patents range from 35/- to 38/-, Minneapolis 36/- to 38/-, Australian 32/6 to 33/- ex store. On c.i.f. terms, Manitoba top patents October-November quoted 35/6 to 36/6, export ditto 33/6 to 34/6, Ontario winter patents 33/- to 34/-, Australian 33/6 to 34/- per 280lbs. MAIZE firmer for distant positions; Plate landed 42/-, ditto ex ship to arrive 40/6, October-November 40/6, November-December 40/6, December-January 41/- per 480lbs.; yellow maize meal £11 ex wharf, white African ex ship to arrive £9 7/6, yellow ditto £9 15/- per ton. BARLEY steady; Californian ex store 41/- to 56/-, Oregon 53/-, Chilian brewing 45/- to 58/-, Australian 50/- to 52/-, Smyrna 44/- to 50/- per 448lbs.; Algerian-Tunisian ex ship 32/-, Persian 32/9, No. 3 Canadian Western 33/6, No. 2 Federal American 29/6 per 400lbs.; English malting 9/8 to 15/6, feed 9/- to 10/- per 112lbs. ### PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—In the weekly official revision of prices Danish and Swedish was reduced 4/- in London, and Danish, Sedish, and Dutch 5/- at Manchester, while Irish was also 4/- lower, but past week's Danish killings were less than the previous return. Prices of the foregoing were consequently reduced here, Irish being now 91/- to 97/-, and Danish 90/- to 94/-, Swedish 86/- to 90/-, and Dutch 85/- to 89/- per cwt., with only a moderate business reported. American selections quiet, and generally lower in sympathy with long sides, despite limited supplies; long clear reduced to 91/- to 93/-, Cumberlands 89/- to 93/-, backs 85/- to 95/- per cwt. HAMS quiet, and short cut easier at 105/- to 111/- per cwt. Shoulders quiet, some New Yorks being now on the market at 82/- to 84/- per cwt. LARD on the spot unchanged for prime steam, but American refined 9d. lower at 64/3 to 66/3 per cwt. CHEESE steady, and in moderate demand at late rates. BUTTER quiet, and easier for some makes. Danish offered at 192/- to 196/-, Australian 168/- to 172/-, and Siberian 160/- to 164/- per cwt. EGGS firm, and dearer for Irish fresh hen at 21/- to 22/6, with duck unchanged at 17/6 to 18/- per 120.

LONDON.—BUTTER: A quiet and featureless market again resulted, while any change in prices proved favourable to the buyer. It would appear that buyers are in possession of sufficient stock, and are able to confine purchases to wants of immediate necessity, and in this they are encouraged by prospects of liberal quantities from New Zealand and Australia later on. Danish meets a slow sale here, but Germany takes fair quantities, also other countries. New Zealand finest salted quoted 176/- to 186/-, good to fine 170/- to 172/-, unsalted 186/- to 190/-; Australian finest salted 164/- to 170/-, good to fine 158/- to 162/-, inferior 150/- to 156/-, unsalted 164/- to 186/-; Argentine finest unsalted 174/- to 178/-, good to fine 170/- to 172/-, inferior 150/- to 156/-; Irish creamery 172/- to 176/-, factory 140/- to 145/-, separators 152/- to 154/-; Danish 186/- to 190/-, Dutch 185/- to 188/-, Esthonian 178/-, Polish 146/- to 154/-, Siberian 156/- to 160/-, Ukranian 160/- to 164/- per cwt.; French unaltered for baskets; Dutch rolls 20/9 to 21/3 per dozen lbs. CHEESE—English continues to sell at extreme rates; imported meets a slow market, and it would seem that a retail price of 1/2 per lb. is too high to induce increased consumption. English finest farmers' 138/- to 140/-, good to fine 126/- to 134/-, loaf 136/- to 140/- per cwt.; Stilton 1/7 to 1/9 per lb.; Canadian white 108/- to 112/-, coloured 106/- to 112/-; New Zealand white 108/- to 111/-, coloured 106/- to 110/-; Dutch—Edam 40 p.c. 85/- to 93/-, 30 p.c. 76/- to 82/-, 20 p.c. 61/- to 66/-; Gouda 45 p.c. 102/- to 104/-, 40 p.c. 85/- to 87/-, 30 p.c. 75/- to 77/-, 20 p.c. 61/- to 63/- per cwt. BACON—A dull market continues, and lower rates resulted. Officially Danish reduced 4/- to 5/-, Irish and Dutch 3/- to 5/-, Swedish and Canadian 4/-. Danish killings for the week—83,418. LARD—Market quiet and easier; American boxes 64/6 to 65/6, pails 69/-, cartons (1lb.) 68/-, (½lb.) 70/6; Danish bladders 63/- to 71/-, boxes 62/-; Dutch boxes 65/- per cwt. EGGS (Borough)—Market quiet for new laid, but a steady demand continues for the cheaper grades at firm rates. Quotations here are reported to be lower than in countries of production. Increased quantities of preserved eggs are arriving from all sources. Quotations:—English 24/- to 26/-, Danish 18lb. 18/6 to 19/6, 15½lb. 17/3 to 17/9; Dutch mixed 19/6 to 20/6, all-brown 20/6 to 21/6; Belgian 18/6 to 20/-, Normandy 15/- to 18/-, Brittany 13/- to 14/-, French all-brown 18/- to 20/6, Polish 11/6 to 12/-, Lithuanian 11/- to 15/-, Russian 11/- to 13/-, Argentine 14/9 to 15/-, South African 14/- to 17/-, Australian 16/6 to 18/6 per 120; Chinese violets £7 12/6, blacks £6 12/6 per case.

MANCHESTER.—BUTTER—Danish Official quotation wired 11 kroner lower at 315 kroner per 100 kilos, against 326 kilos the previous week and 320 kilos for the corresponding period last year. Spot market firm at reduced prices. Offerings of Irish creameries by no means heavy, and quality now showing signs of lateness of season. Colonials still nominal. Choicest qualities quoted—Danish 191/- to 193/-, special dairies extra; Finnish 186/- to 188/-, Swedish 184/- to 188/-. Irish creameries 174/- to 176/-. BACON—Demand rather disappointing; Irish, 60-70lb. averages, reduced 4/-, and 70-80lb. 5/-. Continental cures all reduced 5/- per cwt. General quotations—Irish 91/- to 98/-, North of Ireland rolls 102/- to 106/- according to weight and cure, Danish 90/- to 95/-, Swedish 86/- to 91/-, Dutch 85/- to 90/-. LARD lower; English refined 68/-, boxes, wholesale; American around 64/6 according to brand. CHEESE—Home-produced and Colonial quietly steady; choicest Cheshire 1/1 to 1/1½, finest Lancashire 1/2 to 1/2½ per lb.; New Zealand white 113/- to 114/-, coloured 111/- to 112/-, Canadian white and coloured 109/- to 111/-. DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE.—Imported apples, grapes, etc., are forward in big supply in view of Hallow Eve festive times. Black grapes 9d. to 1/6 per lb.; Almeria barrels 14/- to 20/- and 24/-; imported blue plums 10/- per case. Stock list prices much as previous quotations. Vegetables in big supply; week-end business made readier sales of cabbage and cauliflowers, but generally market for vegetables continues discouraging to growers. Irish apples very plentiful, and sell cheaply. Cauliflowers 1/- to 1/4 and 1/8 per dozen, sprouts 2/6 to 3/6 per float, etc.; York cabbage 10/- to 20/- and 25/- per load on wheels, and on forestallers' banks around 8d. per dozen; celery 2/6 to 4/6 per bundle, swede turnips 1/4 to 1/8 per cwt., lettuce 6d. to 8d. per dozen, vegetable marrows 3/- to 6/-, and large 7/- to 9/- per dozen; beet 1/- to 2/3 per dozen, parsnips 5/- to 6/6 per bag, carrots 4/6 to 6/6 per bag, parsley 4d. to 6d. per tray, white turnips 2d. to 6d. per bundle.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Heavy offerings of potatoes from local and country growers continues to be the order of things, most being anxious not to "pit" too largely in view of lean outlook in the trade. Best table tubers for city delivery average 4/6 to 4/9 and 5/- per cwt., coarse, etc., 4/- to 4/3 per cwt.

DUBLIN POULTRY AND GAME.—Supplies all round continue in good compass, and there is little if any quotable change in market generally, but the wintry turn in weather tends to tighten up trade and values. Prime turkeys (alive) 1/- to 1/2 and 1/3 per lb., dead 1/3 to 1/4 per lb.; full size plump chickens 10d. to 1/- and 1/1 per lb., small sizes 1/6 to 2/- each; fat young hens 2/- to 2/6 each, old, etc., 1/- to 1/6; fatted geese 8d. to 9d. per lb., stubble 3/6 to 4/6 each; fat young ducks 3/- to 4/-, seconds 1/6 to 2/6 each, old 8d. to 1/3; cock pheasants 4/- to 5/-, hen ditto 3/- to 3/6; young grouse 3/- to 4/-, old 2/6; young partridge 2/6, old 1/6; wild duck 1/6, widgeon 9d., teal 6d., snipe 6d., woodcock 1/6, golden plover 6d. to 8d., green 4d. to 6d., hares 2/- to 2/6, rabbits 1/3 to 1/4 each for fresh trapped.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG.—Butter markets continue to move in a dragging and weaker groove. Danish official quotations come this week about 6/- per cwt. down, and Irish creameries are written 2/- per cwt. lower at 171/- to 172/- per cwt. Supplies of latter continue more than ample for the trade practicable on home markets and shipping inquiry is narrower. However, production also appears on the wane. Factory butter slow; fine grade 1/5, others 1/3½ to 1/4 per lb. Farmers' butter from 1/- to 1/3½ and 1/4 per lb. Supplies of new-laid eggs now scarce, and command dearer markets, but cold stored reserves are coming out, and most of those offering so far prove of remarkably good class, especially those that have been put fresh and carefully away. These cold-stored eggs are now being wholesaled at 14/- to 15/- and 16/- per 120. Selected case arrivals of fresh hen eggs 21/6 to 22/6, extra heavily picked 23/6 to 24/- and 24/6 per 120, mediums 19/- to 20/6, seconds, etc., 17/- to 18/-. Duck eggs in small compass, but enough at 18/- to 19/- per 120.

CORK BUTTER.—The market continues unchanged. Creameries 174/- to 176/-.
